...LEST WE SHOULD DIE TOGETHER SOME DAY

Shreepakash Sharma

The green revolution brought about a much-needed miraculous transformation in the production of food grains in the Indian economy during 1960s and consequently our granaries filled up sufficiently to the extent of fulfilling the food grains requirement of approximately 1.35 billion population of the country. This revolution also helped the central government maintain fairly record level of buffer stock for the running of Public Distribution System (PDS) and various other welfare schemes under the food for work programmes as well as meet the food shortage of the country.

As per the data of the Ministry of Agriculture, green revolution resulted in the record production of food grains to the extent of as much as that of 131 million tonnes in 1978 -79 to about 276 million tonnes during 2016-2017 and which has currently touched a record high of 278 million tonnes. The per acre yield unbelievably increased by between 75 to 180 per cent during that period. They say that during the same period the crop area under High Yielding Varieties (HYV) and disease-resistant-varieties of wheat and rice substantially increased never witnessed earlier. This was the beginning of the unprecedented achievement of food security and strengthening of sustainable livelihood for the countrymen, especially for the low-strata segments of the society.

Green revolution also helped us efface the ignominious stigma of PL 480 of the USA (The Public Law 480), also called as Food for Peace Programme, an article in the US Constitution signed on July 10, 1954 by the then President Dwight D. Eisenhower. As per the provision of PL 480, India imported wheat at the subsidised rate from the USA during the pre-green revolution period.

But all the benefits and blessings of green revolution cease only here. It has its own flip side which presents before us the ugliest environmental and climatic scenario that does not augur well for the developing nation like ours. The most alarming is the bitter fact that the very magic of exponential increment in the production of food grains which rendered charisma during the green revolution has been on a gradual wane.

The latest surveys and various statistics, conducted and collected by the social scientists and key NGOs, have now established that farmers of the states which witnessed the green revolution's bumper successes are now compelled to spend many times more capital and other agricultural inputs in farming to get the same level of produce than what they used to invest in the nascent years of the green revolution of 1960s.

The scientists across the nations in the world say that excessive use of chemical fertilizers, insecticides, pesticides and a host of other chemicals, made compulsory due to the green revolution - know how, has started telling on the fertility power of the soil. Over time, the salinity and infertility of land due to those chemicals has gradually been on the rise. So the miracles of the so-called genetically-improved magic seeds and the chemical fertilizers are over and that is why the scientists are professing for the urgent need of the start of another edition of the green revolution.

But amidst a host of epoch-making achievements over the globe what we simply forget is raising this basic question - Will the earth sustain the fast growing burden of the population, rising over 1.11 per cent annually, and its ever-increasing needs?

Another question we urgently need to answer is - to what extent we are ready to brave the various environmental challenges such as decline in fertility power of soil, soil erosion, fast falling forest areas on the earth, rapidly deepening underground water, air pollution, depletion of Ozone layer, global warming and various others?

There is no gainsaying the fact that our environmental degradation has brought about many abrupt, adverse and unwanted changes, the repercussions of which are critically affecting the lives of both the flora and fauna on the planet earth. Due to erratic monsoon rainfall and deforestation, drought now has turned out to be most common natural global phenomenon. Floods have been inundating most uncommon cities and towns across the world, especially at the most unpredictable time. Abrupt climatic changes have aggravated the situation even more and consequently the global population is stuck in a lot of socio-economic crises never seen before.

Water crisis, which the entire world has presently fallen vulnerable to, has been proving to be the Achilles' heel of the environmental sustainability in world. Who can deny that water is the most important ingredient which is inevitably essential for the sustenance of the flora and fauna on the earth? But unfortunately with the fast increase in the global population, which has increased more than double over the period of past seven decades, the availability of water, the most fundamental need of the mankind next only to air, has turned out to be one of the biggest crises of the modern world. The level of water in wells, ponds and tube wells is fast plummeting low and low with each passing year and this has been posing unbearable hardships to the population across the nations.

The earth planet's 71 percent of surface is covered with water which sums up more than two-thirds of the area of the earth but only 3 percent of the entire global water is fresh drinking water that may be used by the people across the world for various daily uses. It is because of the fact that 96.5 percent of the Earth's water is contained by the oceans. The worrying fact reveals that as much as two-thirds of the total of 3 per cent of fresh water which we are left with get trapped in glaciers. This leads us to the availability of as less as 1 per cent of fresh water for all the routine human activities across the countries and keeping this constraint in view we can easily visualize the seriousness of the water crisis over the globe.

Besides, environmental pollution has wrought havoc upon the ecological balance and natural habitat of the human beings. Air pollution looms horrible as one of the imminent dangers on the humanity. The World Health Organization's latest report says that out of nine deaths, at least one death is caused due to presence of carcinogens and other poisons in atmosphere. Reports also reveal that more than 3.5 million people die across the world every year due to air pollution. Out of this half of the people die only in China due to heavy smog.

Air pollution is engulfing many other cities and towns on a large scale and very rapidly, especially in the post-reformed era of industrialization and modernization. According to the latest survey on air pollution by the World Health Organization (WHO), a very alarming revelation has come out. The report says that there are 20 worst polluted cities in the world which are just like death traps because the air of these cities contains dangerous level of PM 2.5. It is also to be noted here that out of these 20 global most polluted cities across the world 14 worst are only in India. The report has one more alarm for us - India has more polluted cities vis-a-vis China has.

Wetland areas, metaphorically called as the nurseries of development of human civilization and seed-bed of diversity of flora and fauna on the earth, are very fast shrinking. Destruction of these potentially rich areas of the world is a matter of worry because they boost the production of rice over the globe. The importance of wetland can easily be gauged by the fact that it works as a shield for the people against storms, droughts, floods and other natural calamities.

Can you believe that global deforestation has been taking place alarmingly at the faster rate of nearly 13 million hectares per year, and this is equal to the loss of 200 sq km of forest per day? With 40 million square kilometre of the forest which comes to around 30 percent of the earth's area, we have only 0.62 hectare of forest available per capita that does not bode well for the sustenance of the countries.

The endangered species of flora and fauna are worryingly dwindling to their lower record. The American black bear is conspicuously threatened with extinction along with 22000 species of other varieties. On an average 70 species go to extinction globally every day. Air pollution, sound pollution, water pollution, soil erosion, deforestation, food poisoning and plethora of other ecological problems are proving out to be as the most dangerous monsters which are ready to swallow humanity and devour other creatures on the earth. The agriculture production worldwide has been plummeting to a new low each year due to severe soil erosion. As per a UN estimate, approximately 12 million hectares of cultivable land has been getting degraded every year which is threatening the survival of mankind on earth.

Global warming is another environmental issue which has been haunting the earth planet as another one of the biggest threats. As per an estimate the global temperature has increased by more than 0.80 C since the latter half of the nineteenth century and consequently adverse trends in the rainfall, droughts and snow patterns are being witnessed across the world. If we fail to check this fast rate of environmental degradation very immediately, it is expected that by 2100 AD average global temperature is likely to rise by 3° to 6°. The main reason of global warming is the fast depletion of Ozone layer. This is an ominous trend which we must stay beware of.

The air - pollution-related deaths have also been on the rise in the country. The Global Burden of Diseases says that air pollution is the fifth leading cause of death in India, with nearly 6, 50, 000 premature deaths every year. Respiratory and cardiovascular diseases make the topmost reasons for the air-pollution-induced premature deaths in majority of the countries in the world.

The scarcity of fossil fuels is another danger zone which calls for urgent attention.

The environmental crisis, in fact, is the consciousness crisis. It is, also an awareness crisis and, most importantly, it is the crisis of our inability of visualizing problems and threats which are knocking so ostensibly at our doors. By 2050 the world population is likely to rise to 9 billion and by that time mankind will be facing the biggest cause of premature death and as per a survey about 3.6 million people will be killed every year due to shortage of various essential facilities and the environmental crises. By that time the demand for water is expected to rise more than 50 percent and due to this hike another 40 percent of the global population would have to live a life without the accessibility of water- the very essence of life.

Mahatma Gandhi, the Father of Nation, had once said, "There is enough on Earth for everybody's need, but not enough for everybody's greed." The insight in what Gandhiji said calls for serious self-introspection and the upkeep of which has turned out to be a very big challenge for the sustainability of the environment as well as for the survival of the mankind.

First, we need to awake the people from the deep slumber of indifference to the wastage of non-renewable and non-replenishable sources of natural resources. Air which we breathe in and which makes the most vital element of survival of all the creatures on the earth must be given the most serious thought. Air pollution is a matter of great concern which demands our urgent attention. Smog is the latest threat and we urgently need to take initiatives to rectify the situation. A time-bound check on the rapid industrialization and emission of carbon billowing from the chimneys of the factories is essential to turn the air purer to breathe in. It will also lead to bringing down the level of global warming, a danger which so badly affects the climatic condition of the world.

Energy is considered as the engine of development of a nation. Fossil fuels are not only the most important form of energy but also the assets of heritage and legacy. We need to minimise their use and, most importantly, their wastage.

Arable land is shrinking and, no doubt, there is significant downfall in its quality. The adoption of organic farming and its spread as a potential alternative to the farming making excessive use of various chemicals initiated during 1960s, is set to bring about considerable improvement in the fast declining fertility power of the soil. This is most urgent keeping in view ever-soaring global population and the ever-increasing demand for the food grains.

No doubt, the problems are galore but

I & B MINISTER LAUNCHES 'HUM FIT TOH INDIA FIT' CAMPAIGN

WWW.JOBRIYA.COM

Union Minister of State for Youth Affairs and Sports and Information & Broadcasting (Independent Charge), Mr. Rajyavardhan Singh Rathore has called upon citizens and particularly youth of the country to include fitness in their daily routine so that India could become a healthy nation. Launching a campaign 'Hum Fit Toh India Fit' on May 22, 2018 on social media, Mr Rathore posted a video urging people to get fitter and make India fit. In the video, he said India's Prime Minister Shri Narendra Modi has inspired him to stay fit and thus he started the fitness challenge. During the 'Mann Ki Baat' programme on 25th March 2018, Prime Minister Shri Narendra Modi had given the clarion call for a 'Fit India' - a movement to take the nation forward on the path of fitness and wellness. The Prime Minister had said, in the contemporary times of stress and lifestyle diseases, fitness is a key part of wellness and plays an important role in keeping us healthy, preventing diseases and ensuring a better quality of life. The 'Fit India' movement provides a unique and exciting opportunity to work towards a healthier India. As a part of the movement, individuals and organisations can undertake various efforts for their own health and well-being as well as for the health and well-being of fellow Indians.

In the video, Mr Rathore said he was changing his work schedule a bit to include fitness in his daily routine. He then got down and did push-ups and encouraged everyone to take the fitness challenge. He has asked social media users to share photos and videos of their fitness regimes using #FitnessChallenge hashtag. In his tweet, he also challenged actor Hrithik Roshan, Cricketer Virat Kohli and 2012 London Olympic medallist and badminton player Saina Nehwal who accepted his challenge and responded to it by posting videos on their fitness. The campaign has generated a positive buzz on social media as a number of social media users including Union Ministers and celebrities have appreciated this move and have shared the photos and videos of their fitness regime.

entrepreneurs and help them set up business. This scheme has helped the talented and educated youth from weaker sections to start their own business and become entrepreneurs. To boost Dalit entrepreneurs, the Ministry of Social Justice and Empowerment also established Dalit Venture Capital Fund. Set up with an initial capital of Rs 200 crore, this scheme has also benefited Dalit entrepreneurs hugely.

The Finance Minister allocated Rs 56,619 crore for the development of Dalits and Rs 39,135 crores for tribals in the current budget. Mudra Scheme has been another milestone in financial inclusion. Under this scheme lakhs of people have been provided loans. Looking at the success of this scheme, its total outlay was increased to Rs 3 lakh crore in the current budget.

The current government is working with the view that when jobs are limited in numbers, one must turn to entrepreneurship to fill the gap. With this in mind, the government is, hence, drafting policies that are now giving positive results. Schemes like Mudra and Stand Up have empowered lakhs of Dalit and backward youth. National Safai Karmachari Commission has also started a scheme where entrepreneurs associated with cleanliness mission would be given support in their businesses.

Constitutional Provisions

The government has made stringent norms to curb Dalit atrocities to engender an environment of safety and freedom. The Government has also introduced 123rd amendment which will make sure that the new commission for socio-economically backwards would be more powerful and serve the interests of the community effectively.

The Modi government has declared five places related with the life of Dr. Ambedkar as 'Panch Teerth' and has been developing them. Dr. Ambedkar International Centre is being established as an academic research centre to promote Ambedkar's values and research about marginalised sections. An interactive museum is being built at the Delhi house of Dr Ambedkar which is now known as Dr. Ambedkar National Memorial. The place where Dr. Ambedkar lived in London was also bought by the government. The birth anniversary (14 April) of Dr Ambedkar has declared as National Harmony Day. Social Justice and Empowerment Ministry has started a scheme to send 100 scholars to two places abroad related to Dr. Ambedkar to inspire them. These two places are in Chicago and London where Dr Ambedkar studied in early 20th century.

Women

Though women have excelled in different fields and their situation has improved yet there is a huge number of women who still need attention and intervention by government. Earlier, it was very hard for uneducated rural women to avail benefits of government schemes. Infact, there were no effective schemes for such women before Modi government. In the last four years, many schemes have been started under the popular Beti Bachao, Beti Padhao campaign. The Finance Minister declared the success of Sukanya Samridhi Yojana which was started under this campaign. This scheme was started in 2015 and in just two years, more than 1.26 crore bank accounts were opened for girls in which a total sum of Rs. 19,183 crore has been deposited.

Modi Government also started an ambitious scheme named Pradhan Mantri Ujjawala Yojana for women living below poverty line under which these women were to be provided with gas cylinders. Till now, around 5 crore women have benefitted from this scheme. The target up to 2019 has now been increased to 8 crore women.

Divyangs

Along with Dalits, Tribals and OBCs, the Central Government has also identified sections that were neglected for decades. The government has come up with effective and specific policies and programs for these groups.

The Government now uses the term 'Divyang' for physically handicapped people. Several mega-camps have been organised to distribute artificial limbs, hearing aids, tricycles etc among the needy. From 1992 to 2014, only 100 such camps were organised, but in two years from 2014 to 2016, more than hundred such camps were organised. Prime Minister Mr. Narendra Modi participated in two such camps that got mention in Guinness World Records where more than 10000 people were given such equipments. Under Sugamya Bharat program, government buildings were made accessible for Divyangs through smart and thoughtful design interventions. Collected works of Dr Ambedkar were translated into Braille script to make them accessible to people with visual impairments.

Senior Citizens

The increase in life expectancy has meant change in age demographics of the country and an increasing senior population. The central government has started many schemes and programs for senior citizens and increased the funds of various schemes by 70% to 80%.

In 2014-15 and 2015-16, Rs 42 crores were spent on 41,000 senior citizens and in 2016-17, Rs 29 crores were spent under different schemes for seniors. The National Policy on Senior Citizens is also being changed with changing socio-economic requirements and social values. Every year, senior citizens are rewarded for their efforts in different fields through Vayo Shri awards. The Ministry of Social Justice and Ministry of Health have also teamed up to provide senior citizens with smart card linked to Aadhar that will help them to avail several health care benefits.

Nomadic Tribes

The government has set up a Commission to solve the problems of the nomadic tribes. One scheme named after Nanaji Deshmukh has also been started to establish hostels for the youth of this community.

Scholarship

Pre-metric students from Dalit and other socio-economically backward communities have been given substantial scholarships. In 2014-15 and 2015-16, as many as 49, 24,700 students were given scholarships to the tune of Rs 1,038.73 crore. In 2016-17, nearly Rs 344.28 crore were distributed among more than 13 lakh Dalit students. Around 50 lakh OBC students were given scholarships of Rs 230 crore in 2014-15 and 2015-16. In 2016-17, these scholarships were amounted to Rs. 106 crore. Similarly, Dalit and OBC youth who are getting higher education were also given fellowships with increased numbers like never before.

Basic Infrastructure for Marginalised

Many schemes have been started by the Central Government for providing better facilities to poor, deprived and marginalised section of the society. On 14 April, 2018, Prime Minister Modi launched the world's biggest health scheme Ayushman Bharat to provide health facilities to the deprived sections.

The first health and wellness centre under Ayushman Bharat scheme was inaugurated by him in Naxal-affected Bijapur district of Chattisgarh. Government will run 1.5 lakh such health and wellness centres in different part of India. The target of this scheme is to provide health facilities to 10 crore families which means 50 crore people. These people will be covered under health insurance of Rs 5 lakh. The government is already running 800 Jan Aushadhi Kendras where more than 800 life saving drugs on cheaper rates can be bought.

Fighting the entrenched belief that sanitation is a luxury, the government has come up with a much-needed scheme to help poor people build toilets. More than 6 crore such toilets have been built in the past four years with a target of 2 crore more toilets for this year.

The government has also resolved to provide a house to every family and is working tirelessly to achieve this target. In his budget speech, the Finance Minister said that 51 lakh such houses would be built this year. In the current budget, Rs 14 lakh crore were allocated for the development of basic infrastructure. The government has also started Pradhan Mantri Soubhagya Yojana to resolve the problem of poor power supply. Under this scheme, four crore families would be given electricity costing Rs 16,000 crore.

Working in Backward Districts

For decades in India, caste has been considered as one of the central criteria of backwardness and all affirmative action policies revolved around this idea making such identities even more firm. Realising this, the Modi government decided to consider district as the basis of backwardness. If the district is backward and not connected then everyone living in there would be backward. Under this, 115 districts have been identified and separate schemes have been prepared for their development. In January, 2018, Prime Minister Mr. Narendra Modi met the District Magistrate of these districts to ensure effective implementation of these schemes.

With a view to providing life of ease for everyone, the Modi government is especially working for the vulnerable, deprived and marginalised sections. The government has set the target to double income of farmers by 2022 and towards this objective in the latest budget the Finance Minister promised to increase the minimum support price of crops by 1.5 times.

When the government was formed in 2014, Prime Minister Narendra Modi said this is a government of poor and marginalised sections of the society. A look at the government policies and programs reveals that for the last four years, the government has been working to address the problems of these sections. These multi-pronged efforts are beginning to yield fruits and the benefits are now reaching out to maximum people.

work and being persistent in answer writing matters. I know sometimes we get demotivated, don't feel like writing answers or try to focus on reading more content. It happened with me also but here is what the role of peer group or study environment came into picture. I feel many online websites have come up in recent past like InsightsonIndia, ForumIAS, lasbaba that provides daily free answer writing practice. Make best use of technology with applications like Whatsapp and Telegram, where one can make groups and write daily answer and can review each other's answer. Peer Group is the key in the preparation strategy. I found it more helpful than test series and classes by the coaching institute. Slowly after 8-10 tests, one is able to find what to do and what not to do, how to write an answer. But actual struggle after that is to internalize the answer writing pattern in your heart & soul and make it a natural way of answer writing. For that one should do intensive answer writing practice. Few things that I learnt in this process are as follows:

- Importance of Reading the Question: Most of the time what happens is that we used to write whatever we know in about 2-3 keywords written in a question, but try to read a question twice or thrice at least. Try to understand what actually the examiner wants to know and write that only. I also used to write whatever I knew about the question in my first two attempts and that probably was the reason behind low marks in GS.
- Introduction: It is one of the most crucial part of answer writing and I believe it left the first impression on the examiner. Try to write in a proper manner. I used to follow mainly 4-5 ways to write it:
- Definition: If I know the definition or crux of issue let's say Food security I tried to introduce my answer with definition of food security and interlink with the subparts being asked in the question. It will not only give good flow to your answers but also structure your answer properly.

- Recent Events: Let's say a question was asked on simultaneous elections. One can start with Prime Minister or President's Speech where they have supported the idea. Then immediately try to connect with the issue being asked in the question

- Facts/Figures: Third way is to start a question with some important fact or figure. Let's say question is about underemployment in India, one can give the reference of Niti Aayog's Three Year Action plan and quote some facts or figures.

- Location: It is generally helpful while writing history and geography question. For example of a question is asked on decline of Indus Valley civilization, one can start with location of IVC and its timeline, then straight come to answering what is asked in the question.

- Interlinking: Fourth way could be to interlink all the sub parts asked in a question and write about the crux of your answer in one line and straight forward jump to subtopics.

- Break the Question into subparts: Generally UPSC asks 2-3 questions in one question itself. Try to break it and address it properly.

- Visibility: After breaking the question into subparts asked in the question, try to highlight it while writing, so that an examiner will easily find out where and how you addressed different parts of the questions. It helps in two ways, first one would be answering all the subparts asked and ensure flow in the answers.

- Point Format: Try to write most of answers in point format especially in GS 1,2,3 and while answering any subparts, make subheading in front of every question, so that its easy to make out what one is going to write. And after writing an argument/ statement try to substantiate your statement. Let's say one gave an argument in favour of strengthening of federal structure in recent past, then substantiate with financial independence ensured by 14th Finance Commission and so on.

- Smart Answering: While answering a question, just try to think from where this question would have been asked, then answer it accordingly. In 2016 Mains, similar question was asked on Urban floods in GS1 and GS3, but try to think under which topic it would have been asked. In GS1 it relates more with problems of Urbanization, impact on various sections of societies so on. While in GS 3, it could be from infrastructure or disaster management topic. Just try to include points accordingly. I have done the mistake and I don't know whether this is the right way or not but I believe that questions are made out of syllabus and we should address it accordingly.

- Importance of making flowchart/ Diagram / Map: While writing answers just try to make a flowchart in two or three questions. Somewhere make diagrams or make maps if required (especially in geography and location factors of industries).

- Conclusion: While writing a conclusion, be very clear what you want to communicate and answer all the subparts in 1-2 lines. One may give solutions just before concluding the answer but it depends upon the nature of question asked. I know the paucity of time in actual exam but try to conclude the question at the end. It gives an edge over others.

Here I would also like to caution you. I have seen many copies where sometimes aspirants try to make these things in every question. Please don't overdo it. It makes the answers too mechanical. Try to stick to the basics that is addressing the question properly and convincing examiner you know the things and your opinions are based upon facts.

- How to Study a Particular Topic

- UPSC Syllabus: First and foremost have the UPSC syllabus with you always and this should be the ultimate source around which our preparation should revolve. Read it as many times you can, it helps you in internalize it and connect with topics while reading newspaper or current affairs magazines

- Strategy to prepare

- Definitions: Make a separate copy for each paper and find out important keywords like for GS 2: Constitution, Governance, Poverty, Hunger, Accountability, Citizen Charter and so on. And write good definition of each of it. Cram it by heart and understand crux of each of it. Generally question revolves around it only. For instance, question on Poverty was asked again and again in previous year so does is on Secularism. Have clear idea and definition which will help you while writing answers

- Mindmaps/Charts: Try to make mind map or charts on each of the topic and cover particularly various dimensions, important facts, figures, case studies in a concise manner. It will help you a lot at the last moment for revision as well as give you confidence after doing it.

- Collect important Facts and Figures: It is really important while reading a particular topic and make a note of it in a notebook or in a mind map so that you will be able to revise it and remember it during the exam.

- Notes of Important Historic Personalities: Helps you in covering history portions. UPSC in recent past tends to ask comparison between personalities.

- Important Judgments: Collect important judgments. It will help you in writing GS 2 answers a lot like on Privacy, Misuse of Ordinance Power, Centre-State Relations, Basic Structure Doctrine, Environmental Justice, Electoral Reforms and so on.

Here again, I would like to say don't overburden yourself. The purpose of this article was not just to share my strategy but express the things that I feel are important for preparation in Mains. Before going through this understand your strengths and weakness, I did all these things because I felt my weakness in this part. And this journey has told me that the recipe of success stories lies in knowing thyself and working over one's weakness & capitalizing on one's strengths.

the solution lies only in our mentality, in our insight and, most importantly, in our soul-searching. We need to awake to our needs and the resources available to satisfy them. We are morally-bound to save our planet and protect the environment if we cherish to see the world alive and intact.

Ban Ki-moon, the famous South Korean diplomat and former Secretary General of the United Nations Organization, reflected the world scenario and significance of the environmental health in his following words, "Saving our planet, lifting people out of poverty, advancing economic growth...these are one and the same fight. We must connect the dots between climate change, water scarcity, energy shortages, global health, food security and women's empowerment. Solutions to one problem must be solutions for all."

The rapid depletion of natural resources is precariously jeopardizing the lives of flora and fauna on the earth. Keeping in mind the rate at which the various natural resources are being fast harnessed, the world is abuzz with rumours and terrified with the looming fear that the day is not far off when the coming generations would have to reach out to the nearest zoos to see what natural resources their predecessors had been blessed with and which they themselves got deprived of.

Lester R. Brown, the famous US environmental analyst had once said, "We have not inherited this earth from our forefathers; we have borrowed it from our children." Hidden in this quotation are the vital reflections which must make us to think seriously over how to protect environment to boost the longevity of the mankind and the sustenance of biodiversity on the earth.

It is the time to take action, chalk out the plans seriously, that too, immediately and impeccably- otherwise we would not live for tomorrow to ponder and repent over what we lost and why. Therefore it is high time that we accord priority to check environmental degradation and control the damage done to our eco-system so that we ensure a better life for our future generations otherwise, we would be left with no option in the years to come but to die together some day.

EMPOWERING THE MARGINALISED FOR INCLUSIVE GROWTH AND SOCIAL JUSTICE

Swadesh Singh
Devi Dayal Gautam

In the last four years, the Narendra Modi-led government at the Centre has shown its tireless commitment for an egalitarian society by bringing various sections of the society together. The government has made many provisions and has come up with several policies and programs in the field of education and employment to empower the vulnerable, deprived and depressed sections of the society and ensure social justice and harmony.

Keeping in mind that government jobs are limited, the Modi government has tried to provide support to such sections in setting up their own business so that they can earn their livelihood as well as create jobs for others – thus creating a cycle of self-empowerment. The government has been trying to ensure 'ease of living' for the deprived sections by providing basic social and physical infrastructural facilities at cheaper rates. Prime Minister Narendra Modi has boldly envisioned a 'New India' by 2022, work for which was started four years ago by empowering and ensuring social justice for the deprived sections of the society.

New way of Empowerment

After Independence, we accepted a group-based approach for the socio-economic development and empowerment of weaker sections of society. Our Constitution makers provided for reservation of SCs, STs and OBCs. They believed that equality will be actualised by ensuring reservation in the field of education and employment and rest of the problems will be resolved automatically. However, due to various reasons, this did not happen. We need to now come up with new strategies to empower the deprived and marginalised communities. Prime Minister Narendra Modi has taken the right initiative in this direction by trying to come up with out of the box solutions. In one of his speeches at Bijapur while inaugurating Ayushman Bharat scheme, he said: 'One cannot reach a new destination while following the old path. New goals cannot be achieved with old techniques; our government is working with a new approach.'

Inclusion

Soon after the formation of the present Government, Jan-Dhan Scheme was launched to aggressively push the process of financial inclusion of those who still did not have bank accounts. Bank accounts opened under this scheme, mostly include those of people from deprived and marginalised sections. These people did not have an account though they needed it the most. Now money from different government schemes is directly channelised into their bank account removing intermediaries and leakage. Similarly, under the Prime Minister Mudra Scheme, loans were granted to lakhs of people – comprising a majority of women, Dalits and backwards.

Promoting Entrepreneurship

Under Stand Up scheme, financial help was provided to Dalits, tribals and women to start their own greenfield enterprises. Under the scheme, each of the 1.25 lakh bank branches were expected to facilitate two such

STRATEGY TO CLEAR UPSC CIVIL SERVICES MAINS EXAM

Sachin Gupta, Rank 3 Holder in UPSC CSE 2017 speaks:

I came from middle class background with my father as farmer and mother as government school teacher. I have seen the difference of schools in which I studied and in which my mother used to teach. Although at that time I was just a child, things changed when I accidentally went for teaching children from deprived sections of society, it changed everything. I started relating my childhood observations of difference. It changed the overall thought process from building a career in Engineering towards aspiring for bringing change in society. I always believe there is a supernatural power that somehow helps us out at every situation; we just need to be prudent enough to do the right things.

Tryst with UPSC-CSE

I started preparation after my college while working in Corporate Sector.

Union Public Service Commission

Finally, I gave my first attempt in 2015 but missed Mains cut off by 10 marks. I realized may be I am not that good in optional to score high marks. So I changed my optional. My score increased in optional from 175 to 311 in one year (Although I changed my optional as well). That led me to clear Civil Services in my second attempt in 2016 with 575 Rank. But I found that I seriously needed to improve my marks in General Studies and Essay, particularly in answer writing. I believe disciplined answer writing and continuous improvement on it turns out to be a game changer in this journey from Rank 575 to Rank 3.

Mains Strategy:

I believe this is most important stage in terms of scoring maximum marks as personality test may go or not go the way we want it to be. Lots of external factors came into picture at that stage. But trust me if you work really hard especially at Mains Stage, one can score good marks. Here I would be sharing what I did and how I approached Mains Examination, that turned out to be game changer in my final year.

Before moving forward, I would like to highlight that one should try to chalk out one's own strategy as each one of us is unique. Try to see your own strengths and weaknesses, build your own study plan accordingly. Here, I would be sharing what worked with me and what I feel is important to do at Mains Stage.

This is the stage where you need both, to be persistent in your answer writing and also be smart to know how to study a particular topic in the syllabus that I have learnt during my journey. It changed my approach towards Mains tremendously.

Firstly we will talk about Art of Answer Writing

I believe everybody knows the importance of answer writing at Mains. At the end of the day, one would be evaluated not on how much he knows but on how good he/she wrote an answer and expressed himself/herself best in those 150-200 words.

This is the stage where hard
