THE INDIAN REPUBLIC 70 YEARS AND COUNTING

Manindra N Thakur

This year the Indian Republic turns seventy. Contrary to the doubts that the world had, at the time of our independence, India has emerged as one of the most vibrant democratic Republics. Seventy years back as a newly independent country, we were facing several challenges. Our economy was badly affected by colonial exploitation, our society was fractured due to divide and rule policy of the colonial power, our common heritage was broken into two nations unleashing unprecedented violence and a wounded history, and above all, India as a society was suffering from huge inferiority complex. Now, after seventy years of our independence, we stand as a strong nation with a global economy, ready to challenge the so-called first world; a vibrant democracy with the universal adult franchise; a country supplying a huge number of software professionals to the world and so on and so forth. We are one of the youngest countries of the world indicating that the future is ours, confident to emerge as a new superpower. It is not a small journey. India has written a success story with great difficulties and by innovatively meeting a number of challenges.

This is a time to celebrate our achievements, however, this also is the time to be concerned about the trials that we are facing today in order to protect our democracy.

The first and the foremost challenge before India was to write a constitution. India as a political entity was very different in the pre-modern period and it was witnessing a transition from colonialism to an independent nation. Simultaneously, it was also facing a transition pre-modern to a modern society. In these processes, our founding fathers played their role very well. It seems they had a kind of divine consciousness as they were able to visualize a new India free from the vices of colonialism and feudalism. The Constituent Assembly debates are good evidence of their extraordinary commitment to the idea of universal human liberation, instead of narrow parochial viewpoint. Consequently, the constitution they produced is not only a document of rules and regulations governing our nation-state but also one of the most radical documents capable of transforming India into a just and egalitarian society. This is a precious document that India has gifted to its own people and to the people of the world. There is no doubt that for the last seventy years our constitution has stood firm on the test of time, however, we have not been able to take it to the mass consciousness as yet. The challenge ahead is to make it a household text, everyone treating it as a sacred text to be read and followed with some respect. India has a great tradition of communicating complicated philosophies and values through simple stories and parables. Can we do a similar experiment with our constitution, which is a complex legal document? In other words, we need to make constitutional morality a common sense of the Indian people through our great tradition of storytelling.

The second major challenge we faced was that of the economy as colonialism destroyed all the advantages we had in the pre-colonial period when we used to have a bigger

REPUBLIC AND THE YOUTH

Dr. Sanjay Kumar

Since we are growing older as an independent country, the role of younger people in the nation-building is becoming more important. With over 60 per cent of our citizens below the age of 35 and half of its population below 25 years of age, it is the youth of the country that will determine the direction of the nation. According to a Bloomberg News report, India would have the world's largest workforce by 2027, with about a billion people aged between 15-64. It is this population, who would have all the responsibility of driving our Nation both within and outside the country. While we are celebrating 70th Republic Day this year, youth of the country must acknowledge the fact that our ancestors fought bravely against the British Rulers and gifted us an independent country. Therefore, it is now the turn of young people to shape the country in a way that it fulfils their aspiration. It also firmly holds the principles of the Constitution of India. With over 1.3 billion population and uneven development of different regions in the country, the future India has tough battles ahead. First, they have to find space for their own aspirations. Secondly, they need to contribute towards the development of the country. To Gandhi, the youth are the agents of social change. They have the capacity to establish an ideal society based on the immortal principles of truth and nonviolence. The youth of today should fight against corruption both in personal and public life, develop a strong sense of volunteerism and practice tolerance in order to continue with the glory of the Republic of India.

In a journey to explore potential of own self and contributing to the development of the country, the youth of today should be following the path, which were lived and prescribed by the founding fathers of the freedom movement and the constitution. We all tend to refer to personalities from the past and the present in order to learn best practices for our own lives. Until now, our heroes have been the leaders of freedom movement or those who served the Nation after the independence as scientists, sportspersons, presidents, prime

BROTHERS AND SISTERS

Of the many things I wish to tell you, I have chosen six for today, for I must finish in 15 minutes. I notice that we are beginning a little late, which is wrong. Sushila has gone to Bahawalpur, to see the refugees still stranded there. She has no other mission. Mr. Leslie Cross of the Friends' Service has gone with her. My idea was that someone from the Friends' Unit should go and observe the conditions of refugees there and report to me. There was no proposal for Sushila to go. But when she heard about the plan she suggested that she be permitted to accompany Mr. Cross. She has known him ever since she went to Noakhali. She is an efficient doctor and she belongs to the Gujrat district in the Punjab. She too has suffered a good deal. She had a large property which she has lost. But her heart has not become poisoned. She said it would help if she went because she could speak Punjabi, Hindustani, Urdu and English and could be of use to Mr. Cross. I was delighted. There are of course hazards but she said she was not afraid. Had she been afraid she would not have gone to work in Noakhali. Many people who live in the Punjab have been completely ruined in every way. At least she can still find food and other provisions. I consulted Mr. Cross and he welcomed the idea. He said she could act as an interpreter. He is from the Red Cross. The function of the Red Cross is to provide medical relief to war victims. Whether Dr. Sushila went with Mr. Cross or Mr. Cross went with Sushila is a complicated question but they are friends and like each other. They have gone to render service and not to make money. They will observe and give me a report of what they see. The Nawab keeps writing to me. After I have the report from Mr. Cross and Sushila Nayyar I shall tell you more about the matter.

Some people, perhaps forty of them, from Bannu had come to me. They have suffered hardships no doubt but they are able to walk. Some had injured fingers, some had other wounds on other parts of the body. I saw them just now and told them to explain everything to Brijkrishna. They were all respectable men. They must have been full of anger but they accepted my advice. One of them-I did not ask whether he was a refugee-said I had done enough harm already and that I should stop and disappear from the scene. He did not care whether I was a mahatma. I asked him where he wanted me to go. He said that I might go to the Himalayas. I had to rebuke him. He is not as old as I am and is stronger. But I could not afford to become nervous. I asked why I should go to the Himalayas merely because he wished it, when there were many who wanted me to stay. There are many who praise me and there are others who abuse me. What am I to do? I can only do as God bids. You may say that you do not believe in God. But then you must allow me to go my way. God is the help of the afflicted. But an afflicted person is not God. When I claim that every woman is my own sister or daughter, then her suffering becomes my suffering. Why do you presume that I do not understand the sufferings of the refugees? Why do you presume that because I am a friend of Muslims I am an enemy of Hindus and Sikhs? I cannot run away because anyone wants me to run away. I have not taken to service at anyone's bidding. I have become what I have become at the bidding of God. God will do what He wills. He may take me away. I shall not find peace by going to the Himalayas. I want to find peace in the midst of turmoil or I want to die in the turmoil. My Himalayas are here.

I keep receiving complaints about the refugees. They are given food and drink and clothing and they are helped in every possible way. But they do not want to work. I have said that if the refugees want to end their sufferings, if they want to convert suffering into happiness and serve India and serve themselves, they must not shirk work. A refugee has no right to live comfortably without working. The Gita says: "Eat only after you have performed yajna." Eat what remains after the yajna. This has not been said only for me but also for you and all others. It applies also to the refugees. Even if a millionaire eats and does not work, he is a burden on the earth. Of course one can understand if you are a cripple, or if you are blind or too old. But a robust man has no excuse for not working. Let those who are strong of body clean lavatories in the camp; let them spin, let them do any other work that comes to hand. Let them teach their boys.

Someone came to see me today. I forget his name. He mentioned peasants. I said if I had my way our Governor-General would be a peasant; our Prime Minister would be a peasant. In my childhood I learnt a poem which says "O farmer, you are the king, the master of the whole world." What would we eat if the peasant did not produce food? But today we have made him a slave. What can a peasant do? Must he acquire academic degrees such as B.A. and M.A.? If he does that he will be ruined. He will be no more good for wielding the pickaxe. If the man who produced foodgrain out of the earth becomes our Chief, our Prime Minister, the face of India will change. There is a scarcity of food in Madras. A representative of the Madras Government had come here to plead with Shri Jairamdas that he should make foodgrain available for Madras. This attitude of the people of Madras saddens me. I want to point out to them that they can find enough things to eat in their own province such as groundnut, coconut and various other things. They also have plenty of fish which most of them take. What need is there for them to go out and beg? It is not right for them to insist on rice and that too polished rice which has all its food value removed or to insist on wheat in place of rice. They can mix groundnut flour or coconut flour with rice flour and thus keep the wolf from the door. What they need is self-confidence and dedication. I know the people of Madras quite well. I had with me in South Africa people drawn from all the linguistic areas of the Province. During the satyagraha march they were given a pound and a half of bread and an ounce of sugar each day. But they surprised me when on our striking camp they would pick out some edible greens or some other thing and cook it singing away in great delight. How can such resourceful people ever feel so helpless? True we were all coolies. But then in honest work lies our freedom and the satisfaction of all our basic needs.

WHAT TO DO IN THE LAST MONTH BEFORE THE BOARD EXAMS?

www.Jobriya.com

Rruchi Shrimalli

The CBSE Board Exams for Class 12 are due to start on February 15, 2019 while the ISC board exams for Class 12 students will start on February 4, 2019. The examinations of various other boards will also start round this time. With the board exams so near, it is time to get the grip of the situation and put in every ounce of effort to boost your board exam results. Here is some advice to keep you sane and focused during this period:

Knowledge is Power

It is important to keep abreast of the changes in the board exam pattern and tweak your preparation strategy accordingly. Here are some of the news highlights for those who are all set to sit for their board exams this year:

◆ CBSE has changed the patterns of the Section A (Reading section) of its English-Core exam question paper.

Till 2018, the section used to have three passages:

- ◆ Two passages of 1100-1200 words each, and
- ◆ One passage of 400-500 words.

The type of questions based on these passages included:

- ◆ 6 MCQs for 1 mark each,
- ◆ 16 Very Short Answer type questions (including 1 on Vocabulary) for 1 mark each,
- ◆ 1 Short Answer type question for 3 marks, and
- ◆ 1 Long Answer type question for 5 marks.

In 2019 Class 12 board exam, the CBSE question paper will only have two passages:

- ◆ Passage 1 of 800-900 words, and
- ◆ Passage 2 of 400-500 words.

The type of questions asked on the basis of Passage 1 will include:

- ◆ 5 MCQs for 1 mark each,
- ◆ 9 Very Short Answer type questions (including 3 on Vocabulary) for 1 mark each, and
- ◆ 3 Short Answer type questions for 3 marks each.

The type of questions asked on the basis of Passage 2 will include 2 Long Answer type questions for 5 marks each.

Hence, the total number of questions in Section A will be reduced from 24 to 19. The total marks of the section will remain 30 though.

One can check the sample question paper (and its marking scheme) for the 2019 English Core Exam on the CBSE website at http://cbseacademic.nic.in/web_material/Notifications/2018/30_MS_Eng_Core.pdf

The CBSE English Core exam for Class 12 is scheduled to be held on March 2, 2019.

◆ CBSE will allow Computer Science students to attempt questions on Python as a programming language.

Earlier, CBSE had replaced Python with C++ as the programming language in the Class 11 and 12 Computer Science syllabus. Yet, many schools ignored the directive and continued teaching Python to the students. Hence, for this year, CBSE question paper for Computer Science will include questions on both C++ and Python. Students can attempt questions on any one programming language.

The students will have to indicate their choice of programming language on the title page of the question paper - and do the questions on it.

◆ CBSE to offer more choices in both Class 10 and Class 12 board exams this year.

Till 2018, the CBSE question papers only allowed you to choose which questions to answer in the Long Answer type questions. From 2019, you will be able to choose questions in both Short Answer and Long Answer type questions for some of the subjects.

It is said that the number of choices will be increased by as much as 33% in all the sections of the question paper and for each type of questions it will include. The subjects which will have more choices this year include:

◆ BSE Odisha is introducing changes in its HSC (High School Certificate) Exam 2019

Students who are going to sit for the high school exam (or Class 10 exam) from the Odisha state board need to know about the changes that have been introduced this year. Now, the students have to obtain at least 15 marks in the subjective and objective papers separately to pass the exams.

This year, the Odisha state board has also introduced changes in the objective part of the question papers. Instead of three Objective set of questions, the paper will now have four parallel set of questions.

In the Social Science and General Science papers, the marking scheme has also been changed from 10 and 5 marks pattern to the 7 and 8 marks marking pattern.

◆ CISCE will introduce Compartmental Exams for both ISC and ICSE students this year.

In a move to make its board exams more student-friendly, the CISCE has announced that it will allow both Class 10 and Class 12 students who fail their exams to take one compartmental exam a year and try to redeem their status. The compartmental exams will be held in July 2019.

From 2019 onwards, the CISCE will also make all the exam-related process online. It means that you can find your admission cards, customised timetables online. The mark sheets for board exam students from this year will not only include subject-wise marks but also paper-wise marks for English, Science, History, Geography and Civics.

Divide Your Preparation Period into Three Phases

1. In the First Phase, focus on the Core Content.

When you have less than a month in hand to prepare for your exams, the only strategy that works is to focus on the core content for the first few days. This is what you need to learn to pass the exams. For example, in Physics, there are theorems you need to prove. If you understand them and learn to apply them, you will be able to pass the exam.

You can also solve the last years' papers and the sample papers - and analyse them. Read through at least 3-5 solved previous year question papers and model papers and see what type of questions have been asked. You may also want to make a note of which topics have been asked most often.

You may also seek help from your teachers and friends who study all around the year and find the important topics for each subject you have to study. Topics that can fetch you more marks need to be studied first.

2. In the Second Phase, solve as many questions as you can.

Once you have read the major portions of your board exam syllabus, solve the questions related to the topics you consider most important. Also solve previous years' question papers. It will help you identify topics which you need to re-visit and the topics which you are good and can skip for now.

Solving the question papers give you two-fold benefits. On one hand, it helps you with your revision as you try and recall what you have learned during the exam; and on the other hand, it gives you confidence that you will at least be able to do some questions on the big day.

Once you know which topics you are weak in, revise them once more and re-do the question paper. In the end, compare your answers with the ones given in the given solutions. You will find many websites that offer step-by-step solution to the previous years' question papers of the board exams. These solutions may help you find some tips and tricks that you can use on the actual day of the exam. Once you read about these tips, try and use them in the next paper you solve, so that you can remember them when you need them.

3. In the Third Phase, revise in the first-half part and study for the first two exams in the second-half part.

As you draw closer to your board exams, it is time for the power play. For the first half of the third phase, revise all that you've covered in the first two phases. Go through the theorems, formulas, grammatical rules and the main points of the chapters. Many sites offer free revision notes and mind maps that you can use at this time.

In the second half of the third phase, focus on the first and second exams. Revise everything and go through the solved examples once more. During this phase, devote half the day to the first exam and then devote the other half of the day to the second exam.

Luckily, board exams offer you one or two-day breaks between any two exams. Check your exam schedule - and prepare for those exams first that are falling on consecutive days or have less in-between days.

→ Do not think too much. Just do what you can do. This is not the time to let the stress debilitate your preparation process.

How to remember what you learn?

Most students keep reading and re-reading books and revision notes. However, scientific studies prove that this is not the best method to remember something.

When you read a thing for the first time, you glean a major portion of it and understand most of its points. However, when you read it for the second time, you tend to study it less deeply as you think you reason that you already know what is there. It means that though you are reading it, you are not gaining much from it. There are still gaps in your learning but your mind veils those gaps for you and you fail to gain much from the process.

Hundreds of years ago, Aristotle had shared how to strengthen your memory. He said that when we recall something repeatedly, we remember it more. So, instead of reading, retrieving the information you already have is more important when it comes to boosting your performance in the exams.

share in the world trade. The Indian economy was made subservient to the economy of the colonial power resulting in the drain of wealth from our country. The regimes after regimes in India worked towards rebuilding the economy by introducing modern science and technology. The developmental vision of the generations of farsighted political leaders committed bureaucracy, competent technocrats contributed immensely towards building the economy. We developed industries, transports, communication systems, space technology, institutions of higher learning, institutes of technology, Institutes of medical sciences and research institutes in numerous fields of knowledge. All this together transformed India from a weak economy to global power. We have now become one of the fastest growing economy and thanks to our financial institutions that despite major depression in the world we continued growing.

The third question before the newly independent nation was how to handle its neighbours, particularly China and Pakistan. China had the ambition to grow as a superpower and it was looking forward to dominating the region. After the partition, Pakistan started treating India as an enemy and despite all efforts to have cordial brotherly relations, we failed drastically. India as a nation emerging out of anti-colonial struggle was still following idealist philosophy even in the international relations, whereas its difficult neighbours were hardcore realists. India was still adhering to the much-celebrated policy of Panchsheel with five elements: mutual respect for each other's territorial integrity and sovereignty, mutual non-aggression, mutual non-interference in each other's internal affairs, equality and cooperation for mutual benefit and peaceful co-existence. India was so engulfed in the euphoria of the humanitarian ideals of the freedom struggle that it did not realize the wrong intentions of the neighbours, consequently, it had to suffer several wars. Fortunately, despite our commitment to peace, were not unprepared for war and we managed to convince our neighbours that we are strong enough to protect our boundaries. Now, with our growing strength, the neighbouring countries are becoming insecure. To handle them India needs to develop a well worked out diplomacy to manage the regional politics. We have growing trade relations with China, yet, we faced a serious challenge at Doklam due to China's aggressive border policy. We had to suffer in Kargil as Pakistan started an undeclared war. Nepal keeps threatening to get closer to China if India fails to provide sufficient help. Despite all this, India has to maintain peace in the region so that it could avoid any major involvement in war again. Avoiding war is absolutely necessary for maintaining the pace of economic development India has achieved in the last several decades. And India has played its game well. Over the decades it has convinced its neighbours that it has no expansionist motives and by maintaining peace in the region they would be benefitted from India's growth.

As we know the pre-modern society in India was based on several forms of hierarchy and for the founding fathers who were committed to egalitarianism, it was a big challenge. The Constituent Assembly debates are evidence of high ethical grounds of the vantage point from where they were thinking for a future India. For the caste-based discrimination, they innovated an institutional arrangement that ensured social justice and in the last seventy years, we have achieved it to a great extent. The Indian polity has been responsive to the political demands from below and time and again it has improved upon the system of reservation. This policy has helped in secularizing the great middle class that Indian economy has produced in the last few decades. By now Indian middle class constitutes of not only upper caste Hindus but also a fairly good number of people from different lower castes and minority communities. Formation of such a multi-caste and multicultural middle class has strengthened the nation by making the boundaries of these communities more porous.

There is no doubt that India has emerged as a strong economy, vibrant democracy, regional power and relatively more egalitarian society in the last seventy years. However, there are numerous challenges ahead that we have to face to maintain what we have achieved. We have a population advantage as the number of younger people is much more than many other countries. To take advantage of this young population we need to invest a lot in their education and health. The nation has to generate many more jobs to provide them with a livelihood. There has to be a massive investment in education so that they become better citizens and more productive human resources. Unless we provide them livelihood and proper education this advantage might turn into a big liability for the nation. In the past seventy years, state-funded public education has played a crucial role in developing a quality human resource ready to work anywhere in the world. The remarkable growth of the service sector in India is a consequence of this. The growth of private sector and its capacity to deliver quality education may be a welcome development, but in no way, it can substitute the public funding for education as it remains inaccessible for a large number of people. Similarly, with the growing population, India has to invest a lot in health care too. There has to be a sound public health care system to cater to the needy people. Again, there has been a tremendous growth of quality healthcare provisions in the private sector, but it is hardly accessible to the majority of the Indian population. No doubt, making the provision of government-aided health insurance is a step towards health security, however, it could not be a substitute for a properly functioning public health care system.

Despite the fact that we have survived the major global economic crisis and maintained the growth rate to some extent, we cannot say with confidence that our economy is immune from falling into the trap. The institutions that were built to look after the health of the economy just after independence, need major reforms. However, the reforms should not be against the basic ideas of the founding fathers documented in the preamble of the constitution. A more well thought out strategy needs to be developed to meet the challenges we are facing in contemporary times. One of the Constitution of India

India, also known as Bharat, is a Union of States. It is a Sovereign Socialist Secular Democratic Republic with a parliamentary system of government. The Republic is governed in terms of the Constitution of India which was adopted by the Constituent Assembly on 26th November, 1949 and came into force on 26th January, 1950. The Constitution provides for a Parliamentary form of government which is federal in structure with certain unitary features. The constitutional head of the Executive of the Union is the President. As per Article 79 of the Constitution of India, the council of the Parliament of the Union consists of the President and two Houses known as the Council of States (Rajya Sabha) and the House of the People (Lok Sabha). Article 74(1) of the Constitution provides that there shall be a Council of Ministers with the Prime Minister as its head to aid and advise the President, who shall exercise his/her functions in accordance to the advice. The real executive power is thus vested in the Council of Ministers with the Prime Minister as its head.

major issues India is confronting is that of the worsening conditions of the farmers. Our agriculture sector is bleeding as the problem of increasing number of farmers' suicide has defied any solution. No doubt, regimes are adopting the policy of loan waiver for the farmers, one would agree, it is hardly a long term solution. On the one hand, the growing input cost in agriculture has made it a capital intensive activity and on the other hand, market instability and low cost of the product have produced a deep crisis for them. There has to be a policy intervention for farm management to increase their income.

One of the major challenges our democracy is facing at seventy is the dilemma between the individual and the community rights. The founding fathers probably visualized that in decades to come the grip of the community on the individual would be replaced by the imagination of the broader idea of citizenship. At least the irrational community rules would be rejected by the people themselves once they are enlightened and start thinking more rationally. However, this process has not gone too far as every other day there is a news about atrocious community rules being implemented. In fact, over the years there seems to be a resurgence of identity-based politics and under its influence people instead of evaluating these community laws rationally tend to be emotional about them. As we know, Indian national movement was deeply concerned about these irrational community rules, they are mostly based on primordial commitments. The leaders of the Indian freedom struggle introduced several socio-religious reform movements to overcome this. However, after independence, most of them got relegated to the background as we thought the modern welfare state would take over the responsibility of reforming our social practices. We know that it could not happen. Probably, in decades to come, these communities have to take this social responsibility of reforming themselves from within.

In sum, India at seventy is full of energy and new promises. Our people are ready to take the nation ahead in the new world where the axis of power is shifting towards Asia. India as a nation is growing stronger every day to play a pivotal role in this process. Despite all the limitations, Indian democracy has emerged as one of the most vibrant democracies in the world and for this Indian people must be congratulated. The new generation of Indians is ready to carry forward the dreams of the founding fathers who spend their lives struggling for a free egalitarian society. There are reasons to hope that in times to come India would emerge as an exemplar for the democracies across the world.--

Keeping this in mind, solving questions at the end of the exam, solving sample papers, using flash cards, taking quiz, and discussing a topic with your peers are some of the best ways to learn the things that need to be memorised.

Once you take a test or solve a question, find the answers in the study material you have. Finding the answers will help you focus on the relevant portion of the text. This will help you cement the information you have and you will never forget it again.

How to focus for longer number of hours?

Many students find it difficult to focus for a stretch of time. They sit with the books but fail to learn as their mind goes blank for a while. Here are some tips to help you study for a longer duration without losing your concentration:

- ◆ If there are www.jobmya.com study table which you do not need at the time, remove them immediately. Mobile phones, wires, games, books that are not related to what you are studying - all vie for your attention and cause distraction. So, de-clutter your study desk and organise your study room to be able to concentrate on your studies better.

- ◆ Coffee (or any form of caffeine) raises your alertness for some time but then, your concentration comes crashing down in such a manner that it becomes impossible to sit down to study again. Foods with high glycemic index (GI) or more carbohydrates make you feel full but they can easily put you to sleep. Such foods include white rice, white bread, potatoes, pizza, burger, candies, cookies, cakes and cold drinks. If you want to study for longer hours, you need to avoid them.

- ◆ On the other hand, foods with more proteins and fibers and lower GI levels keep you energetic and alert for a longer duration of time. These include fruits, nuts, low-skimmed milk and whole grain foods like muesli and oats. Since these foods make you feel hungrier early, it is better to take small meals every two to three hours.
- ◆ Take a yellow-coloured chart and write on it, why you need to study. It might be your career goals, the college you want to get into, make your parents and family proud of you, or perhaps, marry a boy or girl you like. It can be anything that can keep you motivated. Yellow is the colour of happiness. Put this chart up in front of your study desk and whenever you feel dull, look at the reason why you need to study. This will fill you up with a new sense of energy and vigour.

ministers and so on and so forth. The generation until now, have been playing a crucial role in the Nation-building. But in order to continue growing in a better shape, the youth of today have the responsibility to perform national duties and become the stars of tomorrow. For the youth of today, their time in History is now. It all depends on their contribution and selfless service to the nation. They must gain economically to sustain themselves and their family. However, there are ample opportunities in our country where they contribute to help others and to the society.

Those who are aiming to get into the government service, would definitely get immense opportunity to serve the nation in different ways. But that percentage would be very small. Different government agencies offer about 3% of jobs that are formal. So rest of the workforce in India is either engaged in formal private sector, which is estimated to be around another 3 % and rest 94% is part of the large informal sector, which does not offer social security or regular tenure. As larger part of the youth will have to find their career in the informal sector, their own struggle to survive and simultaneously serve the nation through some voluntary engagement would always be a challenge.

Those who are going to join the government service should always adhere to deliver their duties with integrity and with a feeling that they are directly engaged in serving the nation. They must feel fortunate and privileged. They need to deal with the issue of corruption, which is so deep rooted in our system. It is the youth of the country, who come out of college as a non-corrupt and pious mind and have to stick to the simple lifestyle so that they could fulfil their desires within their 'legitimate income'. As a society, we tend to copy the lifestyles of westerners and hence we tend to forget the difference between 'need' and 'want'. It is the 'want' of different sorts that make us deviant and we start falling into the trap of mangling resources by illegal means. The youth of today would have to understand that the corruption is one of the biggest enemies of our nation and it requires deep cleansing in order to strengthen our nation.

It is not fair to say that the corruption only exists in the public sector. The private sector or the businesses also adopt corrupt means to enter into unethical or out-of-turn deals to make quick money. Hence it is important for the younger people in our country to begin with self-discipline in managing their resources, which essentially involves living as per their earnings. There is a strong element of ethics needed in people especially among the youth so that they could not only stop corruption around them but also do not get engaged in any way. Youth working in both private and public sector would have a major role in wiping away this evil for the country.

The other most important contribution youth can make is by giving back to the society and the country at large. It is the sense of volunteerism which needs to be strengthened and continued. History of volunteerism can be traced back to ancient times but it became more prominent in India during pre-independence movement, which continued very strongly in post-independence phase as well. Volunteerism can be witnessed in different parts of the country during social and religious events and also during the natural disasters. However, there is no need to restrict our engagement to such occasions as we can constantly be engaged in nation building by contributing our time and energy. We should inculcate the sense of volunteerism among the youth at early stage at the school and college level so that each individual develops the sense of responsibility in the nation building process. There is still a large population, which lives below the poverty line and there is a huge population that needs to be educated well before they enter into the labour force. The combination of poverty and illiteracy or poor quality of education leave the majority of population behind those who are faring well on these two counts because of better resources and opportunities. There is a strong need to create level-playing field in many thematic areas in our country where young people can contribute a lot. Education can be one of such need where they can contribute their time to help others.

In our Preamble to the Constitution of India, as citizens, we solemnly resolved to constitute India into a country that would secure for all its citizens equality of status and of opportunity. We should not be leaving all these responsibilities to the government. Young people should find out creative ways to at least educate children around them who need supplementary support or go to government schools and colleges and run extra-curricular activities of their expertise and interest. Those who are well-educated or on right track of their career can choose to serve the nation by sparing few hours in a week. Whatever voluntary work we do, it teaches us many life lessons, which we usually do not get to learn in the classroom and professional settings. Today, many young people contribute a lot in the development of underprivileged people but the impact would be at a much higher scale if the call for volunteerism become a national movement among the youth. We cannot even imagine the ripple effect of such movement. Education is one indicative area but they can choose from wide range of themes such as sports, career-counselling and guidance, environmental education, vocational training, gender values, teachings around ethics etc to name a few. One youth can easily impact the lives of another 5 youth to begin with and then the numbers can grow faster once they get into the process.

Another most important part of the Preamble, which the youth must adopt as their guiding principle of life is Fraternity assuring the dignity of the individual and the unity and integrity of the Nation. The beauty of Indian society is its diversity and that offers us learning from diverse cultures and values that we have been able to develop and retain over the years. It is the duty of every citizen especially youth to be open and tolerant about the value system of different religious and cultural groups. This again help us build our own personality, which mirrors in every aspect of life. It can affect our growth as a person and a professional. We should all adhere to the principles, which the founding fathers of the constitution laid while drafting the constitution. Unity and integrity is essential for human progress and the nation-building. Any distortion deviates the energy of youth and it affects them the most as they are the ones who are going to bear the cost of all ill-effects. They are going to be the beneficiary of all the good efforts that they make today.

We all are fortunate to be born in a country like India. The youth of today have immense energy and the potential to set things in a right perspective and in the right direction. What they need to develop and maintain are some ideals and values for themselves and for our beautiful motherland. They must develop some ideals that are higher than their own material accomplishments. That is the love for their country and for their brothers and sisters who are left behind on the ladder of development. Let us congratulate ourselves and pay deep gratitude towards the founding fathers of our Constitution on the occasion of 70th Republic Day. Let the youth of this country take us towards a better India.
