ONLINE DISTANCE LEARNING COURSES

Dr. Giriraj Halkar

Every child has right to get good education. Education helps to build a positive character. Education is the process for acquiring knowledge, skills, values and attitude. The major purpose of education is to let children grow into productive citizens who use their knowledge, talents, and learning skills to sustain themselves in society and contribute to the development of the nation. Rising costs and strict admission requirements make traditional higher education inaccessible for many students. MOOCs (Massive Open Online Courses) are providing access to world-class education to any person irrespective of age and qualification. It opens up a world of possibilities. More and more students now opt for a digital online courses. Open and free learning resources are rich and popular. Why then MOOCs are so well received? MOOCs are the next big thing in the technological development of higher education. These are part of emerging higher education technology.

The term "MOOC" was coined in 2008 by Canadian academician named David Cormier whereas first MOOC was taught by George Siemens and Stephen Downes in University of Manitoba, Canada where a class of 25 regular students was extended online to teach 1500 students. MOOCs are online courses, usually produced by colleges or universities. These courses are open to anyone who wants to take them for free (or sometimes for a small fee, if the student wants a certificate saying they have passed the class with a certain grade). Because they are open and free, the most popular of these courses often attract thousands of students from all over the world-hence the "massive" part of the name. Most MOOCs have several parts, which may include video lectures, readings, computer-graded assignments or quizzes, discussions with other students on a forum, or peer-graded assignments. MOOCs are different from mere video lecture series because students take them concurrently, not just at their own paces-all students start at the same time and have assignments due at the same time so that they can discuss the content and get help from other students. MOOCs started gaining popularity around 2012, although they existed several years earlier. There are now a number of platforms partnering with colleges and universities to produce MOOCs, but the most well-known are Coursera, EdX, and Udacity.

Secondly, students have more flexibility in their workload, as they are able to choose when to watch the recorded video lectures as opposed to having to be online during live lectures. They can also choose whether or not to complete assignments without worrying about being graded, skipping those that reinforce concepts or skills they are already familiar with and putting that time toward higher-quality work on assignments that actually advance their understanding of the subject matter. This flexibility makes MOOCs a better choice for people with already busy schedules, like full-time workers and students with dependents.

- On the Whole, MOOCs can be said as;
- M- Massive focused on scalability, focused on Community and Connections
 - O- Open registration, Content, No charges, Affordable
 - O- Online Cohort, real time interaction

Source: PHD Research Bureau, compiled from Union Budget 2019-20 Speech, Government of India

The 10 points vision including achieving minimum government maximum governance; pollution-free India; digitization in every sector; state of art physical and social infrastructure; self-sufficiency and export of food-grains, pulses, oilseeds, fruits and vegetables; a healthy society with well-nourished women & children, safety of citizens; and emphasis on MSMEs, Start-ups, defence manufacturing, automobiles, among others, under Make in India would strengthen the growth story of the Indian economy and increase its presence in the international economic arena as the country has potential to become a growth engine of World economy.

Continuous focus on infrastructure development such as Railway modernization, infrastructure connectivity through the projects such as industrial corridors, Bharatmala, etc., the target of building 1.95 crore houses in the second phase of PMAY-Gramin, additional tax benefits for first time home buyer, a further tax deduction of Rs. 1.5 lakhs for interest paid on housing loans sanctioned in the current fiscal year upto 31st March, 2020 are the steps toward revitalising the growth in the short term and strengthening in the medium to long term to establish a strong and sustainable growth trajectory.

Further, the proposal to invest Rs 100 lakh crore in infrastructure over the next 5 years is highly encouraging; it will put India's economic growth on a high road. The multiplier effect of infrastructure investments would give a big push to the potential growth areas of the economy with millions of new employment opportunities for the growing young workforce.

The government has shown its priority of strategic disinvestment of select central public sector enterprises (CPSEs), other than Air India, in view of the current macroeconomic parameters. The disinvestment target of the government has been increased to a little over one lakh crore for FY2010 from Rs 90,000 announced in the interim budget. This will help government to boost its revenue and use it in development of infrastructure, public goods and socio-economic development of overall economy.

In continuation of the phased reduction in the corporate taxes by the government, the announcement of lowering of tax rates to 25% for companies with annual turnover of less than Rs 400 crores would enhance the sentiments of the businesses and strengthen the growth of MSMEs with new possibilities for expansion and deployment of more workforces in their respective factories. This reduction was proposed by the industry since the last many years. It will cover and benefit 99.3 percent of the companies and will enhance business sentiments and production possibility frontiers in the economy.

The labour laws in India have been relatively stringent and one of the biggest hurdles for entrepreneurs. The industry had been propounding for flexibility in labour laws since the last many years. The proposal to streamline multiple labour laws into a set of four labour codes is inspiring as simplification of labour laws would reduce the compliances for the industry particularly for the MSMEs and provide more room for deployment of workforce in the factories. This would result in making business environment more conducive and promote ease of doing business.

The Budget has focused on attracting foreign investors to increase capital flows with the easing of local sourcing norms for FDI in Single Brand Retail and 100% Foreign Direct Investment (FDI) permitted for insurance intermediaries. The announcement to merge NRI portfolio route with foreign portfolio investment is appreciable as it would make NRI investments in India easier. Further, the decision to organise global investor's meet in the country is investment growth provoking as it would expand the global players' investments in India.

MSMEs are the potential growth engine of the Indian economy. The government has very rightly diagnosed the importance of MSMEs in the economy; the announcement of 2% interest subvention for all GST registered MSMEs on fresh or incremental loans and creation of payment platform for MSMEs would facilitate them in getting better access to credit and expansion in business activities.

The allocation of Rs. 70,000 crore for the PSU bank recapitalization will enhance the health of the PSU bank and push up the pace of lending in the economy, by increasing the sentiments for credit availability. Various praise-worthy announcements such as solving the issue of 'Angel Tax' by introducing e-verification, speedy assessments of start-ups and redressal of their grievances and relaxing some of the conditions for carry forward and set-off of losses for start-ups would strengthen the start-up campaign in the economy.

The focus on encouraging PPP in unleashing faster development and completion of tracks, rolling stock manufacturing and delivery of passenger freight services in railways would not only promote industrial growth but also provide better service delivery to masses.

The prime focus to affordable housing in this budget as alignment of the definition of affordable housing in the Income-tax Act with the GST Acts and providing the limit on cost of the house at Rs. 45 lakh in line with the definition in the GST Acts would create demand in the housing and construction sector activity.

In addition, the usage of land parcels held by Central Ministries and Central Public Sector Enterprises all across the country for public infrastructure and affordable housing is encouraging and growth provoking. The additional income tax deduction of Rs. 1.5 lakh on interest paid on loans taken to buy electric vehicles and additional deduction of up to Rs 1,50,000/- for interest paid on loans borrowed up to 31st March, 2020 for purchase of an affordable house valued up to Rs 45 lakh are highly beneficial for middle class buyers.

The Budget has a strong synergy for the new education policy and made comprehensive allocation of Rs. 400 crore for FY2019-20 to transform education system with the focus on learning outcomes which will play a big role in revising the current education level. Further, the Study in India campaign of the government would help make India move towards being a global hub of education for the foreign students, as the students would get premium education at affordable rates. This would also benefit in the development of infrastructure, education level, facilities available in the top institutions of India.

The Budget announced to expand the Women SHG interest subvention programme to all districts and made provisions for overdraft of Rs. 5,000 to be given to verified women SHG member. These measures would strengthen women's role in the society, going forward.

Continuing with the thrust to government has very rightly focused on agriculture sector and increased the allocation of agriculture sector with a whopping 75% hike to Rs 1.5 thousand crores. Further, the government's decision to promote and encourage 'zero budget farming', also called 'going back to the roots', is highly inspiring. Zero budget farming means natural farming without using any credit and without the monetary purchase of inputs. Zero budget farming helps in reducing the cost of cultivation, enhance soil fertility, prevent environmental damage and all this without the use of money. Zero budget farming has already been implemented and tested in a few states and according to the government, this model is needed to be replicated in other states also, followed by whole country. This will, at a great extent, help reduce the problem of agriculture distress, as the farmers does not have to take expensive credit to buy the inputs and other raw material from the market. Zero budget farming would also create the scenario of self-reliance among the farmers, going forward.

Going ahead, there are certain things which needs to be addressed in the coming times to give a major thrust to spur economic growth trajectory of the country to the next level, such as introduction of agricultural marketing reforms, provision of adequate and efficient warehousing support within easy reach of villages, particularly for marginal farmers; educating farmers to adopt mechanized farming; minimising the wastages to less than 10% from the current level of 30 to 35%; increasing public investments in agriculture sector, modernizing agriculture along with technological reforms; and promoting food processing exports.

In a nutshell, the government aspires to make India a USD 5 trillion dollar economy, thorough focussed reforms and strategic investments in the most critical areas, such as infrastructure, digital economy, job creation, ease of doing business and kick-starting the virtuous cycle of investments. Overall, the Union Budget 2019-2020 is a balanced, pragmatic, welfare inducing budget and would rejuvenate the economic growth trajectory of the nation to build a New India.

New India where the economy will be in double digit growth trajectory, the manufacturing sector will be globally competitive, the agriculture sector will be sufficient to sustain the rising population and millions of jobs will be created for socio-economic development of the nation, income levels of the people will be growing exponentially, farmers' income will be doubled, taxation system will be simple, ease of doing business will become a reality and standards of living will improve.

The New India will be the dream India which will provide housing for all, education for all, easy access to medical and health facilities as well as better standards of living to the people. The New India will promise every citizen to realize his or her potential and contribute towards self, family and the country. New India will have numerous success stories to tell, demonstrate and sell to the world.

Massive Open Online Courses (MOOCs) are further divided into two categories;

Source-http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Massive_open_online_course#m cMOOCs: based on innovative or connectives leaning models that privilege collaboration as a form of active learning. Students in a cMOOC will work together to locate, evaluate, and contribute course content, uploading materials to the course using the learning platform. A cMOOC instructor or instructional team facilitates learning by finalizing, aggregating, and assessing the student's participant's contributions to the course.

xMOOCs: one the other hand, believe in the conventional approach where the courses are well-structured with pre-selected reading and reference materials.

Characteristics of MOOCs

MOOCs are the "online phenomenon gathering momentum over the past two years or so, a MOOC integrates the connectivity of social networking, the facilitation of a acknowledged expert in a field of study, and a collection of freely accessible online resources. Perhaps most importantly; however, a MOOC builds on the active engagement of several hundred to several thousand "students" who self-organize their participation according to learning goals, prior knowledge and skills, and common interests. Although it may share in some of the conventions of an ordinary course, such as a predefined timeline and weekly topics for consideration, a MOOC generally carries no fees, no prerequisites other than Internet access and interest, no predefined expectations for participation, and no formal accreditation" (McAuley et al., 2010)

If we see on their features, early MOOCs often emphasized open -access features, such as open licensing of content, structure and learning goals, to promote the reuse and remixing of resources. Some later MOOCs use closed licenses for their course materials while maintaining free access for students (wikipedia.org).

Some other important features of MOOCs are;

- They are commonly defined by signature characteristics that include; free courses, lectures formatted as short videos combined with formative quizzes which are easily accessible through technology devices that have internet connectivity (Danbiel, 2012).

- In most of the cases, MOOCs are either free or available at a very low cost for users. They can also be used by the users on smart mobile phones.
- They offer the flexibility of peer and self-assessments to contribute to a meaningful learning experience beside, the automated assessment (Duderstadt, 2012)
- They are more reliable as they are developed by eminent professors, educators and subject specialists.

MOOC Platforms - Indian Scenario

In India government has taken many initiatives to introduce e-information services like National Knowledge Network (NKN) which a state of the art multi-gigabit pan-India network for providing a high speed network, a back home for all knowledge related institutions in the country. Initially, the objectives were to provide open resources in terms of repositories and depositories, which were made accessible to the public. Some of the efforts in the direction started as National Digital Repository of IGNOU, Sakshat providing e-content, Shishya for 11th and 12th standards by CBSE board. The idea behind these projects was to make education reachable to many learners. Some of the names that fall in the path are Education and Research Network (ERNET) connecting various education institutions by providing network connectivity. Education Satellite (EDUSAT) a satellite launched for education in India. Consortium for Educational Communication (CEC), use the power of television to act as means of educational knowledge dissemination, Information and Library Network Centre (INFLIBNET) autonomous Inter-University Centre for connecting university libraries, also it has started several other programs. These all are the initiatives towards open education and education with Information technology still MOOC was out of their reach.

There are various notable institutions, both non-profit and commercial, that offer the courses in India with the help of MOOC providers. Few are mentioned below;

- NPTTEL : National Programme on Technology Enhanced Learning. It is a project funded by MHRD, initiated in 2003.
- MookIT : MookIT is a lightweight MOOC management system built entirely using open-source technologies by Indian Institute of Kanpur (IITK), in 2004.
- IIT Bombay X : IIT Bombay X is a non-profit MOOC platform developed by IIT Bombay using the open-source Platform Open edX, in 2014.
- SWAYAM : SWAYAM stands for 'Study Webs of Active Learning for Young Aspiring Minds' launched by the Ministry of Human Resource Development (MHRD).

Massive Open Online Courses (MOOC's) are witnessing a huge demand among the students, with majority of Indian students enrolling into foreign universities. MOOC can provide the Indian students an edge required to compete in the global market. It can be a highly fruitful arrangement for the learner, university and industry, which can contribute in transforming the face of the youth of our nation. This is not an end but just beginning of the discussion for the prospects of MOOC in India.

JOURNEY OF BANKING IN INDIA

Vijay Prakash Srivastava

Today having a bank branch around is an obvious thing for most of us. Whether we live in a city or a village, we can find a bank branch nearby. Now banking services are available at an affordable cost to everyone. But this was not the case till a few decades ago. In our country lot many changes have taken place since we got independence on 15 August 1947. Some changes have been big and some small. Banking is one area which had undergone maximum changes both in terms of reach and the services offered.

19th July this year marked the completion of 50 years of bank nationalization. This day in 1969, 14 big banks of the country having deposits over Rs 50 crore were nationalised by the government to serve better the needs of development of the economy in conformity with the national policy objectives. On 15th April 1980, six more private banks were nationalized.

Banking has an interesting history in India. The Bank of Hindostan was the first bank in the country, established in the year 1770. After that the General Bank of India was set up in the year 1786 but it failed after 5 years. The East India Company established Bank of Bengal, Bank of Bombay and Bank of Madras between 1806 and 1843 which used to be called Presidency banks. In 1920 all these three banks were consolidated into Imperial Bank of India. Allahabad Bank was the first bank to be established by Indian nationals followed by Punjab National Bank. Both these banks were established respectively in 1865 and 1894. Five more banks viz. Bank of India, Bank of Baroda, Canara Bank, Indian Bank and Bank of Mysore were established between 1906 and 1913. In order to organize banking function and activities government introduced Banking Companies Act in 1949 which was later converted to Banking Regulation Act. In 1955 government took the ownership of Imperial Bank of India asking it to offer extensive banking services all over the country.

Bank Nationalization: The first 14 banks to be nationalised included Central Bank of India, Punjab National Bank, Bank of India, Indian Bank, Dena Bank, United Commercial Bank, United Bank of India, Canara Bank, Allahabad Bank, Bank of Maharashtra, Corporation Bank, Indian Overseas Bank and Union Bank of India.

In the second phase Andhra Bank, Punjab & Sind Bank, Corporation Bank, New Bank of India, Oriental Bank of Commerce and Vijaya Bank were nationalised.

In 1993 New Bank of India

merged with Punjab National Bank.

All the big private banks were held by one industrial house or the other. As a result wealth and economic power of these banks were exercised by a few and the larger population was left from the advantages of banking system. It was also observed that growth of Indian commercial banking was extremely slow and restrictive. A common man hardly had anything to do with these banks. The lending policy of the banks was discriminatory. Mostly loans given by them were to large and medium sized industries and already established business firms. There was not enough control to ensure end use of loans and it was not unusual to find banks' money being used for anti-social purposes like hoarding, black marketing and speculation etc. All in all the banking system in the country was not in good shape and needed radical changes. In 1967 the idea of social control of banks was floated. Social control of banks was proposed to be the middle path between complete ownership of government and status quo. It meant greater participation of banks in the economy through state intervention. It was felt that banking can play a crucial role in social and economic development of the country, all it needs suitable policies and their effective implementation.

It was expected that with nationalization it would be able to increase revenue as the profit earned by banks will come to the government.

Government ownership also intended to provide security to depositor's money in banks. Adequate credit flow to farming and small scale industries to ensure development at grassroot level was expected.

Prior to bank nationalization commercial banks used to make indiscriminate lending. After nationalization in 1980, the banks were asked that a significant portion of bank loan is allocated to priority sector which includes agriculture, small scale industries, low cost housing etc. With passage of time the scope of priority sector was enlarged to include more activities.

Post nationalization maximum number of bank branches were opened at rural and semi urban centres which hitherto were devoid of formal banking set up. Such massive branch expansion has no parallels anywhere in the world.

Scheduled commercial banks in India developed banking habits in Common Indian citizens, encouraged them to put their savings in banks and offered them need based finance at reasonable rates. Poor and excluded population of the country found out that they can also approach banks.

Various government schemes were launched through these banks. Prominent among these schemes were Integrated Rural Development Programme (IRDP), Self-employment Scheme for Urban Poor (SEPUP), Self-employment Scheme for Educated Unemployed Youth (SEEUY), Differential Rate of Interest (DRI) etc. We're talking of early schemes. Of late many more schemes have been added which include Sukanya Samridhi Yojana, Mudra Yojana etc. www.Jobriya.in Regional Rural Banks: Considering that more than two third of Indian population lived in villages, government of the country felt that another layer of banks to cater specifically to rural areas was needed. Thus came the idea of Regional Rural Banks or Gramin Banks. An ordinance was promulgated on 26 September 1975 later to be replaced with Regional Rural Bank Act 1976 with an objective to ensure sufficient institutional credit for agriculture and other rural sectors. RRBs were established mainly to meet the credit requirements of small and marginal farmers, landless labourers, artisans etc. These were envisaged to be low cost financial intermediaries. RRBs were expected to carry local feel and familiarity with expertise of nationalised commercial banks. The first RRB, Prathma Bank came into existence on 2nd October 1975, birth anniversary of Mahatma Gandhi. Sponsor bank, central government and state governments are the stakeholders in a RRB. After restructurings there are now about 56 RRBs in the country.

Banking reforms: With a view to make Indian banking competitive and in tune with globally accepted practices, various reform measures were initiated. Initial reforms were related to administered structure of interest rates, reserve requirements and credit allocation to certain sectors. Except for certain specific classes, interest rates in the banking sector have been largely deregulated. To enhance efficiency and productivity of government banks they were exposed to private banks. Guidelines were issued for entry of new private banks and foreign banks were allowed more liberal entry. After 1993, many new private banks were set up. Foreign direct investment in private banking space was permitted up to 74 percent subject to conformity with other guidelines.

A number of measures were taken to enhance the transparency in banking system and strengthening regulatory standards. Disclosure norms were tightened too. Bank licencing policy was rationalised with enhanced freedom to individual banks in opening, closing and merging their branches.

On all important issues working groups were formed headed by eminent people. For example Committee on Financial Systems was headed by Shri M Narsimham, High Level Committee on Balance of Payments was chaired by Dr. C Rangrajan.

India has been associated with Basel Committee on Banking Supervision. With implementation of Basel II norms, commercial banks in our country have adopted globally accepted standardized approach for credit risk and basic indicator approach for operational risk. Now Reserve Bank of India wants Indian Banks to ensure implementation of Basel III norms by March 2020.

The above reforms have wide positive impact on the Indian banking sector. The present capital adequacy of Indian banks is comparable to those at international level. Profitability of banks and return of assets improved. By optimising manpower costs banks could achieve per employee higher productivity.

Technology in banks: The biggest transition Indian banking sector has been is the advent of technology. Moving from Advanced Electronic Ledger posting machines, banks could successfully adopt Core banking Solution which made anytime, anywhere banking possible. Most of the banking operations are now computerised with real time output generation. The first automated teller machine (ATMs) in the country was installed in the country in 1987. Now ATMs can be found all across the country and people have got so used to it. Passbook printing machines, cash deposit machines, note sorting machines are being widely used. National Payments Corporation of India (NPCI) has made significant contribution in establishing robust payment and settlement system in the country. National Electronic Funds Transfer (NEFT) and Real Time Gross Settlement (RTGS) have simplified money transfer with reduction in paperwork.

Card culture in the country has got a boost with more and more people making payment through debit and credit cards. Mobile wallets have come as a big revolution with most banks having come out with their own wallets. Mobile phones have transformed into banking devices on which fund transfer, balance enquiry and transaction alerts have been facilitated. Internet banking has become equally popular. All these technological developments have reduced the need to personally visit bank branches. More and more people are performing their banking operations on move.

The present decade is going to prove more revolutionary as far adoption of new technology is concerned. Blockchain, artificial intelligence and chatbots have been making their way in banks and soon it will not be unusual to find a robot answering your banking queries.

Contribution of Banking Sector: Today Indian economy is among the fastest growing economies in the world. Infrastructure is in a much better shape and consumer spending is on rise. In all these banking sector has made a significant contribution. Financial inclusion was a big challenge for a country of India's size, we've done well in this. Banks' financing to agriculture, micro, small and medium enterprises (MSMEs), and students (loan for higher education) have improved the country's social and economic lot. Payment banks and Small Finance Banks have added reach of banking. India Post Payments Bank is an unique experiment of its kind.

Present state of banking: A massive clean-up exercise was launched to strengthen the balance sheets of banks. With intensive efforts banks have been able to recover a large proportion of their non-performing assets. Restrictive measures like prompt corrective action are now being eased and government has done its best in recapitalising the banks to keep them in healthy shape. Even in the latest budget presented on 5th July 2019, a provision of Rs. 70,000 crore has been made to improve capital flow in government banks.

Challenges before banks: Banks are yet to recover some of their bad loans and have to reorient their efforts in this direction and ensuring that they continue to finance viable and genuine proposals. Equipping their manpower to meet emerging challenges has to be another area of attention. They have to create a balance in social obligation and financial prudence and learn from their past experiences. Already a new wave of merger between Public Sector Banks have been started with merger of Dena Bank and Vijaya Bank in Bank of Baroda. Few more mergers may be in offing. How to emerge stronger after merger is another challenge affected banks have to face.
