WATER, ENERGY & FOOD ISSUES AND POLICY DIMENSIONS

Prem Chand & Sulakshana Rao

The UN sustainable development agenda of Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs) gives a clear recognition that ensuring availability and sustainable management of water for all by 2030 is essential for achieving development ambitions (SDG 6). A large number of people are still living without safe water - their households, schools, workplaces, farms and factories have been struggling to get their share of water.

In India, water scarcity is undoubtedly a long-standing issue considering its use for agriculture as well as for basic needs. World Resource Institute (WRI) estimated that 54 per cent of the country's area faces extreme water stress. Agricultural sector is responsible for 78 per cent of water use in the country (CWC, 2014). With the increasing population, the total demand for food grains will increase to 375 metric tonnes. With increase in per capita income, shift in consumption pattern towards high water demanding crops, over-exploitation of groundwater is imminent. Presently, there are over 20 million wells pumping water with free power supply, subsidised by the Government. This has aggravated the issue of declining water table (0.4 m per year), while encouraging wastage of water in many states. The existing cropping pattern does not ensure the sustainable use of water resources. The mounting pressure on water resources justifies that sustainable use of water resources is fundamental priority in Indian agriculture.

What, Where and How to produce?

The water-food-energy nexus is crucial in the sustainability forefront. The pervasive linkages between these domains demand a deliberate approach to ensure sustainable agricultural production without compromising water and food security. Agriculture in itself is resource-consuming. The clear challenge is to produce higher yield per unit of natural resource invested. Water being the most limiting factor in agriculture, the rule of thumb for sustainability is growing more food per drop.

Rice and wheat are important from food security point of view. However, these two crops along with sugarcane consume more than 80 per cent of water available for irrigation in the country. The alarming increase of water table depth, mainly in areas with intensive rice-wheat cropping system during recent years has questioned the sustainability of the traditional rice-wheat system. Extensive rice-wheat system in traditional belts of Punjab and Haryana has not only led to reduction in agricultural output but also to salinity issues in the ground water aquifers, shortage of potable water, leading to extensive socio economic stress (Mac Donald et al., 2016; Rodell et al., 2009). Traditional rice producing belts are environmentally unsustainable, as depicted by high water footprints. Studies projected that if paddy-wheat cycle continues, the water table depth in central Punjab will fall below 70 feet in 66 per cent area, below 100 feet in 34 per cent area and below 130 feet in 7 per cent area (Humphreys et al., 2010, Sidhu et al., 2010). Though the late rice sowing (from

ALTERNATE CAREERS FOR CREATIVE SATISFACTION

Nidhi Prasad

The one question that you face soon after you start your school is 'What do you want to be when you grow up?' You would invariably end up saying Doctor, Techie, and Pilot just to end speculation there. But the misery doesn't end there. The question continues to haunt you even after you have chosen your stream of study in college. While some convert their choice of subject into serious career options, there are many others who completely deviate from their academics choosing an altogether new path.

Now that the results are out many students have passed their CBSE and ICSE Board examinations with flying colors and are now rejoicing, there however are those who have not scored as per their expectations, is it time for them to descend into gloom? Well the answer is an emphatic "NO"

Marks don't decide your career. It's true that basic education is important, it helps people shape their lives and choose the right paths but education is not the only pre-requisite to walk on the road of success. Higher education is the only option to become something is a myth that most people don't seem to understand. There is constant pressure on students to score high grades, pick difficult options for careers, and appear for the toughest exams.

Choosing a career however is no easy task, most of the time a Career is made by chance, not choice. Students who do not meet high expectations of marks, grades, and percentages, have to opt for whichever subjects they have available to study and looking for career options, which are available to them. Students continue to seek traditional careers such as Engineering, Law, Medicine, etc. which have limited job opportunities. There are new career options upcoming every day, yet unemployment is high among College educated youth despite their academic qualification.

With globalization, and opening of the economy to the world every subject has numerous career choices and new specializations coming up every day.

Conventional career choices are no more in vogue. Today's youngsters are driven by passion, creative satisfaction and out-of-the-box thinking

May to June) implemented by the Government of Punjab was a vital policy initiative, it shortened the window between the Kharif rice and Rabi wheat. This policy initiative resulted in massive amount crop residue burning, leading to excessive environmental damage to Punjab, Haryana and neighbouring cities like Delhi.

The high water foot prints of rice and wheat in traditional belts streamlines the much needed water availability based cropping pattern re-alignment across the zones. Dhawan (2017) also emphasised that India must review its current trend of producing water intensive crops, such as sugarcane and rice in water scarce areas. Shift of rice cultivation from Punjab to Eastern India may reduce the burden on fresh water sources to a certain extent. Eastern India with 2-3 times more rainfall as compared to Punjab. As per the study by NABARD, the irrigation water productivity of rice and wheat is relatively higher in eastern states. The region also holds unexploited quality ground water aquifers and irrigations sources required for water-guzzling crops. Crop residue management is also less of an issue since the climatic factors of eastern India is also favourable for mushroom cultivation, which uses straw as its growth substrate.

The methods of cultivation also play a crucial role in sustainable cultivation. Technology assisted cultivation in the form of seed varieties or method of sowing or improved cultivation practices is advocated for long term sustainability. For example; practices like direct seeding, alternate wetting and drying in rice, mulching incrops, raised bed cultivation in soybean help reducing both carbon and water footprint to a great extent. Studies conducted by CIMMYT shows that improved cultivation practice like intermittent flooding instead if continuous flooding reduces the global warming potential from 3500 kg CO₂ ha⁻¹ to 900 kg CO₂ ha⁻¹ (Jain et al., 2013, Pathak et al., 2014). Besides higher irrigation efficiency (upto 75% in case of sprinkler and upto 90% in drip system as compared to 40% of surface system), sprinkler and drip irrigation systems have mitigation potential of 1276 kg CO₂e/ha/year (Sapkota et al., 2019). Similarly, practices like conservation agriculture in rice-wheat system reduces its global warming potential from 6300 kg CO₂ ha⁻¹ (traditional) to 4900 kg CO₂ ha⁻¹. Conservation agriculture in maize reduces the energy and irrigation water by 48% and 71 % respectively as compared to traditional cultivation. Adoption of zero tillage has a mitigation potential of 1796 kg CO₂e/ha/year. Scientific residue management instead of crop residue burning mitigates 522 kg CO₂e/ha/year of GHG (Sapkota et al., 2019).

Another focal point should be the post- harvest food wastage. Every unit of food wasted leads to excess carbon and water foot print to produce same unit of food for consumption. An estimate provided by Indian Council of Agricultural Research showed that an annual value of harvest and post-harvest losses of major agricultural produces at the national level was to the order of Rs. 92,651 crore, calculated using production data of 2012-13 at 2014 wholesale prices (Gol, 2016). However, in developing countries like India, food loss occurs at early stages of food value chain associated with poor infrastructure, storage and transport facilities.

The greener diner www.Jobriya.In Dietary diversification is also important as crop diversification. NITI Aayog report reveals that India is self-sufficient in food with an annual production of 750 million tonnes with a per capita availability of 1.6 kg/day. However, 45 per cent of the dietary consumption is comprised of cereals, with water guzzling crop such as rice and wheat (Srivastava, 2017). Nutrition-wise, coarse grains like Bajra, Jowar, Maize and Ragi have energy and nutritive value in terms of the major cereals rice and wheat. These nutri-cereals require much less water as compared to rice, wheat and sugarcane. The food subsidies provided to the consumers through (PDS, mid-day meal) are focused on these major cereals.

Sustainable policies

Food production of the country is now sufficient to feed the entire population and the surplus management is currently a rising issue. Hence, the policy focus on sustainable agriculture while analysing the impact of any activity on natural resources and ecosystem as a whole is necessary. Agricultural cropping pattern needs to be rearranged based on resource availability and foot prints. Current imbalance in cropping pattern and water availability is associated with the support on pricing aspect (both input and output pricing) and assured procurement. Gradual withdrawal of input subsidies (water and power) in the over-exploited regions and strengthening the procurement system in the eastern regions is recommended to reduce the burden in the north-western belts. Inclusion of environmental footprints (water and carbon) in determination of MSP may be one way of addressing the sustainability issue. Water productive crops such as pulses, linseed and mustard should be advocated in water stressed belts. Strengthening of post-harvest management, crop-wise infrastructure, storage and logistic facilities for all farmer size group categories to minimise food wastage need be considered. On the consumption side, food diversity in terms of inclusion of nutri-cereals with same amount of nutritive value and less water foot print need to be promoted. The export policy need be framed to minimise the virtual water flow or export of water in the form of agricultural commodities.

CONSISTENCY IS THE KEY INGREDIENT BEHIND SUCCESS

SAUMYA SINGH, RANK 1 CLAT & AILET 2019

Priya Jindal

Saumya Singh who has secured Rank 1 in Common Law Admission Test 2019 and AILET 2019— shares his strategy with readers of Employment News. Common Law Admission Test (CLAT) is a national level entrance exam conducted to provide admission to candidates in UG and PG law programs offered at National Law Universities (NLUs) and other colleges/ universities accepting exam scores. Saumya has achieved this feat in his first attempt. Priya Jindal of Delhi Knowledge Track spoke to him to know about his strategy, exam pattern and other topics that could be useful to the aspirants preparing for these two prestigious law exams of our country.

Q. Congratulations for your outstanding performance in CLAT as well as All India Law Entrance Test AILET Examination! What was first your reaction upon knowing your Rank in the exam?

I was both surprised and exhilarated at knowing my ranks in the exams. Based on my performance I'd expected a rank in the top 10 but getting the 1st rank was a pleasant surprise!

Q. Saumya could you please share your CLAT strategy in brief?

I started preparation in 11th and took the exam with 12th. I gave the subjects proportionate time based on my strengths and weaknesses. I took mocks regularly and these helped me analyse my strengths and weaknesses and improve my time management. I did not leave the preparation for the boards for the end and prepared for them with CLAT throughout the year.

Q. How CLAT is different from AILET and how did you manage to prepare for both examinations?

The syllabus for both is not different. However, the paper patterns and the kinds of questions asked make the exams different. I believe that a student who has a relative advantage in English and Logical Reasoning will find it easier to get a good rank in CLAT. On the other hand, AILET is dependant more on one's confidence and presence of mind. I took mocks for both to get used to the pattern and prepared factual science for AILET.

Q. Saumya, both your father and mother are academicians and they teach Geography in University, so who motivated you to pursue Law?

My father has always had an interest in, and a good knowledge of, law. Besides, it was my mother who motivated me to pursue law because of the opportunity it entails to work for one's community and my own interest in Political Science and other law related stuff.

Q. Please tell us the schedule you followed during your examination.

On school days I used to give time to both preparation for the boards and CLAT. Besides reading the newspaper and doing GK and vocab daily, I focused on revision and working on my weaknesses. On weekends I mainly used to revise GK.

Q. Saumya, Legal Aptitude and Current Affairs part cover 50-50 marks each, so did you give extra time for practicing Legal Aptitude and Current Affairs part?

Focusing on these 2 sections is very important as they carry the most marks. Besides, the legal reasoning section acts as a tie breaker in case 2 candidates have the same marks.

For legal reasoning, I referred to the material provided by my coaching, past year papers and mocks to get adequate practice. My focus was on knowing the concept behind each question so that I could answer even tricky questions.

I devoted the most time of my preparation to GK. I did current affairs from 6 sources which included the newspaper, GKTODAY, studyiq, a monthly magazine and the material provided by Law Prep. I revised current affairs regularly. For static GK I referred to the book by Tarun Goyal.

Q. Did you appear for any entrance examination earlier? If yes, please share those details?

I appeared for SLAT 2019 conducted by Symbiosis. I got 135 marks out of 150 in it.

Q. Did you take mock tests and sample papers - how extensively did you practise with the help of these? Do you think practising from the previous year papers help and how?

I took around 80 mock tests at Law Prep. I gave mocks every week, and almost every day towards the end of my preparation. I think mocks help as one is able to practice 200 questions, get better at time management and know one's strengths and weaknesses. I used to devote 1-2 hours to analysing those mocks and trying to find ways to improve.

Practicing from previous year papers does help a lot. One gets an idea of what exactly is asked in CLAT and even though CLAT is very unpredictable, one is able to structure his preparation and cover the more important topics first. Also, as CLAT 2019 showed us, sometimes questions from the past papers are repeated.

Q. Could you please tell us the text books and reference books that you followed, please also mention the other offline and online resources.

For GK, I read The Hindu newspaper regularly. I also referred to GKToday and StudyIQ. Besides these I read the magazine, Competition in focus and the material provided by Law Prep.

For Logical Reasoning I referred to the material provided by Law Prep and the book by RS Aggarwal for important topics. For Critical Reasoning I referred to the book by MK Pandey.

For Legal Reasoning I relied on the material provided by Law Prep, which included class notes, class tests and mock tests. Previous Year Papers also helped.

For English Vocabulary I referred to the 2 books by Norman Lewis (Word Power Made Easy and 30 days to a Faster Vocabulary). I used to refer to word lists for GRE regularly which helped me learn new words and revise existing ones. I used to maintain registers for vocabulary and updated them daily. For Grammar I referred to the book English is Easy besides the material provided by law prep. Reading the newspaper helped a lot.

For maths I relied on the material provided by my coaching and online sources wherever needed.

Q. What do you think are the key factors behind your stupendous success?

I think my main strength has always been consistency. Right from Day 1 I prepared as if CLAT 2018 were my CLAT. I was able to keep up the momentum till the end and that's what helped me achieve this rank.

Besides, I was able to deal with the pressure on the exam day. A cool mind helps one give his best.

Q. How did you manage your time and remain stress free during the preparation?

Even though most of my time went to preparation, I used to take breaks in between my study sessions. I used to talk to my family, go on walks, play badminton or listen to music. I think taking breaks is important to rejuvenate one's mind.

Q. What is your future plan - judicial service or legal service or any other service, please elaborate on that.

As of now I plan to get into the Judiciary as a Judge of the Supreme Court but I'm receptive to other opportunities as well.

UI Design, which stands for "User Interface", refers to the visual appeal of the product (app/website) which helps in enhancing the overall experience of the user. For example- When you open a website, the first thing you see is the graphics, i.e. how the menu bar looks, how the buttons are placed, etc. This is called the UI of the website.

On the other hand, UX design, which stands for User Experience design, looks into the functional aspect of the product, for example, when you like a certain product on a website, you move the product to your cart and make the payment.

Automobile Design. Do you like cars? Have you ever filled your notebooks with drawings of cars? Do you see yourself as the next great car designer? Is your car design the one which will revolutionize the automobile industry? Car design is an exciting and creative hobby, but one which rarely materializes into a job.

As India becomes an important automotive market, with sales of passenger cars crossing two million units, almost all companies are pouring in dollars into getting designers on board.

Automobile designers are involved in the whole product design life cycle, right from the look and feel of a car, to its safety and security check. The design sector of automobile engineering is rapidly growing as consumers today are constantly looking out for new designs and technology in their vehicles. Therefore, this field requires you to possess art and design skills and will provide you with a great opportunity to showcase your ability, talent and innovation.

5. Ethical Hacking

Ethical Hacking has been a lucrative career option for many, and not without good reason! It's a challenging job that never gets boring, pays well and also brings a greater sense of achievement.

Hacking is the process of finding vulnerabilities in a system and using these found vulnerabilities to gain unauthorized access into the system to perform malicious activities ranging from deleting system files to stealing sensitive information. Hacking is illegal and can lead to extreme consequences if you are caught in the act. People have been sentenced to years of imprisonment because of hacking.

Nonetheless, hacking can be legal if done with permission. Computer experts are often hired by companies to hack into their system to find vulnerabilities and weak endpoints so that they can be fixed. This is done as a precautionary measure against legitimate hackers who have malicious intent. Such people, who hack into a system with permission, without any malicious intent, are known as ethical hackers and the process is known as an ethical hacking.

Ethical Hacking is becoming a highly regarded profession in India these days and is synonymous with "Internet-Security". It opens plenty of job opportunities in both public as well as private sector. Professionals engaged in this field primarily utilize in-depth computer knowledge and creativity to seek out the vulnerable areas in the systems so as to help companies anticipate and prevent hackers from hacking into their networks. Ethical hacker also plays an important role in controlling cyber terrorism

Most ethical hackers begin their career as tech support engineers who climb their way up, by earning certifications like CCNA and CISSP before working towards the ultimate CEH certification.

They are employed by companies and businesses to penetrate their networks either to protect private and sensitive information or to test their network security.

Clear Class XII in Science Stream with IT/Computer Science/ stream and pursue B.Sc. in Computer Science/ BCA/Graduation in Any IT Related Discipline for 3-4 years and can Pursue Certification Courses in Ethical Hacking (CEH, CCNA, SCNS, CPT, CISSP)

OR

- ♦ Knowledge of programming languages like C, C++, Python, Ruby, etc.
- ♦ No particular qualification is necessary except for the certification in Ethical Hacking
- ♦ Graduation degree in Computer Science will be useful

Apart from this, an ethical hacker must be a creative thinker because black hat hackers are constantly coming up with ingenious ways to exploit a system and it is an ethical hacker's job to predict and prevent such breaches.

We've got umpteen Engineers, Doctors, and Commerce graduates amongst us. It is time to charter the unconventional route with career options that are equally viable in the industry today. It is always best to put your knowledge to better use, especially when you know what you are good at. Our advice: become future ready.
