TRANSFORMING INDIA THE JOURNEY AHEAD

Dr. Gautam Choubey

As we enter the 73rd year of political self-determination in India, we should be prepared to be a two faced Janus; we must look back at the great sacrifices and the monumental achievements of the past, even as we look ahead in anticipation at the prospects of a new India. Niti Ayog's vision document for India in 2022 takes these two imperatives in the same stride. It candidly foregrounds the challenges we have inherited from the past, even as it draws elaborate roadmaps for balanced prosperity and comprehensive social justice. However, the significance of all democratic goals must be assessed across five axes: region, gender, community, class and the natural ecosystem. While the regional development schemes for the North-Eastern states and PM's Aspirational District Program (ADP) for the naxal affected districts aim to disseminate benefits of economic growth to every region of the country, our commitment to sustainable environment is enshrined in Swachh Bharat Mission, Atal Bhujal Yojana, our resolve to increase forest cover to 33.3% of country's total geographical area and in our commitment to voluntary emission reduction. Similarly, through endeavours such as scholarship schemes for minorities, proposal to double farmers' income by 2022, Jan Arogya Abhiyan, Beti Bachao, Beti Padhao campaign and through a concerted attempt at improving female labour force participation rate, India aims to keep its promise to the minority, the deprived and the vulnerable. At the same time, we are also trying to encourage private and corporate engagement with developmental activities. This also entails, in no small part, sensitising citizens towards their responsibilities; occasionally over and above what is statutorily mandated.

But have we always been a society where inspired individuals complemented government-sponsored welfare activities? What emboldens a country to set such ambition goals, even the level of conceptualisation? In the spirit of the NITI Ayog's document on India at 75, this essay undertakes to address these questions through an exploration of the historical changes evident in public culture, science and democratic institutions-the three different-yet-interconnected fields.

Social justice as Public Culture

In 1957, Humayun Kabir, the celebrated Bengali author-politician, contributed an article to a special volume of Phi Delta Kappan. This volume of the influential American journal sought to address the 'problems and promises of education in Asia.' Drawing upon his extensive involvement with India's education sector, his experience as the minister of education under Nehru and the lessons learnt during India's first decade as a free nation, Kabir made a case for the universal applicability of technical

SEVEN DECADES OF INDEPENDENCE

S B Singh

On the midnight of 14th August, 1947, the august Constituent Assembly of India aroused the vision of a new, vibrant independent India in which true swaraj would be realized not only by the nation but also by each individual. Independent India set out on a new path of framing a democratic, modern constitution that would usher in political, social and economic democracy in India. A new era of political freedom, individual rights had just begun to guarantee a life of dignity for every citizen of this great nation irrespective of his primordial linkages with caste, religion, language or ethnicity. The preamble of the constitution reflected the core constitutional values i.e. liberty, justice, equality and various freedoms. It also set the high ideals of a secular, democratic republic to be realized through the instrument of the constitution. Thus, the constitution was not just to be a legal document laying down the framework of governance, but an agent of social and economic revolution. The historical injustices were to be rectified by the positive interventions of the state. Thus, the noble goals of an egalitarian, just society became the prime pursuits of independent India.

At the same time, the gigantic tasks of nation building and state building offered great challenges given the reality of immense diversities which posed problems in welding together disparate interests and multiple identities. Fortunately, the leadership of independent India rose up to the task and set out the process of nation building by giving due recognition to different languages by linguistic reorganisation of the states. Though Hindi was declared as the official language of the country, each state was free to choose its own official language. Thus, contrary to what the American author, Selig Harrison predicted about Balkanisation of India due to linguistic formation of states in 1956, India emerged a more consolidated nation. The task of nation building took into account both the individual identities of the Indians as well as their national identities. In other words, nation building helped in creating unity in diversity which has been a historical fact of our cultural and political existence since ancient times.

Another task that was taken up by the builders of modern India was the gigantic task of state building. This involved creating modern institutions of governance and more. A number of scientific institutions were founded to make progress in the frontier areas of science and technology. Today, we are proud of those institutions, viz;

English rendering of PM's address in 2nd Episode of 'Mann Ki Baat 2.0' on 28.07.2019

www.Jobriya.in

My dear countrymen, Namaskar. As usual, you and I eagerly keep waiting for 'Mann Ki Baat'. This time too, numerous letters, comments & phone calls have poured in - full of stories, suggestions & inspiration - everybody wants to do something or the other; also wanting to say it out. One can feel that sentiment. All this touches upon myriad facets which I wish to sum up, but cannot do so on account of constraints of time duration. It seems I am being put to test. Yet, once again I want to offer you your own precious thoughts, woven together on the singular thread of Mann Ki Baat.

It must be part of your recent memory that in the earlier episode, I had referred to a collection of short stories by Premchand ji, We had decided that on reading any book, some of its facets should be shared with all through the Narendra Modi App. I have seen that people in large numbers have shared a lot of information on a variety of books. It is heartwarming to see them discuss books published on subjects such as Science, Technology, innovation, history, culture, business, life-sketches and so on. Some have advised me to dwell upon many other books. Fine. I shall discuss with you on other books as well. But I must candidly admit here that I am not able to devote much time to reading books these days. But I have gained a lot, in the sense that based on your correspondence here, I got opportunities to know about the themes of many kinds of books. But the experience over the last one month makes me feel that we need to take it forward. Why don't we create a permanent book corner on the Narendra Modi App, so that, whenever we read a book, we write about it and discuss it on this platform! And you can even suggest an apt name for our book corner. I want this book corner to be an active forum for readers & writers alike. So keep reading & writing; sharing with all friends of Mann Ki Baat alongside.

Friends, I touched upon the subject of water conservation in Mann Ki Baat and today I feel that it was an issue close to your heart even before I referred to it, a matter of universal human interest. I have experienced the fact that this topic has stirred the nation's heart strings collectively. Many an informed, effective endeavour is afoot across the country. People have shared information on traditional methods. The media has embarked upon quite a few innovative campaigns. Be it the Government or NGOs, something or the other is being carried out on a war footing. Witnessing the might of the collective is in itself heartwarming & satisfying. A case in point is village Aara Keram under the Ormanjhi block, not very far from Ranchi in Jharkhand. The fervour & Zeal displayed by villagers there towards water conservation has turned out to be exemplary for one & all. The rural folk donated sweat, toiling collectively, to change the course of a mountain spring. It was a purely indigenous, home grown method. This has led to not only stopping soil erosion & prevention of crop damage, but also facilitated effective irrigation of fields. And you will be happy to know that the beautiful North Eastern State of Meghalaya has become the first state to have formulated its own water-policy. I congratulate the Government of Meghalaya.

In Haryana, crops that require meagre water are being encouraged. Farmers thus are saved from suffering losses. I specially congratulate the Haryana Government for establishing a connect with the farmers to wean them away from conventional modes of farming towards crops that do not require much water.

It is the season of festivals. Many fairs are held on these occasions. Why don't we use these fairs to spread the message of water conservation? All sections of society turn up in fairs in large numbers. Here, we can effectively spread awareness on the need to save water through forums such as exhibitions and street plays, thus using the festive fervour to convey the message of water conservation with ease.

Friends, certain turns in life make our hearts swell with joy & zest; especially our children's achievements, their feats fill us up with energy. And that is why today, I feel like mentioning about a few children. They are Nidhi Baipotu, Monish Joshi, Devanshi Rawat, Tanush Jain, Harsh Devdharkar, Anant Tiwari, Preeti Nag, Atharva Deshmukh, Aronyatesh Ganguli & Hrithik Alaamandaa.

What I tell you about them will fill your hearts with pride & verve as well. All of us know that just the word CANCER is more than enough to scare the world. It conjures images of Death waiting at the doorstep. But each of these Ten children, not only fought against the dreaded disease cancer in their battle of life, but also brought glory & laurels to the country. In sports and games, we often get to see a player becoming a champion after winning a tournament or bagging a medal; this was a rare occasion when the participants were champions BEFORE they entered the contest... they were champions of LIFE, the battle.

Actually, this month, the World Children's Winners Games were held in Moscow. It is a unique sports tournament meant for young cancer survivors; only they who have emerged fighting cancer, can take part. In this tournament, sports & games such as shooting, chess, swimming, running, football & table-tennis are organized. All Ten champions of our country won medals in this tournament. Out of these, some players even won more than one medal.

My dear countrymen, I firmly believe that you must have felt immensely proud on India's achievement beyond the skies... in outer space... Chandrayaan II.

People from across the country, such as Sanjiv Haripura from Jodhpur, Rajasthan, Mahendra Kumar Daga from Kolkata, P. Arvind Rao from Telangana, and many others have written to me on Narendra Modi App and mygov, urging me to speak on Chandrayaan II in Mann Ki Baat.

In fact, in the realms of Space, 2019 has been a very fruitful year for India. Our scientists launched the A-Sat in March. After that, amidst the hectic engagements during Elections, an important development such as the A-Sat could not be a prominent part of the discourse. Whereas the fact is, through the A-Sat, we have acquired the capability of destroying a satellite three hundred Kilometres away in a mere three minutes. India became the fourth country in the world, possessing this capacity. And now, on the 22nd of July, the nation watched with pride Chandrayaan II taking strides into space from Sriharikota. Visuals of Chandrayaan II lifting off filled our countrymen's hearts with glory, zest and joy.

Chandrayaan II is a mission that is special on many counts. It will lead to a better understanding of the Moon on our part. We will be able to gather detailed information & knowledge. But if you ask me what the two greatest lessons I have received from Chandrayaan II, I shall say they are Faith & Fearlessness. We should trust our talents & capacities; we should have faith in them. You will be glad to know that Chandrayaan II is INDIAN to the core. It is thoroughly Indian in heart & spirit. It is completely a swadeshi, home grown mission. This mission has proved beyond doubt, once again, that when it comes to attempting an endeavour in new age, cutting edge areas, with innovative zeal, our scientists are second to none. They are the best... they are world class.

The second important lesson is - never lose hope in the face of stumbling blocks or obstacles. The way our scientists rectified Technical issues in record time, burning the midnight oil, is in itself an exemplary, unparalleled task. The world watched the Tapasya, the awesome perseverance of our scientists. We should also feel proud of the fact that despite hindrances, there is no change in the arrival time... many are amazed at that. We have to face temporary setbacks in life... but always remember- the capacity to overcome them resides within us. I fervently hope that the Chandrayaan II mission will inspire our youth towards Science & Innovation. After all, Science is the path to progress. We are now expectantly waiting for the month of September, when Lander Vikram & Rover Pragyan will land on Lunar surface.

Through Mann Ki Baat today, I wish to share with students, my young friends, information on a very interesting competition ... I invite young boys & girls to a Quiz Competition. Your inquisitiveness regarding Space, India's Space Mission, Science and Technology will be the salient features of this Quiz Competition. For example, How is a rocket launched, how is a satellite placed in orbit, what information do we gather from a satellite, what is A-Sat... and many more of these. The details of this competition will be available on the Mygov website.

I urge my young friends, students to participate in this competition and make it interesting and memorable through their participation. I specially call upon schools, parents, enthusiastic teachers &

DIGITAL AGE : EFFECT OF DIGITIZATION ON CAREERS

www.Jobriya.in

Nidhi Prasad

Digital is the most commonly heard term today, everyone knows the term but what does Digital mean? Simply put all devices use a series of signals in the form of 1 (one) and 0 (zero) all signals go in this form which are then decrypted and shown on the screens of your devices e.g. Desktop Computers, Laptops, and Mobile devices. Digitalized sectors open great career opportunities for the Youth, and so do the sectors that facilitate it.

Do you remember what life was like when smart phones didn't exist?

How about Ola/Uber cab services? Or ordering your food and doing shopping online?

If we rewind back 10 years of our lives, we would realize things have changed a lot. Science and Technology have brought about remarkable changes that may have been unthinkable just a few years back. And they keep making our lives simpler and faster.

The latest and most powerful of these is the impending launch of the fifth generation (5G) wireless network, which can handle 1,000 times more data volume than the systems in place today

Many experts believe that we are now in the early stages of the Fourth Industrial Revolution, an era combining Digital, Physical and Biological systems in a way never seen before. Virtual Reality (VR), Augmented Reality (AR), Artificial Intelligence (AI) and robotics are changing the way that we live and work and the rapid pace of change is disrupting almost every industry in every Country.

So with every industrial revolution, you do have displacement of jobs and new jobs get created. From past few years we have observed there has been an obsession about job losses: the effects of automation are questioned, the process of digitization is blamed? But, why?

We need to understand the change will be dramatic, but it will not be catastrophic. Jobs in industries such as IT, BPOs and financial services are not about to disappear, they are simply about to change. Whilst technological advancements are undoubtedly increasing productivity, concerns over job losses due to automation are rife. However, for students equipped with the correct skills there is no dearth of opportunities

As technology evolves, it's become clear that our Education systems are now preparing people for the opportunities that 5G and other Fourth Industrial Revolution breakthroughs will present. But the challenge for Schools is how to prepare them well or make them job ready?

According to a recent report, "Intelligent automation is expected to boost the importance of both education related to STEM (science, technology, engineering and mathematics) and of so-called soft skills, which allow workers to trade on their uniquely human capabilities.

FIRST LET'S UNDERSTAND WHAT DIGITIZATION MEANS?

Digitization is the process of converting analog signals or information of any form into a digital format that can be understood by computer systems or electronic devices. The term is used when converting information, like text, images or voices and sounds, into binary code.

What does digitization mean to you? This is an important question! In simple terms, Digitization means getting collections data into digital formats that promote easy discovery, access, and use.

EFFECT OF DIGITIZATION

We are on the cliff of what the World Economic Forum calls the Fourth Industrial Revolution. Artificial intelligence. Automation. Ubiquitous, mobile supercomputing. Intelligent robots. Self-driving cars. Neuro-technological brain enhancements. Genetic editing.

This revolution brings with it exciting possibilities, new solutions to global challenges, and employment opportunities for jobs that have yet to be invented. Combined with climate change and rapid global population growth this Century is the most challenging that our species has ever faced. Governments, Educators and Parents alike must ask the question about how they can prepare present and future generations to thrive in this transforming world.

Jack Ma, founder of the Alibaba Group, "We cannot teach our kids to compete with machines"

But things don't need to be so bleak. The reality is that the jobs of the future will be the ones that machines can't do. This is great news because it means we can automate the work and humanize the jobs.

The key areas where humans beat machines that are key to future job creation:

Creative Endeavour's, everything from scientific discovery to creative writing and entrepreneurship

Social interaction, robots just don't have the kind of emotional intelligence that humans do

Physical dexterity and mobility Due to Industrial Revolution 4.0 the employees of the future will need to use their knowledge and skills in new ways and keep upgrading and improving their knowledge to be successful. It may mean employers will prefer employees who are able to apply a series of skills and attributes with ease. Implicit in this approach is the fact that knowledge will be constantly changing. To meet these requirements it is incumbent on educational institutions to adjust their curricula accordingly.

There will be more than 20% new job opportunities that emerge, some of them being: Artificial Intelligence, Robotics, 3D printing, and Digital Marketing, Cyber Security Specialists so on and so forth. These careers were not heard by most of the 19th Century and 20th Century educators. Hence, there is a dire need for quick change in the education sector with a curriculum revamping from Elementary Education to Higher Education."

SKILLING IS KEY:

Alvin Toffler in his book Future Shock posited that "The illiterate of the 21st century will not be those who cannot read and write, but those who cannot learn, unlearn, and relearn".

Toffler wasn't suggesting that reading and writing would become unimportant, he was emphasizing that in times of rapid change in an uncertain future the most valuable skill would be learning how to learn rather than simply reciting a set of facts and procedures

21st century skills comprise skills, abilities, and learning dispositions that have been identified as being required for success in 21st century society and workplaces by educators, business leaders, academics, and Governmental agencies.

Digital skills can provide new ways of working. Technological advances will continue to provide new ways of working. Businesses that embrace those changes will reap the benefits of a highly satisfied workforce, keen to collaborate, communicate or create using new tools that allow them to do their jobs more efficiently.

According to World Economic Forum conference the skills required in future will include the following:

Communications skills: The traditional communication skills of reading, speaking and writing coherently and clearly, we need to add social media communication skills. These might include the ability to create a short YouTube video to capture the demonstration of a process or to make a sales pitch, the ability to reach out through the Internet to a wide community of people with one's ideas, to receive and incorporate feedback, to share information appropriately, and to identify trends and ideas from elsewhere

The ability to learn independently: This means taking responsibility for working out what you need to know, and where to find that knowledge. This is an ongoing process in knowledge-based work, because the knowledge base is constantly changing, it could be learning about new equipment, new ways of doing things.

Knowledge Management: Knowledge is not only rapidly changing with new research, new developments, and rapid dissemination of ideas and practices over the Internet, but the sources of information are increasing, with a great deal of variability in the reliability or validity of the information. Thus the knowledge that an engineer learns at University can quickly become obsolete. There is so much information now in the health area that it is impossible for a medical student to master all drug treatments, medical procedures and emerging science such as genetic engineering. The key skill in a knowledge-based society is knowledge management: how to find, evaluate, analyze, apply and disseminate information, within a particular context. This is a skill that graduates will need to employ long after graduation.

Teamwork and flexibility: It is important that students learn to function in a team environment so that they will have teamwork skill when they enter the workforce. Also, research tells us that students learn best from tasks that involve doing tasks and involve social interactions.

Thinking skills (critical thinking, problem-solving, creativity, originality, strategizing): Critical thinking is the intellectually disciplined process of actively and skillfully conceptualizing, applying, analyzing, synthesizing, and/or evaluating information gathered from, or generated by, observation, experience, reflection, reasoning. It can lead to developing your judgment, evaluation and problem solving abilities. Learning Critical Thinking skills can enhance your academic performance. ... Today one of the most important criteria for success in College is the ability to think independently while being logical at the same time.

Digital skills: Most knowledge-based activities depend heavily on the use of technology. For instance real estate agents knowing how to use geographical information systems to identify sales trends and prices in different geographical locations, radiologists knowing how to use new technologies that 'read' and analyze MRI scans. Thus the use of digital technology needs to be integrated with and evaluated through the knowledge-base of the subject area.

Digital skills hold the key to the success of the Digital India program and these needs to be imbibed in the population, akin to the Literacy Mission. Reportedly, the IT ministry is working with NASSCOM on this, and also with NITI Aayog on using artificial intelligence in Governance. All have a role to play in the transformation, and only then will there be jobs, and people skilled enough to take up these jobs. We will succeed by working alongside our machines rather than competing with them, by programming them rather than being programmed by them.

JOBS OF THE FUTURE: NEW AGE CAREERS

Today, we see a complex job scenario wherein on one side we have qualified professionals desperately trying to find a job, while on the other hand, there are many professions that need talent but are unavailable. In this backdrop, the need of the hour is that youth be aware and have an understanding of the emerging career options. New careers combine traditional skills with new expertise.

Emerging careers have created or emerged through traditional careers only. New branches in Engineering - 21st century have emerged like Machine learning or artificial intelligence, internet of things (IOT), cryptocurrency/block-chain, Environmental Engin-eering, Polymer, Aerospace Engineering.

In fields of computer science, Digital science, Data analytics, 3D printing, cloud computing, animation and Graphic Designing, Digital marketing.

Creative careers such as Fashion designing - The current cosmopolitan and fashion conscious wave that has taken over our country has opened up a huge arena for careers in fashion. These careers encompass traditional costume design, design of jewellery, footwear, wardrobe, costumes, accessories and the like. A career in this industry is glamorous yet demanding and rewarding. Courses like Luxury brand management, Fashion marketing, image consultants have cropped up. And careers like app development, Social media management, E-retail, You tubing, blogging are in much demand

All of these fields hold great potential in the times to come. Don't be afraid to experiment and explore options, for they hold great promise for the future!

In essence, the future will belong to the ones who are ready to accept change and adapt technology like new rules of the game. Let's be ready, it's time to renew, reform and renovate.

Education is the most powerful weapon which you can use to change the world."

education. In India, traditional pedagogical practices have always been overwhelmingly theoretical and normative in their orientation. Further, till not so distant a past, our attitude to life was so exceedingly spiritual that accumulation of material comforts was seen as an affront to the much-revered Indian ethics of renunciation. By the same token, attempts to fulfil individual aspirations, or even having such private desires in the first place, was considered anathema to the spirit of community-living. However, as the nation was on the cusp of transition, India had to set its socio-economic priorities in order. Under the circumstances, and given the fact that the makers of our constitution had recast India as a citizen-centric nation, the quest to guarantee basic life-comforts to every citizen became pivotal to all roadmaps for a prosperous future. Technical education, inclusion of skill augmentation training in academic curriculum and a concomitant emphasis on bolstering entrepreneurial abilities of the young labour force were crucial to the newly-independent nation's fight against poverty, illiteracy, disease and superstition.

However, in spite of the challenging living conditions in India of the 1950s, appeals for voluntary forfeiture of state-guaranteed basic goods and services, that were necessary for a comfortable living, were frequently made. Responding to these idealist entreaties, Kabir argued that "independent India has rightly decided that the question of voluntary limitations of wants can arise only after the basic human needs have been satisfied. These are not today satisfied for a large majority of the Indian people." However, more than seven decades later, things have changed. India has reached a stage of economic prosperity where such pleas for voluntary renunciation and charity are met with enthusiastic embrace. In fact, such appeals have become logistically significant to government's endeavour at ensuring social justice. These trends are reassuring of the health of democracy in India. It is true that we are a welfare state and that the onus of providing necessary life-possibilities to the teeming millions falls largely on the government. Yet, these acts of individual charity reaffirm the belief that securing economic and social justice in India may be the statutory responsibility of the state, but in practice and spirit, it is a collective enterprise. While we do have challenges to surmount, roadblocks to level and frontiers to conquer, it is important to stimulate an atmosphere of optimism and a progress-oriented public culture.

Science for social justice

Fortunately, the scientists in this country, right from the early years of nationalist movement, subscribed to a public/progress oriented work ethics. The August 1947 issue of the acclaimed journal Current Science made an interesting prophecy about India's future. Started in 1932 by a group of legendary scientists comprising the likes of C.V. Raman, Meghnad Saha and S S Bhatnagar, the journal opined that a combination of the 'spirit of the East', as represented by Gandhi, and the scientific temper of the national leadership, as embodied by Nehru, will usher in a new era of peace and prosperity for India. "We assure our national leaders that the enthusiastic cooperation of the scientists is at the service of the nation...that (which) seemed impossible only a year ago is now easy of achievement," the journal declares. Gandhi's persuasive voice, which had invented a new weapon of civilised humanity, capable of resolving conflicts both domestic as well as international, was fulsomely complemented by Nehru's resolve to turn India into a study in the social fruitages of science. There are two things worth noticing here. First, from the initial years of an independent India, perhaps from a period even earlier, our scientists have harboured an acute cognizance of their social responsibilities and their duties towards the process of nation building. Second, from Indira Gandhi and Atal Bihari Vajpayee to PM Modi, the majority of prime ministers who have inspired our scientist by expressing faith in their enterprise, come from non-science backgrounds. Although Nehru had a degree in natural science from Cambridge, he is best remembered as a lawyer and as the author of The Discovery of India. This syncretic exchange between science and society, and between the best of our minds and popular leaders, as is evident in the relationship between successive governments and our science community, attests to the fact that tradition of research and innovation in India has always had a strong social facet.

Over the past seven decades, Indian science community has galloped forward, from strength to strength. We have firmly established ourselves as a global leader in research. India has emerged as a major destination for outsourced R&D projects. Our ambition to break into the top 50 countries in the Global Innovation Index by 2022-23 is completely achievable. We have recently joined the exclusive club of countries with capacity to strike satellites in space, thereby strengthening our space security. With Chandrayan 1 (2008), Chandrayan 2 (2019) and Mars Orbiter (2014), we have not only achieved new milestones in technological self-reliance, but have also developed models of exceptionally cost-effective projects. Further, with the simultaneous launch of record 104 satellites from a single rocket in 2017, ISRO has scaled itself to an enviable plank in space commerce. It must be emphasised that such missions are not borne out of competitive nationalisms or fray for global prestige. They accrue from imperatives of water mapping, mineral exploration, weather forecast and a host of other purposes, which connect the most complex of science projects with the simple life of an average Indian farmer. In recent decades, projects such as National Innovation Foundation (2000) and Atal Innovation Mission (2016), to name a few, have managed to connect innovation with employment generation and sustainable development goals. While India's current capability in the fields of renewable energy, agricultural innovation, marketable technology transfer, smart urban planning and corporate investment in research leaves a lot to be desired, it may be hoped that PM's stress on anusandhan (research) will bear fruits in near future.

However, our basic democratic infrastructure is far more significant than both scientific infrastructure and public culture. It is therefore important to inquire whether we have fared well in terms of our democratic credentials too.

Strengthening our democratic credentials

The constituent assembly, which commenced its business on December 9 1946, embodied the spirit of Indian society: heterogeneity, fierce disagreement and yet, a unity of purpose. The twelve volumes of the constituent assembly debates are a dossier on our founding fathers; these volumes speak of their sagacity, concern for justice, political prudence, legal dexterity and democratic imagination. Although the majority of delegates were from the Congress and only 9 women participated in these debates, yet virtually every conceivable ideological hue found a voice in the assembly; socialists, feudalists, princely states, Hindu organisations, minorities associations, organisations of the so called lower castes and eminent scholars of law, each of them enriched the proposed blueprint for free India by bringing contradictory perspectives to the table. This broad social base was rendered yet more participatory by the exercise of comprehensive public feedback collection; a practice which lives on in contemporary India. This broadening of constituent assembly's social base and its representative character was partly a response to the sceptics in the Muslim League and British leaders like Winston Churchill, who dismissed the idea of a truly pan-Indian constituent assembly with the contention that the exercise will only bulldoze majoritarian views.

However, the fact of the matter is, not only was the Constituent Assembly justly inclusive, it was moored to men and women of unparalleled personal integrity and political acumen. If Nehru was its liberal face, who could quote at will from both ancient Indian sources and histories of French and American revolutions, Patel was the real taskmaster who introduced and secured consensus on some of the most important clauses. He was instrumental in clinching incorporation of fundamental rights, equality of opportunity, a liberal determination of citizenship criteria, abolition of the practice of conferring titles, minority rights and rights of civil servants. In Rajendra Prasad, the assembly got the most amenable moderator and in B.R Ambedkar, it found the fiercest critique of decadent traditions and social orthodoxy. B.N Rau's experience as a legal advisor was invaluable and S.N Mukherjee's dexterity with words was unmatched. This collaboration resulted in a document so comprehensive that virtually every aspect of India's democratic paraphernalia was adequately addressed. Although we have borrowed generously from the Government of India Act, 1935 and there are several overlaps between pre- and post-independence India, there are significant departures too. As Paul Brass has noted in Politics of India Since Independence, our adoption of universal suffrage and fundamental rights, which were unthinkable during the colonial regime, attest to the democratic ethos of India's nationalist struggle and its formative leadership. Even as our founding father trudged painstakingly towards a truly inclusive democracy, they were always prepared to carve out independent and uncharted trajectories, so long as they promised brighter prospects for the country. Thus far, our constitution has been amended 103 times and over the past four years itself, 1420 archaic laws have been repealed.

This has been the story of Indian experiment with democracy. And the story, it must be empathised here, has been one of steady advance towards aspirational benchmarks. In terms of the composition of the Lok Sabha, the number of women MPs has increased significantly from a mere 22 in 1951 to its highest at 78 in the 17th Lok Sabha. There has been a significant jump in the number of women candidates contesting general elections: from 45 in 1951 to 716 in 2019. Moreover, the fact that there are 300 first time MPs in 17th Lok Sabha underscores the dynamism and vitality implicit in the composition of this institution. It also goes to show that we are gradually breaking away from the monopoly of political cliques and dynastic politics.

To a great extent, our durability as a democratic country may be attributed to the institutions of democracy. India's election commission oversees world's most ambitious democratic exercise, our Supreme Court works as the guarantor of social justice and fundamental rights and our legislature unfailingly seek out constitutional resolutions to demands of the average voter, even at the cost of constitutional amendments. Although people have written obituaries to Indian democracy, citing its mind boggling diversity and the many contradictory claims which threaten to pull it as under, Indians continue to prosper and flourish. These negative prophecies flounder because they tend to underestimate the vibrancy of our democracy and our great love for its central exercise: the elections.

ISRO,DRDO, Nuclear establishments etc. Thanks to the great vision of our political leaders and scientific community, we have emerged as a self reliant nation in science and technology and are leaders in space, IT sectors. Similarly, a robust foundation was laid for the security of the nation by creating a strong military capability. Utmost care was taken to ensure that our military remains under civilian control and never comes out of the barracks on its own. The foundation of a civilian regime was indeed a great achievement of independent India, because, in most Asian-African nations which became independent from colonial rule witnessed military coups and dictatorship. More importantly, institutions of governance were created to provide effective, good governance. An independent election commission, CAG, Judiciary, a neutral civil service were the main institutions of governance created. Sardar Patel, the father of All India Services, rightly felt that only the All India Services could secure the unity and integrity of India.

On the economic front, planned development was put on the top agenda towards the goal of inclusive growth. Abolition of zamindari system, land reforms , raising agricultural productivity by employing modern agricultural practices changed the face of rural India and made our country self sufficient in food. Nehru built the modern temples.. the heavy industries... for rapid industrialisation of India.

On the external front, India espoused a value based foreign policy which drew itself from our cultural values of peace and coexistence and was reflected during the national movement. Article 51 of the directive principles enshrines these values. India became a sane voice of peace during the cold war which threatened humanity. However, the needs of our security were also addressed while articulating our value based foreign policy and the nuclear option and exercise of India's strategic autonomy expressed through Nehru's policy of non alignment added a realistic approach to conduct of India's interaction with the external world.

On the social justice front, constitutional and statutory safeguards were provided for the vulnerable and the deprived. The supreme court has championed the cause of those who can not seek justice on their own through a liberal view on PIL. The failures of the executive and legislative branches in delivering services, protecting the poor and the needy, has resulted in judicial activism or judicial outreach. With all allegations of acting beyond its defined boundaries, the supreme court has truly played the role of a catalyst and agent of social change by initiating social action to mitigate the suffering of the poor.

However, the last seventy years have also thrown up many challenges. These are of political, economic and social nature. The electoral system has evolved in a way that encourages identity politics. Narrow regional identities are clouding the larger national identity. Ethnic conflicts are on the rise, naxalism is spreading its tentacles, conflict in society is on the rise. All this points to the failure of the state to resolve disputes due to inadequacies in our conflict resolution mechanisms. The constitutional values are being undermined by rising intolerance. There is also a negation of constitutional morality in that the spirit of the constitution is not being respected by the political class. Major electoral reforms are being delayed and this makes a mockery of our representative democracy. Parliament is not able to perform its deliberative functions due to frequent disruptions and walk outs. The opposition and the ruling parties are arraigned against each other inside parliament and there is no proper scrutiny of important bills, no thorough discussions on important public issues. Lack of ethical conduct by the law makers sets a bad example of parliamentary behaviour and undermines parliamentary democracy.

On the economic front, inequalities and unemployment are increasing .The democratic dividend is not fully exploited because of lack of imparting employable mentors to strive hard to ensure victory for their respective schools. Encourage all students to join. And the most thrilling part is that students scoring the highest in their respective states will be invited to visit Sriharikota, with expenses borne by the Government. There in September they will get an opportunity to witness the moment when Chandrayaan would be landing on the surface of the Moon. For these winners, it will be a historic event of their life. But for that, you will have to participate in the Quiz competition, score the highest & be a winner.

Friends, I'm sure you must have liked my suggestion... isn't this an interesting opportunity? So, let us not forget to participate in the Quiz... let us encourage & inspire as many friends & fellow students to do the same

My dear countrymen, you must have observed one thing. Our chain of Mann Ki Baat has lent pace to the cleanliness campaign from time to time. Similarly, efforts towards ensuring cleanliness have always inspired Mann Ki Baat. A journey that began five years ago gathered momentum with mass participation & is now setting up newer benchmarks in cleanliness & sanitation. It is not that we have reached the ideal yet, but the way we have achieved success in ODF & clean public spaces, it displays the collective will & strength of the resolve of a hundred & thirty crore countrymen. But we are not stopping at that. This movement has now advanced from cleanliness towards beautification. Just a few days ago, I was watching the story of Shriman Yogesh Saini and his team on the media. Yogesh Saini is an engineer who left his job in America and returned to serve Mother India. Recently, he has picked up the gauntlet to not just clean up Delhi, but to beautify it. With his team, he began with the garbage bins of Lodi Garden. Through the medium of street art, he has decorated many localities of Delhi with aesthetically appealing paintings. From over bridges to school walls to hutments he gave a free hand to his talent, garnering huge public support on the way, on the lines of an effective campaign. Remember how, during the Kumbh, Prayagraj was decorated with street paintings! I came to know that Yogesh Saini & his team played a stellar role in it. Colours & lines may be mute, but when they merge to form a picture, the rainbow that emanates speaks louder than a thousand words. We experience this in the beauty, the aesthetics of the Swachchata Abhiyan. It is imperative that the culture of transforming waste to wealth develops in our society. In a way, we have to move ahead on the path of converting garbage to gold.

My dear countrymen, a few days ago, I read a very interesting comment on My gov. This comment came from Brother Muhammad Aslam who stays in Shopian, Jammu & Kashmir.

He wrote, "I like listening to the programme Mann Ki Baat. I am happy to let you know that I played a positive active role in organizing the community mobilisation programme- Back to Village in my state Jammu & Kashmir. This programme was organized in the month of June. I feel such programmes should be organized every quarter. Simultaneously, there should be a provision for online monitoring too. According to me, this was a one of a kind programme where the public directly entered into a dialogue with the Government.

Brother Mohd Aslam ji had sent me a message upon reading which I felt curious to know more about the 'Back to village' programme and when I got to know it at length, I felt that the entire nation should get to know about this programme.

The people of Kashmir are eager to join the national main stream, their enthusiasm is reflected in the mechanism of this programme. For the first time, senior officials reached the villages, directly, even those officials who had never visited a village were available to the villagers at their doorsteps, to judge for themselves to gauge the obstacles in the path of progress and to remove the hurdles. This week long programme encompassing about 4500 panchayats witnessed the govt. officials briefing the villagers about the schemes and programmes implemented by the Government and also inquired whether these facilities were available to them or not. www.Jobriya.in

How to impart more might to the Panchayats? How to increase their income? And how the facilities rendered by panchayats can affect the day to day life, were topics that were discussed and people too interacted in a participatory values have replaced our human values as we are getting more individualistic and self-centred. We are a part of the so called 'throw away culture' marked by our apathy and indifference towards conserving forests, wildlife and economic resources. Materialism has got the better of humanism and we are forgetting our rich heritage of compassion, kindness , simplicity and love.

Where do we go from here? The path to the future is not one but many. It depends on the choices we make. One path is to rebuild India, strengthen its democratic institutions and imbibe and cultivate the constitutional values of inclusiveness, justice and equality. The other path is to put our narrow self interests above national interest and jeopardise the very existence of our republic.

fashion telling about their problems. Literacy, sex ratio, health, hygiene, water conservation, electricity, water, Girl education, senior citizen's concerns etc. were some of the topics that were discussed at length. www.Jobriya.in Friends, this programme was not a mere Government formality that officials roam around the village and return to base, instead of this the officials spent two days and a night at the panchayat, enabling them to spend time in the village and meet almost every denizen of the village and to reach across to every establishment in the village. To make this programme even more interesting many other means were employed. Many sports competitions for kids were organized under the aegis of 'Khelo India'. Sports Kits, MNREGA job cards and SC/ST certificates were distributed. There were Financial Literacy camps and Agriculture and Horticulture Department set up stalls where knowledge about govt. schemes was disseminated. In this manner, this programme became a festival celebrating development, a festival of people's participation and a festival of people's awakening! .

The people of Kashmir open heartedly became equal stakeholders in this festival. The most heartening aspect of 'Back to village' programme is the fact, that it was organized in such remote villages, where even officials had to traverse difficult terrain and climb mountains while walking on foot over a period of day or day and a half. These officials also reached the panchayats on the border which live under the shadow of cross-border firing, not only this the officials reached the sensitive villages in the districts of Shopian, Pulwama, Kulgam and Anantnag, without any fear. Some officers were so overwhelmed by the reception they received, that they decided to extend their stay upto two days in these villages. The organizing of Gram Sabhas in these villages, wherein the people participated in large numbers and chalked out schemes for themselves is something that is an extremely pleasant experience. A new resolve, a new fervor and grand results. Programmes like these and people's participation or stake holding indicates that our brothers and sisters in Kashmir want good Governance and proves the dictum that the power of development is stronger than the might of bullets and bombs. It is clear that those who wish to spread hatred en route to development, pose hurdles will never succeed in their sinister plans.

My dear countrymen, Shriman Dattatraya Ramchandra Bendre, gyanpith laureate and poet has described the significance of the month of Sawan in this manner- in his poem.

हेडिगे मडिगे आयेद लग्ना। अदराग भूमि मग्ना।

Meaning that the relationship between drizzling rain and stream of water is wondrous and earth gets bedazzled by such spectacle! In entire India, people of different cultures and languages, celebrate the onset of rainy season in their own fashion. Whenever we look around us in this season it appears as if earth has draped itself in a sheet of greenery! There is generation of renewed energy all around us. In this pious season many devotees perform the Kanwad Yatra and many proceed on the Amarnath pilgrimage, many observe fasts and eagerly wait for festivals like Janamasthmi and Nag Panchmi. It is during this season that the festival of Raksha Bandhan symbolizing the bond between a brother and sister also falls.

While we are talking of the month of sawan, you will be glad to learn that the number of pilgrims in the Amarnath Yatra this year has been the greatest in the past 4 years. A total of 3 lakh pilgrims have had the darshan of the holy Amarnath shrine from 1st July till now. In 2015, the number of devotees who performed this pilgrimage over 60 days has been crossed over by the number of pilgrims in mere 28 days this year! www.Jobriya.in

I would especially like to thank the hospitality of the people of Jammu-Kashmir while referring to successful organization of Amarnath Yatra. Those who return after performing this pilgrimage become imbued with the feelings of warmth and kinship displayed by the people of the state. These are portents of booming tourism in the future. I have been told that within a span of a month- and- a half of the commencement of Chardham Yatra in Uttarakhand this year, more than 8 lakh devotees have had the darshan of Kedarnath Shrine. This is a record number of pilgrims post the apocalyptic events of 2013.

I appeal to all of you to visit those tourist spots within our country whose scenic beauty is to behold during the monsoon. There are no better ways to witness this nation's beauty and people's sentiments and no better teachers than tourism and pilgrimage.

I extend my felicitation to you all, that may this beauteous and lively month of Sawan fill all of us with new energy, new hopes and new expectations. The month of August also brings the memories of 'Quit India' movement. I wish that all of us celebrate 15th August with special preparations and find out new ways to observe this festival of freedom with greater participation of masses. You must ponder over the fact how 15th August could be celebrated as a folk-festival and also as a people's festival? On the other hand, heavy rainfall in many parts of the country has resulted in countrymen suffering due to floods. Floods wreak havoc at various levels. I assure all the citizens affected by floods, that the Centre in tandem with State govts. is working at lightning pace to provide relief and succour. On television, we witness just one aspect of monsoon- floods everywhere, water logging and traffic jam! The other picture of monsoon- the overjoyed farmer, chirping birds, gurgling waterfalls and earth wrapped under a green cover, to witness this you will have to step out along with your family. Rains bring freshness and happiness with them, my heartiest wish is that the monsoon keep on bringing happiness to you and you all enjoy best of health.

My dear countrymen, where to begin 'Mann Ki Baat' and where to end it, is a difficult task! But there is a time limit! I'll be back after a month's wait and meet you again. You'll have lots to tell me after a month's interval and I'll incorporate the information in the next episode of 'Mann Ki Baat' and let me remind my young friends that do not forget to participate in the quiz competition, do not forgo the opportunity to visit Sriharikota at any cost. Many thanks to you all. Namaskar.
