GANDHIJI'S INCLUSIVE APPROACH TO RELIGION & SOCIETY

www.Jobriya.com

Prof. N. Radhakrishnan

The last words of the Mahatma were "Hey Ram" (Oh, God). Read this together with the bhajan he loved to hear often (and is heard today at Gandhi-related functions) Eashwar, Allah, tere naam, sabko sanamati de bhagwan reflects Gandhi's approach to religion. The ancient vedic philosophy of Sarva Dharma Samabhav or respect for all religions also formed the basis of Mahatma Gandhi's religious humanism.

Mahatma Gandhi wanted a welfare society which he described Ram Rajya. His faith in God was unshakable. His God was not a personal God. He repeatedly chanted Ram nama. His God guides him to noble action and whose presence can be felt everywhere.

The Ram Rajya he was advocating was an ideal social order where an ideal King rules over his subjects without any distinction whatsoever. Truth, equal opportunity for all, dharma and justice will be the dominant characteristics of such a society. The poorest of the poor will have equal say in the governance. Nobody will be discriminated against anybody.

While what Mahatma Gandhi was trying to achieve could be described to be unorthodox, it had far-reaching effects in the sense that he was able to create the impression that his view of religion constituted both a vision of the absolute that guides everyone in his daily life and practical guide in our daily life.

The scientific basis of Sarvadharm Samabhav

Mahatma Gandhi believed that an emerging and progressive nation should have a progressive outlook on its religions and what else could it be other than the creation of a conducive atmosphere that ensures the development of the society which could be possible if only peace and harmony exists.

His vision of religious amity through 'Sarva Dharma Samabhav' should also be viewed along with the holistic vision of Mahatma Gandhi. Viewed separately or in isolation, his views on religion would sound a bit mystic and confusing. Blind faith or fundamentalist, revivalist version of religion was totally unacceptable to him. He would instantly question it to ascertain whether it was meaningful and reasonable in terms of basic human values: 'enjoy the things of the earth by renouncing them' was his view.

Satya and Ahimsa as the Twin Pillars of Human Life

The core of all what Mahatma Gandhi did convincingly shows that the Gandhian vision of a society which is free of conflicts and tensions of various kinds would be

GANDHIAN PRINCIPLES AND PRECEPTS ON EDUCATION

Prof. Anoop Swarup

'What will tell in the end is character and not a knowledge of letters!'

- Mahatma Gandhi

The above quote of Mahatma Gandhi does reveal his farsightedness and the vision for a modern, skilled and developed India, where our youth are employable and independent. Let's have the perspective of our demography as we plan for India's decade, our workforce peaks to have 116 million workers in the age group of 20-24 years against 94 million of those in China. Yes the fertility rate will be down below the replacement level of 2.1% in a couple of years and ILO estimates that the India's workforce will rise until 2031 and would plateau until 2041. Will it be a demographic dividend or a disaster? As the opportunity beckons and the world watches, we have to look forward to capitalise on strengthening the virtuous cycle of reduction in overall dependent population from 49.5% to 41.1%. more savings and more investments in our human resources. To educate, energise, employ and empower may perhaps be the new mantra as presented by the Human Resource Ministry to the 15th Finance Commission recently, provided we invest in our human resources. Let's examine Gandhian principles and precepts in this context to have a better appreciation of formalising the entire narrative of making it India's decade.

Mahatma Gandhi had a holistic concept of human development contributing to national growth and development and believed in the idea of character building, skilling and man making. The concept of trusteeship he believed would pave the way to construct small, self-reliant communities with its ideal citizens being all industrious, self-respecting and generous individuals living in a small co-operatives and community. He wished that skills and some local craft should be made as medium of education for children so that they develop their mind, body and soul in a harmonious way and also meet the needs of their future life. These Gandhian precepts and educational thoughts are relevant for development and providing solutions of the current problems like unemployment, poverty, corruption delinquency, criminality and many others.

No wonder Mahatma Gandhi's views on a classless society and on the 'primacy of reason over religions' through education have inspired and invigorated national decisions and outcomes on educational policy and practice.

possible if only society willingly accepts Satya and Ahimsa as the means of transformation of both the individual and society. And this would become practically impossible if attention is diverted to other issues. The running passion of many of his speeches in the last decades of his life was the strong reminder to his countrymen that "To revile another's religion, to make reckless statements, utter untruths, to break the heads of innocent men, to desecrate temples or mosque is denial of God".

Ignorance of Other Religions

Let it be remembered that very few religious or social leaders in contemporary times or before or after Mahatma Gandhi stressed the importance of people developing such a healthy view of religions as Gandhi and to him goes the credit of convincing his countrymen to adopt such a vision as a 'mantra' or a societal virtue.

Mahatma Gandhi realized that the root cause of religious fanaticism and misunderstanding between the different religious groups is one's ignorance of other religions. Very few, including the heads of religious groups were found to have even basic awareness of other religions. Hence one of the areas Gandhi concentrated was the removal of the age-old feeling he himself knew was prevalent among many, that the study of other religions was not approved by their religions and it was blasphemous.

Mahatma Gandhi advised people to study other religions sympathetically through the writings of such persons who were ardent votaries of those religions. He emphasized that such a study "of other religions besides one's own will give one a grasp of the rock-bottom unity of all religions and afford a glimpse also of the universal and absolute truth which lies beyond the dust of creeds and faiths". The general situation was definitely complex and people had the mistaken notion that the study of other religions would weaken their faith and such attitude was against the tenets of their religious precepts.

It has to be admitted that the venom of caste and communal feelings has spread to almost all layers of our social and political life and several long-term and short-term policies are to be evolved and implemented both at the national and local levels in order to stem the rising tide of communal frenzy. The problem should not be looked at from the angle of majority or minority rights and privileges but one of national importance. First and foremost an awareness has to be created that communalism, fundamentalism and casteism are cancerous growth, a devil who might be friendly today but who will definitely ask for our soul tomorrow.

The Lessons from Noakhali

Mahatma Gandhi was alarmed by the spreading of venom of caste and communal feelings to almost all layers of our social and political life and several long-term and short-term policies were initiated by him even in the midst of the national struggle for freedom.'The Pilgrimage for Peace' as his Noakhali experiments were described and the daring and courageous steps he took to douse the fires of hatred, senseless killing and brutality indulged in by mad crowds horrified him.

The lessons from Noakhali were louder and clearer. Lord Moutbatten found in Gandhi's achievement in Noakhali the triumph of human will and brave attempts to defy death to promote peace and harmony. www.Jobriya.com

Be the Change You Want to See in the World

Mahatma Gandhi's assertion 'I will continue to speak from my grave' guiding those who move away from the path of dharma generate echoes of reminders that one should not lose sanity under any circumstance and rather should 'be the change you want to see in others'. Gandhi as part of his efforts to offer a healing touch to those victims in the conflict ravaged areas toured Noakhali, moving from village to village and preaching the gospel of peace. At first he thought of making the journey completely alone, depending for food and shelter on the villagers he encountered, but the scheme was obviously impractical. Claspng a long bamboo staff in his right hand, he set out every morning with a small band of companions for the next village.

He walked with his long bamboo staff in one hand, the other resting on Manubehn's shoulder. In this way, every morning at seven thirty, he set out on his pilgrimage, singing the haunting song written by Rabindranath Tagore:

Walk alone

If they answer not your call, walk alone;
If they are afraid and coher mutely facing the wall,
O thou of evil luck,
Open thy mind and speak out alone.

The song reflected the mood of the pilgrim, as he travelled from village to village. The journey was an arduous one, and sometimes his feet bled.

When he travelled from village to village, he would sometimes find human excreta left on the narrow pathways. Seeing it, he would pluck a leaf and bend down and scoop it up. He knew why it had been placed there. Once a person spat on his face. For a few moments he stood gazing at the man in shock and horror, remembering that from his earliest childhood he had been a friend to all, and then he slowly brushed the spit away and went on as though nothing had happened. There were moments of pure terror, when it seemed that death hung in the air haunting the forests and the villages.

He half-expected to be assassinated, and said he would welcome such a death. "But I should love, above all, to fade out doing my duty with my last breath", he wrote to a friend during the last stages of the pilgrimage. At night he suffered from shivering fits, and during the day there was a drumming in his ears. Exhaustion had brought on high blood pressure.

After this, by the end of February Gandhi was under strong pressure to visit Bihar. The Biharis, who live in the shadow of the Himalayas, are a notably mild and gentle people, and the sudden upsurge of violence seemed inexplicable. Gandhi went to Patna, the provincial capital. Once more he journeyed from village to village, trying to discover the causes of the riots. In his journey he was sometimes accompanied by Khan Abdul Ghaffar Khan, "the frontier Gandhi". A giant of a man, with the features of a warrior-saint, in love with nonviolence, he added his immense prestige to the pilgrimage of mercy.

What Gandhi saw in Noakhali, Kolkata and Bihar were heart-rending sights. There were villages which had been razed to the ground, corpses lay in the dense thickets of bamboos, the vultures were feeding on them. He asked the people to accept their guilt, to give him letters admitting their crimes, and to pledge themselves to live together in amity and goodwill.

Mahatma Gandhi's achievements in Noakhali brought accolades and appreciation from all sides and political strategists in different parts of the world looked at Gandhi with disbelief.

The magnitude of Mahatma Gandhi's achievement in Noakhali also generated new interest in the efficacy and tools of Gandhian approach to nonviolent problem-solving.

Let me cite that the Kothari Commission Report (1964 -66) was largely inspired by Gandhian precepts for reforms in schooling, technical training and even higher education guide as a beacon of hope even today. The pursuit of education policy and planning being modelled in the New Education Policy has to promote, pursue and practice skilling and vocational aspects of learning by ensuring, dignity of labour, life skills, character building, value education and other values inculcated early in life. On higher education, he asserted "I would revolutionize college education and relate it to national necessities. There would be degrees for mechanical and other engineers. They would be attached to the different industries which should pay for the training of the graduates they need".

These tenets of Gandhiji's concept of craft-centric and need centric education finds an echo in the transition from rote learning to affirmative learning now being propounded. This approach is now being hailed as the best way forward for a meaningful and progressive society, even for nonviolent and nonkilling positive peace.

The framers of our Constitution did include Gandhian precepts in the "Directive Principles of State Policy", not enforceable or guaranteed by the law. We adopted the parliamentary system of democracy, where subservience to the Raj and rule of law had primacy in favour of a bureaucratic, anachronistic and archaic governance model. Unwittingly we fostered an outdated system that put in motion a chaotic and multi-layered oligarchic election process, that defied any reforms or even modern and progressive change for future society. Incidentally and in retrospect such a deceptive governance structure was what Gandhi was vehemently opposed to as evident as early as 1909 through his seminal work Hind Swaraj.

On the economic front, over the years globalization, privatization and liberalization have often led to poverty and widening gap between the rich and the poor as pointed in the Oxfam report titled, 'Reward Work, not Wealth' released in 2018 "73 per cent of the wealth generated last year went to the richest one per cent, while 67 crore who comprise the poorest half of the population saw just one per cent increase in their wealth". The intricate nexus of education, economics, growth and prosperity was well understood by Mahatma Gandhi, when he spoke of skilled and empowered youth to propel the idea of 'swarajya' and 'ramrajya'. Indeed, Gandhian ideals and ideas are rooted to the ground realities being neither utopian nor impractical to execute and do deserve a trial on the economic front too considering his revolutionary and scientific approach. Let us imagine and envision the future of the country on Gandhian lines in order to realise the India of Gandhi's dreams.

Gandhiji's own contribution to education has been unique considering that the advent of British colonial rule in India, brought forth an alien system of imperial education contrary to the traditional and time tested, well distilled, holistic and all-inclusive educational system of India. It is in this spirit that we have to urgently repair the damage to Indian education system that has brought in differences of race, caste religion but also the legacy of British Raj governance, class-consciousness and the crave for western materialism. Gandhiji's important works and writings on education have been meticulously brought forth by Bharatan Kumarappa in his two excellent works 'Basic Education' (1951) and 'Towards New Education' (1953). Gandhiji's philosophy of education is a harmonious blending of Idealism which provides the basis whereas pragmatism puts the precepts into practice. The notion of 'education for life, education through life, and education throughout life" very well sums up the all-round development of the individual and (wo)man making. Mahatma Gandhi's quest for self-realisation was through eternal humility and wisdom that is best portrayed in his philosophy of life long education that had elements of pursuit of truth, nonviolent action, fearlessness and satyagraha.

Gandhiji believed in self-sacrifice and a philosophy of life that helped him in developing his philosophy of Education as a true source of inspiration where Primary Education is to prepare our youth to the ever challenging task of being morally sound, independent, constructive, productive and responsible future citizens who will be self-employed through skill training. Gandhiji believed that the ultimate aim of life is to seek Truth or God as he explained - "By education I mean all-round drawing out of the best in child's and man's body, mind and spirit. Literacy is neither the beginning nor the end of education. This is only a means through which man or woman can be educated."

More than learning of the three R's Reading, Writing and Arithmetic in school, he insisted on development of H's Hand, Heart and Head. Mahatma Gandhi believed that the separation of learning from labor would result in social injustice. In dynamic societies such as ours, he advocated education for self-reliance and the capacity to earn one's livelihood as the main aim of education. He advocated that learning and earning do go together with vocational education and cultural advancement.

Gandhiji wrote, "To develop the self is to build character and to prepare the self for complete realization and realization of Godliness'. In his scheme of things learning and knowledge must be practice based where the curriculum is activity cantered, so pragmatic and true in the modern-day approach to education. Gandhiji insisted that his system would lead to communal harmony because it would be the same for all; it would thus be "practical religion, the religion of self-help". Gandhiji disapproved rote learning and considered it as defective and emphasized to make skills and vocations as means of education. Gandhiji emphasized on the following principles in his teaching methodology: for mental development, training of senses and parts of the body be given; reading should precede the teaching of writing; more opportunities should be given for learning by doing; encouragement be given to learning by experience; Correlation be established in the teaching methods and learning experiences.

There is perhaps no denying that the present system of education has unwittingly become an instrument to more and more consumerism, materialism, competition, divisions and violence. The erosion of ethics and values, the unrest and divide, and violence, as also the intolerance and mistrust that we see today have once again brought us to go back to our Gurukul past, our quintessential wisdom, and our heritage. The visionary in the Mahatma could foresee such possible developments a century ago and advocate new alternative educational thoughts based on timeless and eternal principles of truth, tolerance, love, self-sacrifice, character building, life skills learning. Thus, the Mahatma did show us the way forward and for our youth to be skilled not for degrees but for jobs and gainful employment for an India of the new century where environmentalism, human consciousness and moral values will rule and usher in an affirmative society for progressive and positive peace. No wonder if the Mahatma's thoughts on education are brought to reality we can make the world a better place to live.

With rare photographs detailing the life and times of Mahatma Gandhi, this book not only portrays the birth of a shy boy, his early years and education, his experiments with truth through his various movements - first in South Africa and then in India, but also the story of intensive Indian Freedom Struggle of 20th century, of which Gandhi was the main architect. This book was first brought out in 1954 by Publications Division, Ministry of Information and Broadcasting, taking photographs from the Sarvodaya Diwas Pradarshani organized at Rajghat in January 1949 to mark the first anniversary of Gandhiji's death. An abridged version of the album was published in 1969 to commemorate the Centenary birth anniversary of Bapu. This heritage publication, with image support from National Gandhi Museum, New Delhi, is now available in its original 1954 edition with improved production quality and tasteful presentation. This is Publication Division's humble homage to Mahatma Gandhi during Gandhi@150 commemoration by the Government of India.

The book can be purchased @ Rs. 2360/- from publicationsdivision.nic.in and amazon.in

INTERNATIONAL

- The US wants a peaceful solution to the crisis sparked by attacks on Saudi oil facilities, Secretary of State Mike Pompeo said, after Iran raised the prospect of all-out war. Pompeo has blamed Iran for the dramatic weekend assault on two facilities, condemning as an act of war which knocked out half the kingdom's oil production. After meeting with allies in Riyadh and Abu Dhabi, Pompeo said there was an enormous consensus in the region that Iran carried out the attacks, despite its denials and Yemeni rebels' claims that they were responsible. But Pompeo said the US is intent on finding a way out of the confrontation. Tehran-linked Huthi rebels in Saudi Arabia's southern neighbour Yemen have claimed responsibility, but both Washington and Riyadh have said the operation was beyond the Yemeni insurgents' capabilities. French Foreign Minister Jean-Yves Le Drian also said the Huthi claim lacks credibility. The rhetoric has raised the risk of an unpredictable escalation in a tinderbox region where Saudi Arabia and Iran are locked in a decades-old struggle for dominance. www.Jobriya.com

GANDHIJI & SANITATION

Prof. Sudarshan Iyengar

Gandhiji edited and contributed articles and notes to several periodicals. He wrote about sanitation and hygiene related issues frequently in Navajivan and Young India and later in Harijan. Insanitation in the villages and urban settlements in the country weighed heavily on his mind. During the Kheda Satyagraha; he wrote about the condition of home, pond and fields in regard to sanitation and hygiene in Navajivan of November 2, 1919. He wrote a series of articles under the heading Jagat no Tat - father of the world. His agony was that the farmer and his family lived in such insanitary and unhygienic conditions out of ignorance and lack of concern. Some of his observations were as follows:

We have also seen that the rules of cleanliness are not followed in villages. It is said that "cleanliness is next to godliness". There is no reason why we should be dirty or live in dirty surroundings. There is no sanctity in dirt! Filth is a sign of ignorance and sloth.

Gandhiji was more decent in using an expression 'open evacuation' in place of open defecation that is used in the national and international reports in present times! He pointed out in the article that not using latrines and open evacuation practice was the cause for many diseases. The old, children, sick and weak persons in the family and in the hamlets could not go out for evacuation and hence turned the courtyard, lanes or houses into latrines, dirtying the place and poisoning the air. He then recommended that people should build simple toilets or should have system of containers where method of covering the excreta with dry earth should be practiced with diligence.

In the issue of Young India, of November 19, 1925 Gandhiji in a way summed up his impression about sanitation situation in India. He wrote,

"During my wanderings nothing has been so painful to me as to observe our insanitation throughout the length and breadth of the land. I do not believe in the use of force for carrying out reforms, but when I think of the time that must elapse before the ingrained habits of millions of people can be changed, I almost reconcile myself to compulsion in this the most important matter of insanitation."

In Harijan of February 8, 1935 he dealt with the subject comprehensively. He made very pertinent observations about how Indians were oriented toward the habits relating to cleanliness. Although he never agreed, but was able to understand that the destitute, poor, and people of condemned class had come to accept insanitation as part of their lives. For others who did not suffer from economic backwardness had understood the importance of being clean and practice hygiene in their personal lives and in the houses they lived, but their indifference and guilt of commission at neighbourhood, village and town levels were high. In Gandhiji's words, the problem of sanitation and hygiene was at 'corporate' level. Interestingly, Gandhiji in the article mentioned.

"Some foreign observers have testified that, of all the nations of the earth, India comes, perhaps, to the top in the observance of personal cleanliness."

Gandhiji's writings impacted some people across the country to become voluntary sanitary workers in the villages. Their initial enthusiasm had setbacks. In reply to their letters Gandhiji wrote an article 'Problems Confronting a Sanitary Worker', in Harijanbandhu of October 27, 1935. The necessary condition to become a good sanitary worker, volunteering with loyalty was only a necessary condition. A sanitary worker had to perform the task in an enlightened manner, equipped with social and technical innovation.

Strangely, the human society that demonstrated to the world thousands of years ago about good sanitation management fell into deplorable practices. Handling human excreta for disposal became dreaded work and hence a taboo. Communities that were compelled to do it were relegated to the lowest step of the caste ladder of social hierarchy. Gandhiji abhorred this from his childhood days. The rural and urban communities continued to neglect their duty to sanitation and hygiene and compelled its handling to certain castes, condemning them to destitution. Ingenious person that he was, he used the nomenclature in practice to signify a professional doing the same work. He became a practicing sanitation worker and called himself by the same name that was used by the society to identify sanitary worker and the caste. He also created a community of such sanitation workers in Ashrams. And then in the issue of November 28, 1936 of Harijan he wrote an article 'The Ideal Safai Karyakar'.

Gandhiji argued that if the Indian society had given due recognition and status to the sanitary workers' communities deservingly equivalent to that of Brahmin, Indian villages would have been clean and sanitised. Describing the qualities of an ideal sanitary worker Gandhiji wrote the following: www.Jobriya.com

"What qualities should such an honoured servant of society exemplify in his person? ... (he) should have a thorough knowledge of the principles of sanitation. He should know how a right kind of latrine is constructed and the correct way of cleaning it. He should know how to overcome and destroy the odour of excreta and the various disinfectants to render them innocuous. He should likewise know the process of converting night-soil and urine into manure... That presupposes a scientific knowledge of the requirements of his profession. He would likewise be an authority on the subject of disposal of night-soil in small villages as well as big cities and his advice and guidance in the matter would be sought for and freely given to society. (he) regard(s) the maintenance of healthy and sanitary condition within the same as the summum bonum of his existence."

These are the qualities of a thorough professional sanitary worker working in rural areas even today. Gandhiji wrote about the lack of good instruments and equipment to handle excreta and dirt. After eighty years of Gandhiji's clear vision of professionalising the sanitary work, we have failed to put it in action on the ground particularly in villages and urban slums and in old city settlements. Gandhiji's concern with sanitation continued and one is able to find a small note in the issue of August 18, 1946 in Harijan titled 'Limit to Insanitation'. He was upset by the insanitary conditions of Panchgani where he went to spend some time to convalescence. A place such as Panchgani known for health recovery and also Mahabaleshwar, an adjoining health resort, both had high degree of insanitation. He lamented the deplorable condition and said that the main fault was with the people. In South Africa he had partly admitted the duality in behaviour of Indians about hygiene at individual and collective levels with great mortification, but in 1936 he made frank and full admission and wrote 'the truth of it has to be admitted with Sorrow'. We, Gandhiji's countrymen and women, have still a very long way to follow.
