STATUS OF URBAN HEALTH IN INDIA

Prof. S.K. Kataria

Good health, hygiene and sanitation including family welfare services are the minimum expectations of a civilized society from the modern administrative state. WHO defines health as- "a state of complete physical, mental and social well-being and not merely an absence of disease or infirmity". In recent decades, this definition has been amplified by including the ability to lead a 'socially and economically productive life.' Since the ages, the health or 'Aarogya' has been a core concern for daily life of the Indians that is why it said that - dharmarth kaam mokshanaam aarogyam ch mool uktam means all the purushartha i.e.dharam (righteousness, moral values), artha (prosperity, economic values), kaam (pleasure or love, psychological values) and moksha (liberation, spiritual values) can be done effectively if we have sound health. Virgil says- "the greatest wealth is health." Ayurveda or the science of life had been a traditional system of medicine from 2500 BC to 17th century AD. During British colonial period the European or Allopathic system of medicine was the official health care system along with Ayurveda and other indigenous systems. After independence, apart from allopathy the other systems of medicine like unani, siddha, homeopathy, naturopathy alongwith Ayurveda, were recognized as official systems of medicine in the country. During the 80s, the private sector was allowed in the mainstream of medical care in India. Presently, India has become a hotspot for those seeking world-class treatment at very low cost. But the fact remains that a lot more needs to be done in terms of infrastructure upgrading.

The urban population in India is projected to be 46 % by 2030 considering the rapid decadal growth rate of urbanization. This rapid urbanization poses numerous challenges to the government and the foremost of them is 'urban health' as the cities are often identified as hotbeds for life-style diseases often described as 'modern epidemics.'

Urban Life Style Originated Diseases: Modern Epidemics

Conventionally, the term 'epidemic' was used for the large number of cases of a particular disease happening at the same time in a particular community, especially infectious diseases. However in modern societies, most of the fatal infectious diseases have either been eliminated or controlled. In the present global context, the definition and causes of epidemic has changed with life-style diseases dominating the most.

Due to rapid industrialization induced air, water and noise pollution, over population, deforestation, climate change, mechanization of routine life, revolution in information and communication technology and automobile industry, high use of pesticides in crop fields, artificial

CAREER IN NUTRITION -EMPOWERING INDIVIDUALS WITH PERSONAL HEALTH

Nidhi Prasad

Indian culinary tradition is as diverse as its culture. The food preferences of Indians change with not just the geography and ethnicity but also with climate and seasons. In summer when people suffer from heat-related conditions, such as heat stroke, sunburn, Indians are advised to eat plenty of grains, such as oats, barley, wheat or rice. One should also consume vegetables with starch, like potatoes and fruits such as oranges and grapefruit. In winter, deep fried food items are preferred as they keep the body warm. There is also a preference for foods that are sour and saline based.

However, today's generation's view of modern diet and human health has undergone drastic changes. Many chronic health problems, relate mainly to diet.

Unfortunately, today's world has adapted to a system of consumption of foods which has several adverse effects on human health. What you consume on a daily basis will determine how your health will be in the present and future.

As the month of September is blessed with a harvest moon, the government has chosen this month to create awareness about nutritional requirements of the nation. India has the world's third-highest number of billionaires. But at the same time, micro-nutrient deficiency continues to be a major public health issue. Malnutrition is not apparent, as a child may appear healthy, even though she or he may be suffering from the inside because of micro-nutrient deficiency. This is not just limited to kids in rural India but is also deep-rooted among urban children. There is a critical need to create a pool of experts who can provide information on nutrition that is accessible to all.

Gone are the days when grandmas had all the solutions related to health within the kitchen. Eating habits, especially among the urban class, have moved from home kitchen to commercial kitchens as taste is considered more important than nutrition. Similarly, food today is grown for better yield and not for better nutrition and today's rampant lifestyle diseases are the reflection of this trend.

To fight this grave situation, the Government of India has launched September as Poshan Month which complements Prime Minister Narendra Modi's flagship scheme Poshan Abhiyan which was launched in March 2018.

ripening of fruits, processed and preserved food items, numerous non-infectious diseases have gripped the urbanites.

Some of the most crucial health issues of Indian urbanites are the following-

1. Obesity
2. Cardio-vascular problems
3. Psycho-neurological disorders
4. Cancer
5. Diabetes
6. Under- nutrition
7. Allergies and respiratory disorders
8. Hormonal imbalances
9. Viral diseases

Obesity has become a big health problem in urban India due to many reasons, mainly wrong and unhealthy food habits, stressful life and less physical activities. India ranks 2nd with 155 million obese citizens and this number is increasing at 33.50 % per year. Among individuals aged between 15-49 years, nearly 21 % women and 19 % men have been found to be overweight or obese. As per various scientific studies the presence of obesogenic chemicals such as DDT (dichloro diphenyl trichloroethane), bisphenol A (plastic material), MSG (mono sodium glutamate) and arsenic trigger obesity as well as late night dinner, prolonged watching on TV, long sitting on laptop or desktop, video games, cell phone chatting, street and fast foods and avoiding routine physical activities etc ultimately lead to obesity. Obesity is considered as one of the most serious health challenges of 21st century since it is identified as a major cause of various chronic diseases and death. As per National Family Health Survey, the people of Punjab, Kerala, Goa and Tamil Nadu are most obese states in the country while people of Tripura and Jharkhand are least obese.

As per a survey conducted by Lancet in 2017, on behalf of the WHO, 34 % of Indians do inefficient physical activities as compared to neighboring countries like China, Nepal and Pakistan. India stands at 52nd out of 168 countries.

Cardio Vascular Diseases (CVDs) have now become the leading cause of mortality in India. About 25 % of all deaths in the country are attributed by Cardio Vascular Diseases. Hypertension, arteriosclerosis; ischemic heart disease and stroke are the main threats. Globally, the CVDs death rate is 235 per 100000 people while it is 272 in India. In Indian cities, 30-40 % of CVDs deaths occur in the age group of 34-64 years, which is considered the productive segment of the population.

Diabetes is most common in India with 52 million patients making the country 'the diabetes capital of the world.' The prevalence of Diabetes type -2 has increased by 64 % across the country in 25 years. WHO estimates that the number of diabetic patients will cross the figure of 80 million by 2030. The country witnesses 3.4 million deaths every year due to diabetes which is known as 'the silent killer.' Going by a study conducted by the triggering factors i.e. use of tobacco, alcohol, pesticides, household chemicals, cosmetic items, environmental pollution, exposure to radiation and various types of infections especially virus etc are well identified and proved. Fruit ripening chemicals like calcium carbide, ethylene and ethephon, processed food and fried foods are also causing gastro-intestinal cancers.

Allergy or hypersensitivity disorder of human body has become a big threat for modern generations and it is mainly due to environmental imbalance and changes in human body. It is estimated that nearly 25 -30% population of the country is facing mild or severe allergic health problems and most common is allergic rhinitis, sinusitis, asthma, eczema and various food-drug- insect allergies. Being a tropical country, wide -ranged weather changes are very common and at the same time the atmosphere is full of allergens, dust, aerial pollen, silica, chemical in food, toxic elements and some plants e.g. parthenium (gaazar ghaas) and cape gum (keekar) which cause allergies.

Psycho- neurological disorders among Indians are hardly considered as a health problem due to social taboos and superstitions. As per a nationwide study conducted by the National Institute of Mental Health and Neurosciences (NIMHANS) in 2014-16, about 13.7% population of the country is suffering from mental illness and 10.6% persons require immediate intervention. These disorders include anxiety, stress, phobia, depression, schizophrenia, autism etc. The working couple of urban India do not have substantive time to care for their children so socio- psycho problems of these children is on hike causing overall personality defects. About 8 million people commit suicide every year in the world; of these 17% are Indians mainly between the age group of 15-40 years. Similarly 30 million people are suffering from neurological disorders like epilepsy, Parkinson's disease, Alzheimer's disease, febrile convulsions, peripheral neuropathy and migraine etc.

Under nutrition and malnutrition exist in medium, higher and very high income group families of the country. Protein, iron, calcium, folic acid, vitamin B-12, vitamin -D and zinc deficiency are very common in Indian urban as well as rural population. About 33 % malnourished children of the world are in India and 43 % children (below 5 years age) of the country are under weight. Most of the youth and college going girls of the country are anaemic.

Other life style diseases and health problems in urban India are dry eyes and back pain due to prolonged working on desktop, laptop and cell phone; facial palsy due to sudden variation in temperature (exit from AC room to road directly), dental caries, hepatitis A, B and C, HIV-AIDS, insomnia, food poisoning (gastro enteritis), infertility and hormonal imbalances. Puberty, pregnancy and menopause are some time period of hormonal imbalance but the increasing number of thyroid (hypo and hyper both) patients in the country is a warning sign. About 42 million people are suffering from thyroid problem. It is believed that auto-immune failure is the main cause of

University of Sydney, people in developing countries have faced multi-generational under-nutrition and are currently undergoing major lifestyle changes, contributing to an epidemic of metabolic diseases, though the underlying mechanisms remain unclear. According to a study (2016-17) conducted by the Madras Diabetes Research Foundation the prevalence of diabetes is just double in urban areas (11.2 %) in comparison to rural areas (5.2 %).

The number of type-1 diabetics (no secretion of insulin from the pancreas) is about 0.1 million in the country and these young people are mainly city based and dependent on insulin shots twice a day.

Cancer or carcinoma (malignancy) is a fast increasing disease in almost every country since the middle of 20th century. According to an estimate, India currently has 2.5 million cancer patients. More than 71 % deaths in the age group of 30-69 are caused due to various types of cancer. Cancer of oral cavity, lungs, stomach, colorectum, pharynx, liver, prostate and pancreas are more common among men, while cancer of breast, cervix, ovary and colorectal is widely found in the Indian women. Although, exact cause of cancer is still not known, however the thyroid problem and auto - immune system failure also cause stomatitis (aphthous ulcer), diabetes(type-1), rheumatoid arthritis, psoriasis, multiple sclerosis, irritable bowel syndrome (IBS), Addison's disease, myasthenia gravis, vasculitis and many more.

Decreasing immunity power or disease resistance is a new emerging problem in the urbanites due to their life style and malnutrition. Since last two decades the country is facing recurrent attacks of dengue, chikungunya, swine flu, bird flu, H1N1, Ebola virus, nipah virus and many other viral fevers. Although the traditional infectious diseases are under control but 11% population of Indian cities are still infected by tuberculosis, hepatitis, amoebiasis, typhoid and malaria. It is also strange to see that most of the deaths in urban areas, due to these infections, are of young people in the range of 15-45 years.

Health in Urban Slums

As per Census- 2011 data there were 65.49 million inhabitants living in 13.92 million households in slums. About 5.4 % population of the entire country and 17.4% of urban population was residing in slums. Most of the slums are very congested, overly populated and unhygienic conditions have Poverty is the root cause of all the problems of any slum. Non -availability of clean drinking water, piles of garbage, open defecation, mosquitoes, flies, pollution, alcoholism, drugs addiction, industrial hazards (e.g. silicosis) and poverty lead to increase in morbidity and mortality including infectious diseases (mainly tuberculosis, hepatitis, typhoid, measles, AIDS, cholera, parasitic infestations and malaria), anemia and malnutrition among mother and children. A total 89.6 % death in the Indian slums occur due to respiratory diseases as studied by the International Institute of Population Studies in 2015. While about 1.9 million children die every year in these slums due to malnutrition, pneumonia, measles and diarrhea.

Towards Healthy India: Some Remedies

The modernization process of human civilization explains the transformation of a traditional society to a modern society which is mainly secular, industrial, urban, technological sound with scientific temperament, while globalization is considered as an integration of economic, social and political cultures across the globe. The Constitution of India makes a provision 'to develop scientific temper, humanism and the spirit of inquiry and reform' as a fundamental duty under Article 51-A (h).

All the fake advertisements in newspapers or on TV and internet must be banned effectively and proper action must be taken under the 'Drugs and Magic Remedies (Objectionable Advertisements) Act, 1954'. Similarly, the Food Safety and Standards Act, 2006' is to be enforced effectively and any adulteration in food items must be treated with immediate concern.

The National Health Policy, 2017 makes the provision of highest possible level of good health and well-being through a preventive and promotive care orientation in all development policies. National Urban Health Mission (NUHM) was launched as a sub-mission of National Health Mission in 2013, needs further revamping and reforms according to the needs of urban diseases. There are nearly 250 national programmes and schemes operational in whole country and more than 20% of these national schemes are of health sector. Only around 27 % people of the country are covered under any health insurance plan. Health insurance is still not a serious concern and practice of Indians. It is hoped that the universal health coverage under 'Aayushman Bharat' will change the fate of resourceless people of the country because health and happiness are siblings.

Question Paper Civil Services (Preliminary) Examination, 2019

www.Jobriya.com

General Studies Paper II www.Jobriya.com

Directions for the following 8 (eight) items :

Read the following seven passages and answer the items that follow each passage. Your answers to these items should be based on the passages only.

Passage - 1

Political theorists no doubt have to take history of injustice, for example, untouchability, seriously. The concept of historical injustice takes note of a variety of historical wrongs that continue into the present in some form or the other and tend to resist repair. Two reasons might account for resistance to repair. One, not only are the roots of injustice buried deep in history, injustice itself constitutes economic structures of exploitation, ideologies of discrimination and modes of representation. Two, the category of historical injustice generally extends across a number of wrongs such as economic deprivation, social discrimination and lack of recognition. This category is complex, not only because of the overlap between a number of wrongs, but because one or the other wrong, generally discrimination; tends to acquire partial autonomy from others. This is borne out by the history of repair in India.

Q1. What is the main idea that we can infer from the passage?

- Untouchability in India has not been taken seriously by political theorists.
- Historical injustice is inevitable in any society and is always beyond repair.
- Social discrimination and deprivation have their roots in bad economies.
- It is difficult; if not impossible, to repair every manifestation of historical injustice.

Q2. On the basis of the above passage, the following assumptions have been made :

- Removal of economic discrimination leads to removal of social discrimination.
 - Democratic polity is the best way to repair historical wrongs.
- Which of the above assumptions is/are valid?
- 1 only
 - 2 only
 - Both 1 and 2
 - Neither 1 nor 2

Passage - 2

Education plays a great transformatory role in life, particularly so in this rapidly changing and globalizing world. Universities are the custodians of the intellectual capital and promoters of culture and specialized knowledge. Culture is an activity of thought, and receptiveness to beauty and human feelings. A merely well informed man is only a bore on God's earth. What we should aim at is producing men who possess both culture and expert knowledge. Their expert knowledge will give them a firm ground to start from and their culture will lead them as deep as philosophy and as high as art. Together it will impart meaning to human existence.

Q3. On the basis of the above passage, the following assumptions have been made:

- A society without well educated people cannot be transformed into a modern society.
 - Without acquiring culture, a person's education is not complete. Which of the above assumptions is/are valid?
- 1 only
 - 2 only
 - Both 1 and 2
 - Neither 1 nor 2

Passage - 3

Soil, in which nearly all our food grows, is a living resource that takes years to form. Yet it can vanish in minutes. Each year 75 billion tonnes of fertile soil is lost to erosion. That is alarming - and not just for food producers. Soil can trap huge quantities of carbon dioxide in the form of organic carbon and prevent it from escaping into the atmosphere.

Q4. On the basis of the above passage, the following assumptions have been made:

- Large scale soil erosion is a major reason for widespread food insecurity in the world.
 - Soil erosion is mainly anthropogenic.
 - Sustainable management of soils helps in combating climate change.
- Which of the above assumptions is/are valid?
- 1 and 2 only
 - 3 only
 - 2 and 3 only
 - 1, 2 and 3

Passage - 4

Inequality is visible, even statistically measurable in many instances, but the economic power that drives it is invisible and not measurable. Like the force of gravity, power is the organising principle of inequality, be it of income, or wealth, gender, race, religion and region. Its effects are seen in a pervasive manner in all spheres, but the ways in which economic power pulls and tilts visible economic variables remain invisibly obscure.

Q5. On the basis of the above passage, the following assumptions have been made:

- Economic power is the only reason for the existence of inequality in a society.

- Inequality of different kinds, income, wealth, etc. reinforces power.
 - Economic power can be analysed more through its effects than by direct empirical methods.
- Which of the above assumptions is/are valid?
- 1 and 2 only
 - 3 only
 - 1 and 3 only
 - 1, 2 and 3

Passage 5

Climate change may actually benefit some plants by lengthening growing seasons and increasing carbon dioxide. Yet other effects of a warmer world, such as more pests, droughts, and flooding, will be less benign. How will the world adapt? Researchers project that by 2050, suitable croplands for four commodities - maize, potatoes, rice and wheat - will shift, in some cases pushing farmers to plant new crops. Some farmlands may benefit from warming, but others won't. Climate alone does not dictate yields; political shifts, global demand, and agricultural practices will influence how farms fare in the future.

Q6. Which one of the following is the most logical and rational inference that can be made from the above passage?

- Farmers who modernize their methods and diversify their fields will be in an advantageous position in future.
- Climate change will adversely affect the crop diversity.
- Shifting major crops to new croplands will lead to a great increase in the total area under cultivation and thus an increase in overall agricultural production.
- Climate change is the most important factor affecting the agricultural economy in the future.

Passage-6

A bat's wings may look like sheets of skin. But underneath, a bat has the same five fingers as an orangutan or a human, as well as a wrist connected to the same cluster of wrist bones connected to the same long bones of the arm. What can be more curious than that the hand of a man, formed for grasping, that of a mole for digging, the leg of the horse, the paddle of the porpoise, and the wing of the bat, should all be constructed on the same pattern?

Q7. Which one of the following is the most logical, scientific and rational inference that can be made from the above passage?

- Different species having similar structure of hands is an example of biodiversity.
- Limbs being used by different species for different kinds of work is an example of biodiversity.
- Man and the aforementioned animals having similar structure of limbs is an example of coincidence in evolution.
- Man and the aforementioned animals have a shared evolutionary history.

Passage - 7

Around 56 million years ago, the Atlantic Ocean had not fully opened and animals, perhaps including our primate ancestors, could walk from Asia to North America through Europe and across Greenland. Earth was warmer than it is today, but as the Palaeocene epoch gave way to Eocene, it was about to get much warmer still - rapidly and radically. The cause was a massive geologically sudden release of carbon. During this period called Palaeocene - Eocene Thermal Maximum or PETM, the carbon injected into the atmosphere was roughly the amount that would be injected today if humans burned all the Earth's reserves of coal, oil and natural gas. The PETM lasted for about 1,50,000 years, until the excess carbon was reabsorbed. It brought on drought, floods, insect plagues and a few extinctions. Life on Earth survived - indeed, it prospered - but it was drastically different.

Q8. Based on the above passage, the following assumptions have been made:

- Global warming has a bearing on the planet's biological evolution.
 - Separation of land masses causes the release of huge quantities of carbon into the atmosphere.

For example, a dietician or nutritionist might teach a patient with high blood pressure how to use less salt when preparing meals. Others work with groups of people who have similar needs. They might, for example, plan a diet with reduced processed foods and sugar to help overweight people lose weight.

Many people use the terms, Dietician, and Nutritionist, interchangeably, but their roles and educational qualifications are different. Nutritionists are professionals who advise people on the types and quantity of food intake required specifically to increase or decrease their body weight. They work in the areas of food science, community development, research projects and Fast Moving Consumer Goods Companies (FMCG). Their work relates to research aspect. It could be in the field, desk or laboratory. Public health nutritionists work in the developmental sector. "They go beyond diets - move into the science of biochemistry, food science.

On the other hand, Dieticians are experts who guide patients (medical patients in hospitals, nursing homes, etc.) regarding the right kinds of nutritional intake. For example, a person recovering from a car accident would have different requirements from someone suffering from cancer. They are specialized in nutrition for different categories of people, especially clinical patients. Dieticians can work as Nutritionists, but Nutritionists cannot work as Dieticians.

Generally, after the course completion, students are entitled to undergo an internship training of three months, which is a mandatory period, or six months at a hospital which is recognized by Indian Dietetic Association and has at least one registered dietician in the dietetics department. - In the United States, the Supreme Court has given a go-ahead to Trump administration plans that severely limit the ability of migrants to claim asylum. Under the rule, people arriving via a third country must claim asylum there first before arriving at the US border. Legal challenges against it continue but the ruling means for now it can be enforced nationwide. The plan will affect tens of thousands of Central American migrants who travel north, often on foot, through Mexico. The Trump administration unveiled the new asylum policy in July but it was almost immediately blocked from taking effect by a lower court ruling by a judge in San Francisco. Curbing migration levels has been a key goal of Donald Trump's presidency and forms a major part of his bid for re-election in 2020.
