E-CIGARETTE BAN PROMOTING PUBLIC HEALTH

EN Team

E-cigarettes, the consumption of which is popularly known as vaping, is now illegal in India with the government passing an ordinance on 18th September 2019 banning the sale, manufacturing, distribution, import, export, storage, transport and advertisement of the product.

Use of e-cigarettes is punishable with an imprisonment of up to one year or fine up to Rs. 1 lakh or both for the first offence; and imprisonment of up to three years and fine up to Rs. 5 lakh for a subsequent offence. Even storage is punishable with an imprisonment up to six months or fine up to Rs. 50,000, or both.

Globally, many countries are evaluating the health risks associated with using e-cigarettes, and India is one of a handful of countries to enforce a complete ban. The reason is the health risks posed by e-cigarettes and, in particular, the perception among adolescents and the youth that vaping is "cool", making e-cigarettes a potential gateway to smoking regular cigarettes.

With cigarettes being associated with fatal lung diseases and death of millions of people around the globe, manufacturers introduced Electronic Nicotine Delivery Systems (ENDS) that were deceptively promoted as a less harmful alternative.

They were introduced and popularised by forwarding the argument that they are effective in helping people quit smoking tobacco. However, there are no concrete large-scale studies to show their effectiveness in helping people quit smoking. Health activists argue that these products actually undermine the efforts to de-normalise tobacco use.

There is no conclusive evidence of "harm reduction" as well as any cessation benefits of these products. On the contrary newer evidence of harm is emerging, as demonstrated by the outbreak of severe lung disease due to vaping.

The liquid in the e-cigarette usually contains nicotine, which is toxic, highly addictive and known to be a lethal chemical. To make it more appealing to the youth, more than 7,000 varieties of flavours are mixed in the liquid. Apart from nicotine, e-cigarette cartridges can also be used as delivery devices for addictive and harmful substances such as cannabis and opiates.

As per WHO Report on the Global Tobacco Epidemic 2017, the Governments of thirty countries have already banned the product anticipating the possibilities of children, adolescents and youth (and generally non-smokers) initiating nicotine use through ENDS at a

CAREER PROSPECTS IN CLINICAL TRIAL RESEARCH AND MANAGEMENT

Dr. K. Jeyaprakash

Clinical Research, a branch of medical science and one of the most intensive industries, is emerging as a promising career, with the boom in healthcare sector in India. Indian pharmaceutical industry is growing exponentially and has become a very preferred destination for global pharmaceutical companies to conduct their drug research and development. As a result India, which is considered as the second largest pharmaceutical market in Asia, is becoming a hub for clinical research.

The implementation of the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade (GATT) has opened new opportunities for India to concentrate on the clinical trial market. Moreover, the country has numerous government-funded medical and pharmaceutical institutions with state-of-the-art facilities, which can serve as ideal centers for multi-centered clinical trials. Due to the prevalence of a large variety of diseases such as cancer and diabetes, India is viewed as the ideal location for clinical research trials for the pharmaceutical industry.

Clinical research is an integral part of the drug discovery process to ensure the safety and efficacy of any new drug. It is the complete biography of drug from its inception in the lab to its introduction to the consumer market and beyond.

The Clinical research of the new medicinal product is carried out through an organized Clinical Trial, prior to its release in the market. Clinical trials are used to determine whether new biomedical or behavioral interventions are safe, efficacious and effective. These trials are conducted in 4 phases and each phase of the drug approval process is treated as a separate clinical trial. The drug-development process will normally proceed through all four phases over many years. If the drug successfully passes through Phases I, II, and III, it will get approved by the FDA (Food and Drug Administration) and then marketed for public use. Phase IV are 'post-approval' studies.

Before pharmaceutical companies start clinical trials on a drug, they conduct an extensive pre-clinical studies. These involve in vitro (test tube or cell culture) and in vivo (animal) experiments using wide-ranging doses of the study drug to obtain preliminary efficacy, toxicity and pharmacokinetic information. After this, the data obtained from the studies are submitted as an IND (Investigational Drug Application) to take permission for human studies.

ELIGIBILITY & COURSE AREAS

The basic eligibility for MBA, M.Pharm and M.Sc courses in clinical research is B.Sc (Botany, Zoology, Chemistry, Biochemistry, Biotechnology, Micro-biology, Genetics, rate greater than expected if ENDS did not exist; and that, once addicted to nicotine through ENDS, such children,

- including lead, chromium, and nickel, and chemicals like formaldehyde have been found in aerosols of some ENDS, with concentrations equal to or greater than traditional cigarettes, under normal experimental conditions of use. As such,

ARE E-CIGARETTES LESS HARMFUL THAN REGULAR CIGARETTES?

YES, but that doesn't mean e-cigarettes are safe.

E-cigarette aerosol generally contains fewer toxic chemicals than the deadly mix of 7,000 chemicals in smoke from regular cigarettes. However, e-cigarette aerosol is not harmless. It can contain harmful and potentially harmful substances, including nicotine, heavy metals like lead, volatile organic compounds, and cancer-causing agents.

adolescents and youth are likely to switch to cigarette smoking. The report says that the scientific evidence regarding the effectiveness of ENDS as a smoking cessation aid is scant and of low certainty, making it difficult to draw credible inferences.

Countries where ENDS are banned include Mauritius, Australia, Singapore, Korea [Democratic People's Republic], Sri Lanka, Thailand, Brazil, Mexico, Uruguay, Bahrain, Iran, Saudi Arabia, and the United Arab Emirates.

Electronic Nicotine Delivery Systems (ENDS) are devices that heat a solution to create an aerosol, which frequently also contains flavours, usually dissolved into propylene Glycol/and Glycerin. Electronic cigarettes, the most common the evidence is sufficient to warn children and adolescents, pregnant women, and women of reproductive age against ENDS use.

Study on Mice Establishes Link Between Vaping Nicotine and Cancer

The most recent study that definitively links vaping nicotine to lethal diseases found that e-cigarette vapor causes lung cancer and potentially bladder cancer in mice. The research funded by the National Institutes of Health, USA, was conducted by the New York University and was recently published in Proceedings of the National Academy of Sciences. In the NYU study, researchers found that e-cigarette vapor caused DNA damage in the lungs and bladder and "inhibits DNA repair in lung tissues."

Besides nicotine, e-cigarettes can contain harmful and potentially harmful ingredients

- Flavorants such as diacetyl, a chemical linked to serious lung disease
- Ultrafine particles that can be inhaled deep into the lungs
- Heavy metals, such as nickel, tin, and lead
- Volatile organic compounds

prototype, are devices that do not burn or use tobacco leaves but instead vaporise a solution, which the user then inhales. The main constituents of the solution, in addition to nicotine are propylene glycol, with or without glycerol and flavouring agents. ENDS solutions and emissions contain other chemicals, some of them considered to be toxicants. Although ENDS is generally considered a single product class, these products constitute a diverse group with potentially significant differences in the production of toxicants and mechanisms for delivery of nicotine. In addition to creating dependence, nicotine can have adverse effects on the development of the foetus during pregnancy. It may contribute to cardiovascular disease to the people who use ENDS. Also, nicotine may function as a "tumour promoter" and seems to be involved in the biology of malignant diseases. Foetal and adolescent nicotine exposure may have long-term consequences for brain development, potentially leading to learning and anxiety disorders. In addition, a number of metals

Out of 40 mice exposed to e-cigarette vapor with nicotine over 54 weeks, 22.5% developed lung cancer and 57.5% developed precancerous lesions on the bladder. None of the 20 mice exposed to e-cigarette smoke without nicotine developed cancer over the four years they studied the mice.

Led by Moon-shong Tang, PhD, of NYU School of Medicine, the study also found that 23 of 40 mice (57.5 percent) exposed to E-cig smoke developed bladder hyperplasia, genetic changes that make cells more likely to multiply, and a step toward abnormal tissue growth seen in cancer. Only one of the 17 mice exposed to the zero-nicotine E-cig smoke developed hyperplasia.

The question of whether nicotine itself, separate from tobacco smoke, causes cancer is controversial because of conflicting study results over time that used oft-criticized methods. Almost all researchers agree, however, that chemicals added during the curing of tobacco - nitrate and nitrite - can cause a reaction called nitrosation (the addition of

WHAT ARE THE HEALTH EFFECTS OF USING E-CIGARETTES?

SCIENTISTS ARE STILL LEARNING ABOUT THE LONG-TERM HEALTH EFFECTS OF E-CIGARETTES. HERE IS WHAT WE KNOW NOW.

1 Most e-cigarettes contain nicotine, which has known health effects

- › Nicotine is highly addictive.
- › Nicotine is toxic to developing fetuses.
- › Nicotine can harm adolescent brain development, which continues into the early to mid-20s.
- › Nicotine is a health danger for pregnant women and their developing babies.

2 Besides nicotine, e-cigarette aerosol can contain substances that harm the body.

- › This includes cancer-causing chemicals and tiny particles that reach deep into lungs. However, e-cigarette aerosol generally contains fewer harmful chemicals than smoke from burned tobacco products.

3 E-cigarettes can cause unintended injuries.

- › Defective e-cigarette batteries have caused fires and explosions, some of which have resulted in serious injuries.
- › In addition, acute nicotine exposure can be toxic. Children and adults have been poisoned by swallowing, breathing, or absorbing e-cigarette liquid.

a particle called a nitrosonium ion), according to the study. This is known to convert nicotine into nitrosamines such as NNN (N-nitrosanonicotine) and NNK (nicotine-derived nitrosamine ketone), proven carcinogens in mice and humans.

Conventional thinking, says Professor Tang, has been that smoke from cured tobacco deposits nitrosamines into a smoker's organs and blood, with nitrosamine blood tests the best measure of their potential to cause cancer.

Such tests in a 2017 study found that levels of a compound related to NNK, called NNAL, were 95 percent lower in E-cig smokers than in tobacco smokers, leading some experts to conclude that a switch to E-cigs might save millions of lives. However, the new study finds that mammalian cells contain their own nitrosonium ions, which directly react with nicotine to form nitrosamines, including NNK. Many studies have also shown that human and mouse cells also have ample supplies of cytochrome p450, which further converts NNN and NNK into compounds (e.g. formaldehyde and CH3N=NOH) that can react with DNA to form damaging adducts (e.g. gamma-OH-PdG and O6-methyl-dG), the researchers say.

Tang's team had shown in a February 2018 PNAS article that E-cig smoke induces DNA damage in the mouse lung and bladder, and that nitrosation in cultured human lung and bladder cells converts nicotine into derivatives that increase DNA code changes (mutations) with the potential to transform normal cells into cancer cells. Specifically, the earlier study found that nicotine is transformed into nitrosamines, then into DNA damaging agents, which ultimately form DNA adducts.

The current study results confirm that nicotine from E-cig smoke can cause cancer in the lungs, and precancerous growth in the bladders, of mice. Furthermore, the results argue that nicotine, once inside cells, is converted into nitrosamines that do not leave cells and, therefore, could never be captured by tests that measure nitrosamine levels outside of cells (e.g. blood tests).

"Our results support the argument that the nicotine-derived DNA adducts are likely the main causes for carcinogenesis in mice exposed to E-cig smoke," says study author Herbert Lepor, MD, the Martin Spatz Chair of Urology at NYU Langone Health. "Our next step in this line of work will be to expand the number of mice studied, to shorten and prolong E-cigarette exposure time, and to further investigate the genetic changes caused by E-cigarette smoke."

In India, nicotine is prohibited for use under the Food Safety and Standards (Prohibition and Food Safety and Standards Act) 2006; as an ingredient in any food item under the Restrictions on Sales Regulation, 2011 and both Nicotine and Nicotine Sulphate are listed as hazardous chemicals in the Manufacture, Storage and Import of Hazardous Chemical Rules, 1989 made under the Environment (Protection) Act, 1986. Nicotine is also listed as an insecticide in the Schedule of Insecticides under the Insecticide Act 1968, and subsequently its

Passage -1

India's economic footprint, given its population, still remains small compared to the US, the European Union or China. It has much to learn from other economies, yet must implement solutions that fit its unique circumstances. India especially needs an effective long-term regulatory system based on collaboration rather than the current top-down approach. Regulations seek desirable outcomes yet are repeatedly used as political tools to push one agenda or another. Often, regulations fail to consider impacts on jobs and economic growth - or less restrictive alternatives. Regulations may be used to protect local markets at the expense of more widely shared prosperity in the future. Additionally, regulations inevitably result in numerous unintended consequences. In today's hyper competitive global economy, regulations need to be viewed as "weapons" that seek cost-justified social and environmental benefits while improving the economic well-being of most citizens.

Q61. Which one of the following is the most logical, rational and crucial inference that can be derived from the above passage?

- (a) A better regulatory system will help India achieve the size of economy appropriate to its population.
(b) In a competitive global economy, India must use regulations strategically.
(c) Regulations in India do not favour its integration with today's hyper competitive global economy.
(d) Job creation and economic growth should be dominant considerations in developing India's regulatory system.

Q62. On the basis of the above passage, the following assumptions have been made:

In today's global economy,

1. regulations are not effectively used to protect local markets.

2. social and environmental concerns are generally ignored by the governments across the world while implementing the regulations.

Which of the above assumptions is/are valid?

- (a) 1 only (b) 2 only
(c) Both 1 and 2
(d) Neither 1 nor 2

Passage - 2

In a study, scientists compared the microbiomes of poorly nourished and well nourished infants and young children. Gut microbes were isolated from faecal samples of malnourished and healthy children. The microbiome was "immature" and less diverse in malnourished children compared to the better developed "mature" microbiome found in healthy children of the same age. According to some studies, the chemical composition of mother's milk has shown the presence of a modified sugar (sialylated oligosaccharides). This is not utilized by the baby for its own nutrition. However, the bacteria constituting the infant's microbiome thrive on this sugar which serves as their food. Malnourished mothers have low levels of this sugar in their milk. Consequently, the microbiomes of their infants fail to mature. That in turn, leads to malnourished babies.

Q63. Which one of the following is the most logical, rational and crucial inference that can be derived from the above passage?

- (a) If malnourished condition in children is caused by gut bacteria, it cannot be treated.
(b) The guts of malnourished babies should be inoculated with mature microbiomes.
(c) Babies of malnourished mothers should be fed with dairy milk fortified with sialylated oligosaccharides instead of mother's milk.
(d) Research on benign effects of gut bacteria on nutrition has policy implications.

Q64. On the basis of the above passage, the following assumptions have been made:

1. Processed probiotic foods are a solution to treat the children suffering, from malnutrition due to immature gut bacteria composition.
2. The babies of malnourished mothers generally tend to be malnourished. Which of the above assumptions is/are valid?

- (a) 1 only (b) 2 only

(c) Both 1 and 2

(d) Neither 1 nor 2

Passage - 3

Temperatures have risen nearly five times as rapidly on the Western Antarctic Peninsula than the global average over the past five decades. Researchers have now found that melting glaciers are causing a loss of species diversity among benthos in the coastal waters off the Antarctic Peninsula, impacting an entire seafloor ecosystem. They believe increased levels of suspended sediment in water to be the cause of the dwindling biodiversity in the coastal region.

Q65. On the basis of the above passage, the following assumptions have been made :

1. Regions of glaciers warm faster than other regions due to global warming.
2. Global warming can lead to seafloor sedimentation in some areas.
3. Melting glaciers can reduce marine biodiversity in some areas.

Which of the above assumptions is/are valid?

- (a) 1 and 2 only (b) 3 only
(c) 2 and 3 only (d) 1, 2 and 3

Passage - 4

A research team examined a long-term owl roost. Owls prey on small mammals and the excreted remains of those meals that accumulated over the time, provide us an insight into the composition and structure of small mammals over the past millennia. The research suggested that when the Earth went through a period of rapid warming about 13,000 years ago, the small mammal community was stable and resilient. But, from the last quarter of the nineteenth century, human-made changes to the environment had caused an enormous drop in biomass and energy flow. This dramatic decline in energy flow means modern ecosystems are not adapting as easily as they did in the past.

Q66. On the basis of the above passage, the following assumptions have been made:

1. Global warming is a frequently occurring natural phenomenon.
2. The impending global warming will not adversely affect small mammals.
3. Humans are responsible for the loss of the Earth's natural resilience.

Which of the above assumptions is/are valid?

- (a) 1 and 2 only (b) 3 only
(c) 2 and 3 only (d) 1, 2 and 3

Passage -5

Food varieties extinction is happening all over the world - and it is happening fast. For example, of the 7,000 apple varieties that were grown during the nineteenth century, fewer than a hundred remain. In the Philippines, thousands of varieties of rice once thrived; now only up to a hundred are grown there. In China, 90 percent of the wheat varieties cultivated just a century ago have disappeared. Farmers in the past painstakingly bred and developed crops well suited to the peculiarities of their local climate and environment. In the recent past, our heavy dependence on a, few high yielding varieties and technology-driven production and distribution of food is causing the dwindling of diversity in food crops. If some mutating crop disease or future climate change decimates the few crop plants we have come to depend on to feed our growing population, we might desperately need some of those varieties we have let go extinct.

Q67. On the basis of the above passage, the following assumptions have been made:

1. Humans have been the main reason for the large scale extinction of plant species.
2. Consumption of food mainly from locally cultivated crops ensures crop diversity.
2. The present style of production, and distribution of food will finally lead to the problem of food scarcity in the near future.
4. Our food security may depend on our ability to preserve the locally cultivated varieties of crops.

Which of the above assumptions are valid?

- (a) 1 and 3 (b) 2 and 4
(c) 2 and 3 (d) 1 and 4

Q68. If every alternative letter of the English alphabet from B onwards (including B) is written in lower case (small letters) and the remaining letters are capitalized, then how is the first month of the second half of the year written?

- (a) JuLY (b) jULy
(c) jUly (d) jUIY

Q69. Sunita cuts a sheet of paper into three pieces. Length of first piece is equal to the average of the three single digit odd prime numbers. Length of the second piece is equal to that of the first plus one-third the length of the third. The third piece is as long as the other two pieces together. The length of the original sheet of paper is

- (a) 13 units (b) 15 units
(c) 16 units (d) 30 units

use as a pesticide is also highly restricted by Government of India.

The Drugs and Cosmetics Act, 1940 and Rules, 1945 permit the use of Nicotine up to 2 mg and 4 mg in gums, lozenges and strips, which may be used as aids for Nicotine Replacement Therapy (NRT). However, such a product should adhere to the provisions of Chapter IV of the Drugs and Cosmetics Act & Rules made thereunder, which require them to be manufactured under a valid drug manufacturing license and also a valid sales license for products containing more than 2mg of nicotine. ENDS are not yet approved as Nicotine Replacement Therapy (NRT) under the Drugs and Cosmetics Act.

In 2014, the Ministry of Health & Family Welfare conducted a roundtable discussion on Electronic Nicotine Delivery Systems (ENDS), wherein eminent doctors, specialists, scientists and officers of Health and Drug departments concluded that available scientific evidences indicate that the ENDS and similar technologies that encourage tobacco use, are hazardous for an active as well as passive users and have an adverse impact on public health.

The intent behind the ban in India is to ensure e-cigarettes do not become an 'epidemic' among children and young adults. There are 267 million tobacco users in India, and one million persons are thought to die of tobacco-related diseases every year. Over 38 per cent are exposed to second-hand smoke at home. And, alarmingly, 28.6 per cent of those afflicted are in the 15-plus age group and 14.6 per cent in the 13-15 age group. E-cigs are entry-level products. Minors use it because of the flavours and none of the foul smell and smoke associated with traditional cigarettes. Manufacturers package a wide variety of e-liquids in flavours like mango, chocolate, bubble gum, fruit tobacco, menthol to make them more appealing. These flavours make teens vape on endlessly without realising that an average e-cig pod contains nicotine equal to a normal cigarette pack of 20. E-cigarette users could graduate to smoking. While supporters argue that the vape ban only deprives smokers of safer options, the government and anti-tobacco activists are firm on their stand that the efforts made to reduce the number of tobacco smokers by more than two percentage points in the past decade could be reversed if vaping is encouraged.
