THE IMPACT OF INTERNATIONAL COOPERATION ON INDIA'S LABOUR POLICIES

Asoke Mukerji
Ambassador (Retd.)

One of the important areas for India's international cooperation is her "demographic dividend". The availability of a huge pool of skilled labour in India till the middle of the 21st century is one factor that will lead to the transformation of India into a global economy. Three international organizations have played a big role in the evolution of India's labour policies. These are the International Labour Organization (ILO), in which India has been active in setting labour standards, the United Nations (UN), in which India has focused on the role of labour policies within the matrix of Sustainable Development, and the World Trade Organization (WTO), in which India is a leading advocate for liberalization of flows of skilled labour to international markets.

The ILO

A century ago, on 28 June 1919, India signed the Treaty of Versailles in France, which brought the First World War to an end. Articles 1-30 of the Treaty created the world's first international intergovernmental organization, the League of Nations, which was succeeded by the UN in June 1945. Articles 387-427 of the Treaty established the ILO. As a signatory of the Treaty of Versailles, India automatically became a founder member of both the League of Nations and the ILO. Today, the ILO is a Specialized Agency of the UN, and has 187 member-states.

The primary objective of the ILO is to regulate labour policy at the international level. There are four areas where the ILO impacts on labour policies: (i) promotion and implementation of labour standards and fundamental principles and rights at work; (ii) creating opportunities for men and women to obtain decent work and pay; (iii) increasing the scope of social protection for all; and (iv) strengthening the tripartite nature of participation and social dialogue in the organization.

The ILO has a tripartite structure bringing together governments, employers and workers. A Governing Council of 56 representatives (28 governments, 14 employers and 14 workers) meets three times a year (in March, June and November) to take decisions on ILO policy. Since the first reform of the ILO in 1922, India has been permanently represented among the 10 governments of countries of "chief industrial importance". Decision-making is based on consensus, or by majority voting if there is no consensus. None of the countries of "chief industrial importance", including the United States, United Kingdom, France, China and Russia, (the five permanent members of the UN Security Council), have a veto in the adoption of decisions by the Governing Council. The other four countries of "chief industrial importance" permanently represented in the Governing Council are Brazil, Germany, Italy and Management and manager are familiar terms for us. All of us have to do the job of managing even though we may not be designated as managers. Here we're talking of managing our household, studies, finances and various situations we're put into or create for ourselves. Proper management makes things easier for us and helps us to navigate smoothly in life. Besides this, management can also be made a career option. The important thing to note is that even without a professional qualification in management, one can get opportunities to work as a manager. In government departments, banks and many other public and private organizations, you'll find employees designated as manager (of the unit/branch or a section/division thereof) who have not studied management as a subject. Such people are in those work units which have not mandated management degree a requisite qualification for managerial positions.

However, if you choose to pursue a course in management, you increase your chances of working in a managerial role. Engineering and medical education have been available in the country since long. In comparison, management studies arrived late though it has mushroomed in a decade or so. With onset of economic reforms and readiness to join globalization, the country felt the need of professional managers in large numbers. Many institutes added management courses in their offerings and a big number of new institutes to offer management education also came up. Today, there appears to be an overcapacity and if you want a management degree, one or the other college will offer you admission subject to your fulfilling the norms. However, in the case of an MBA, the degree is as important as the institute from where you've obtained the degree.

Courses: When it comes to management, we mostly talk of MBA degree. However management stream can be chosen at graduation level now which was uncommon about a few years ago. In the last decade or so, a number of institutes have started offering Bachelors in Business Administration (BBA) which is open to students completing 10+2 from any discipline including science, commerce, humanities etc. It is noticed that many students now prefer to go for BBA than B.Com. From this it shouldn't be construed that demand for B.Com has diminished. A graduate in business management or administration can be useful for all the positions where graduation is the entry bar. However for managerial careers, a postgraduate qualification definitely holds a better promise.

Japan. The remaining 18 governments in the Governing Council are elected for three-year periods.

The guiding principle of the ILO is social justice for "universal and lasting peace". The International Labour Conference or General Assembly of the ILO meets in June every year at the ILO Headquarters in Geneva. Since the Labour Conference in 1919, India has participated in all meetings through her tripartite delegations. Four Indians have been elected Presidents of the Conference so far -- Sir Atul Chatterjee, ICS, India's High Commissioner to the United Kingdom (1927), Babu Jagjivan Ram, Minister of Labour (1950), Dr Nagendra Singh, President of the International Court of Justice (1970) and Shri Ravindra Verma, Minister of Labour and Parliamentary Affairs (1979).

The outcome of the ILO's activity is through International Labour Standards, which are contained in Conventions and Recommendations. While ILO Conventions are treaties which are legally binding, ILO Recommendations are non-binding to guide formulation of national policies and measures. India's approach has been to use ILO Recommendations to eventually become party to ILO Conventions only when India's domestic legislation is in conformity with the provisions of the ILO Convention.

The ILO has eight "fundamental" Conventions. These cover four areas of fundamental principles and rights at work, viz. freedom of association and the effective recognition of the right to collective bargaining; the elimination of all forms of forced or compulsory labour; the effective abolition of child labour; and the elimination of discrimination in respect of employment and occupation. India has ratified six of these Conventions (on forced labour, child labour and non-discrimination of labour). India, along with the United States and China, has not yet ratified the ILO Conventions on freedom of association. Overall, India has ratified more than 40 ILO Conventions so far.

The UN

While the ILO Conventions and Recommendations help member-states to meet international labour policy objectives, the role of labour in achieving the Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs) of the UN's unanimously adopted Agenda 2030 on Sustainable Development has added another dimension to international cooperation on labour issues.

Under SDG 8 on "Decent Work and Economic Growth", member-states of the UN are committed to "protect labour rights and promote safe and secure working environments of all workers, including migrant workers, particularly women migrants, and those in precarious employment". Under SDG 16 on "Peace and Justice", member-states of the UN are committed to "promote the rule of law at national and international levels, and ensure equal access to justice for all", as well as "to promote non-discriminatory laws and policies for sustainable development".

India's NITI Aayog is the nodal point for monitoring and reporting to the UN implementation of Agenda 2030 with its SDGs in India. In its SDG India Report of 2018, NITI Aayog selected three areas to examine the implementation of SDG 8, based on four national level indicators chosen for "availability of data at the national level to ensure comparability". These are per capita growth, expansion of access to all of banking, insurance and financial services by domestic financial institutions, and doubling of agricultural productivity and incomes. The SDG India Report 2018 revealed that 12 states (Goa, Andhra Pradesh, Gujarat, Telangana, Maharashtra, Arunachal Pradesh, Haryana, Karnataka, Himachal Pradesh, Tamil Nadu, Uttarakhand and Mizoram) and five UTs (Daman & Diu, Delhi, Puducherry, Dadra & Nagar Haveli and Chandigarh) were on course to achieve the SDG targets in these areas after three years of India aligning herself with Agenda 2030. The role played by the Prime Minister's Employment Generation Programme (PMEGP), Start-Up India and Skill India initiatives in this process was highlighted.

While looking at the implementation of SDG 16, the SDG India Report of 2018 takes six indicators, again chosen for "availability of data at the national level to ensure comparability". These indicators are crimes against children, court density, corruption crime rate, registered births, coverage under the Aadhar biometric identity scheme and murders reported. The Report reveals that India's Constitution provides for justice systems at the local governance level, the Right to Information legislation provides all Indian citizens access to information from public authorities, the Aadhar system enables governance reforms, and village Panchayats are actively involved in developmental and public grievance redressal issues. Among the states of India, all except 8, and one UT, are on course to achieve the targets of SDG 16. Jharkhand, Tamil Nadu, Uttar Pradesh, Bihar, Madhya Pradesh, Odisha, Assam, and Meghalaya, and Dadar & Nagar Haveli need assistance to implement SDG 16 targets.

In 2018, the UNGA negotiated a Global Compact for Safe, Orderly and Regular Migration to address concerns on the flow of people, including labour. The background was an increase in protectionist sentiment within more many economies of the world, which impacted on implementing Agenda 2030. The Global Compact was the first ever negotiated legally non-binding global framework for a common approach to international migration. In the UN General Assembly, 152 member-states including India voted in favour of the Global Compact, 5 countries including the United States, Czech Republic, Hungary, Israel and Poland opposed it. 12 countries abstained, including Australia, Singapore and Switzerland.

The WTO

When negotiations to create the WTO succeeded in 1995, one important area added to international cooperation on labour flows was under the General Agreement on Trade in Services (GATS). Popularly known as the "Mode 4" or "Movement of Natural Persons", this provision enables receiving countries to regulate the entry of skilled labour as service providers. India is generally looked at as the "voice of Mode 4" in WTO negotiations.

The flow of labour across borders through the WTO has sought to be regulated through two broad categories - intra-corporate transferees, which cover the movement of employees of one company across borders to that company's establishment in the receiving country, and highly skilled persons for whom the receiving country may allow entry for limited time to deliver specialized services.

During the WTO's ongoing Doha Round of Trade Negotiations, attempts by countries like India which have the potential to significantly export skilled manpower have been restricted by most large economies, including the United States, China and the European Union. The WTO's Hong Kong Ministerial Conference of December 2005 resulted in an agreement to intensify the negotiations on increased market access for trade in services in accordance with a set of modal objectives. On Mode 4, the Ministerial Declaration called for, among other things, new and improved commitments on categories of persons linked with, as well as de-linked from, commercial presence, the reduction/elimination of economic needs tests and the extension of the permitted duration of stay.

However, in addition to limiting access to certain categories of persons most importing countries often inscribe restrictions in their schedules of commitments regarding Mode 4 delivery of services. The WTO Secretariat identifies such restrictions to include: defined duration of stay; quotas, including on the number or proportion of foreigners employed; "economic needs tests" (a test that conditions market access upon the fulfilment of certain economic criteria) or "labour market tests", generally inscribed without any indication of the criteria of application; pre-employment conditions; residency and training requirements.

India is one of the major demanders for the opening of global markets for exports of trade in services using Mode 4. India's experience of leveraging her competitive advantage in exports of Information Technology Enabled Services or IT/ITeS sector has seen her exports of ITeS generate annual revenues of more than $125 billion for India in 2017-18, employing the services of almost 3 million people. Other sectors of international trade in services where India has an interest in the opening of markets on a fair and transparent basis include accountancy, medical, architecture, education, management, tourism, culture and the new area of digitally driven services in the area of electronic commerce.

The Way Forward

On 16 September 2019, the UNGA endorsed the ILO's Centenary resolution, which advocated a "human-centred approach to the future of work, through investing in people, institutions and sustainable growth". This is the test ahead for India's labour policies as she adapts and integrates new emerging technologies with her competitive "demographic dividend" in transforming herself into a major world power.

- 1996
- 1998

Q19. Rakesh and Rajesh together bought 10 balls and 10 rackets. Rakesh spent Rs. 1300 and Rajesh spent Rs. 1500. If each racket costs three times a ball does, then what is the price of a racket?

- Rs. 70
- Rs. 90
- Rs. 210
- Rs. 240

Q20. In a conference, out of a total 100 participants, 70 are Indians. If 60 of the total participants are vegetarian, then which of the following statements is/are correct?

- At least 30 Indian participants are vegetarian.
- At least 10 Indian participants are non-vegetarian.

Select the correct answer using the codes given below:

- 1 only
- 2 only
- Both 1 and 2
- Neither 1 nor 2

Directions for the following 8 (eight) items:

Read the following six passages and answer the items that follow each passage. Your answers to these items should be based on the passages only.

Passage - 1

Low-end IoT (Internet of Things) devices are cheap commodity items : addressing security would add to the cost. This class of items is proliferating with new applications; many home appliances, thermostats, security and monitoring devices and personal convenience devices are part of the IoT. So are, fitness trackers, certain medical implants and computer-like devices in automobiles. The IoT is expected to expand exponentially - but new security challenges are daunting.

Q21. Which one of the following statements is the most logical and rational inference that can be made from the above passage?

- Development of enabling technologies in India can be a big boost to its manufacturing sector.
- India is not yet fully ready to adopt IoT in view of the imminent security challenges.
- Life becomes more comfortable with the development of cheap low-end IoT devices.
- As we go digital, we must recognise the huge threat to Internet security from some IoT devices.

Passage - 2

With the digital phenomenon restructuring most social sectors, it is little surprise that global trade negotiations are now eyeing the digital area in an attempt to pre-emptively colonise it. Big Data is freely collected or mined from developing countries, and converted into digital intelligence in developed countries. This intelligence begins to control different sectors and extract monopoly rents. A large foreign company providing cab service, for instance, is not a network of cars and drivers; it is digital intelligence about commuting; public transport, roads, traffic, city events, personal behavioural characteristics of commuters and drivers and so on. www.Jobriya.com

Q22. Which one of the following is the most logical and rational corollary to the above passage?

- Globalization is not in the interests of India as it undermines its socio-economic structures.
- India should be careful to protect its digital sovereignty in global trade talks.
- India should charge monopoly rents from multinational companies in exchange for Big Data.
- The loss of Big Data from India is proportional to the degree/value of its foreign trade.

Q23. Which of the following is most definitively implied by the above passage?

- Big Data is the key resource in the digital space.
- Big economies create Big Data.
- Access to Big Data is the prerogative of developed countries.
- Access to and possession of Big Data is a characteristic of developed countries.

Passage 3

The rural poor across the world, including India, have contributed little to human-induced climate change, yet they are on the frontline in coping with its effects. Farmers can no longer rely on historical averages for rainfall and temperature, and the more frequent and extreme weather events, such as droughts and floods, can spell disaster. And there are new threats, such as sea level rise and the impact of melting glaciers on water supply. How significant are small farms? As many as two billion people worldwide depend on them for their food and livelihood. Small-holder farmers in India produce 41 percent of the country's food grains, and other food, items that contribute to local and national food security.

Q24. What is the most logical and rational corollary to the above passage?

- Supporting small farmers is an important part of any agenda regarding environmentally sustainable development.
- Poor countries have little role to play in the mitigation of global warming.
- Due to a large number of farmer households, India will not have food security problem in the foreseeable future.
- Only small-holder farmers in India can ensure food security.

Q25. The above passage implies that

- There is a potential problem of food insecurity in India.
 - India will have to strengthen its disaster management capabilities.
- Which of the above assumptions is/are valid?
- 1 only
 - 2 only
 - Both 1 and 2
 - Neither 1 nor 2

Passage - 4

A changing climate, and the eventual efforts of governments (however reluctant) to deal with it, could have a big impact on investors' returns. Companies that produce or use large amounts of fossil fuels will face higher taxes and regulatory burdens. Some energy producers may find it impossible to exploit their known reserves, and be left with "stranded assets" - deposits of oil and coal that have to be left in the ground. Other industries could be affected by the economic damage caused by more extreme weather - storms, floods, heat waves and droughts.

Q26. On the basis of the above passage, the following assumptions have been made:

- Governments and companies need to be adequately prepared to face the climate change.

- Extreme weather events will reduce the economic growth of governments and companies in future.
 - Ignoring climate change is a huge risk for investors.
- Which of the above assumptions is/are valid?

- 1 and 2 only
- 3 only
- 1 and 3 only
- 1, 2 and 3

Passage 5

Access to schooling for those coming of school age is close to universal, but access to quality exhibits a sharp gradient with socio-economic status. Quotas for the weaker sections in private schools is a provision introduced by the Right of Children to Free and Compulsory Education Act, 2009. The quotas have imposed a debate on issues of social integration and equity in education that private actors had escaped by and large. The idea of egalitarian education system with equality of opportunity as its primary goal appears to be outside the space that private school principals inhabit. Therefore, the imposition of the quotas has led to resistance, sometimes justified.

Q27. With reference to the above passage, the following assumptions have been made:

- Making equality of opportunity a reality is the fundamental goal of the Indian education system.
- The present Indian school system is unable to provide egalitarian education.
- Abolition of private schools and establishment of more government schools is the only way to ensure egalitarian education.

Which of the above assumptions is/are valid?

- 1 and 2 only
- 2 only
- 2 and 3 only
- 3 only

Passage - 6

A majority of the TB infected in India are poor and lack sufficient nutrition, suitable housing and have little understanding of prevention. TB then devastates families, makes the poor poorer, particularly affects women and children, and leads to ostracisation and loss of employment. The truth is that even if TB does not kill them, hunger and poverty will. Another truth is that deep-seated stigma, lack of counselling, expensive treatment and lack of adequate support from providers and family, coupled with torturous side-effects demotivate patients to continue treatment - with disastrous health consequences.

Q28. Which one of the following is the most logical, rational and crucial message conveyed by the above passage?

- TB is not a curable disease in Indian circumstances.
- Curing TB requires more than diagnosis and medical treatment.
- Government's surveillance mechanism is deficient; and poor people have no access to treatment.
- India will be free from diseases like TB only when its poverty alleviation programmes are effectively and successfully implemented.

Q29. A five-storeyed building with floors from I to V is painted using four different colours and only one colour is used to paint a floor. Consider the following statements:

- The middle three floors are painted in different colours.
- The second (II) and the fourth (IV) floors are painted in different colours.
- The first (I) and the fifth (V) floors are painted red.

To ensure that any two consecutive floors have different colours

- Only statement 2 is sufficient
- Only statement 3 is sufficient
- Statement 1 is not sufficient, but statement 1 along with statement 2 is sufficient
- Statement 3 is not sufficient, but statement 3 along with statement 2 is sufficient

Q30. P, Q and R are three towns. The distance between P and Q is 60 km, whereas the distance between P and R is 80 km. Q is in the West of P and R is in the South of P. What is the distance between Q and R?

- 140 km
- 130 km
- 110 km
- 100 km

Q31. All members of a club went to Mumbai and stayed in a hotel. On the first day, 80% went for shopping and 50% went for sightseeing, whereas 10% took rest in the hotel. Which of the following conclusion(s) can be drawn from the above data?

- 40% members went for shopping as well as sightseeing.
 - 20% members went for only shopping.
- Select the correct answer using the code given below:
- 1 only
 - 2 only
 - Both 1 and 2

MBA can be pursued by graduates from all disciplines. You might have seen many engineers B.E or B.Tech. going for a management qualification. Even those with an MBBS, or B. Pharm have been doing MBA. So a decision to study management can be planned even while graduating. You don't need to have it studied earlier. Now it is considered a good idea to have a few years work experience after graduation before you move to a management course. As a matter of fact, many institutes give weightage to students with work experience in admission to such course. In the United States at most management colleges, post-graduation in business management is open only to experienced undergraduates.

A two-year full time postgraduate diploma in Management carries the same value as MBA. Since only universities are allowed to confer degree, non-universities offer a diploma. However, as per a recent amendment in rules, IIMs which are not considered universities have been permitted to confer degrees.

Five-year integrated course incorporating subject specific graduation and postgraduate qualification in management is available at a handful of institutes. For example, you may find a five-year course covering undergraduate curriculum for engineering and postgraduate curriculum for post-graduation.

There are short term (11-12 months) part/full time/weekend courses in management for working people. Before taking up any such course its credentials and value offered needs to be thoroughly examined.

As regards distance learning courses, these are mostly not considered equivalent to a regular course. The need for a two-year full time course is outlined in almost all recruitment advertisements. Part time/distance courses may prove to be advantageous in promotion etc. and for increasing one's knowledge.

Specialization: At postgraduate level, students are required to choose their specialization in a particular branch of management. A list of specializations compiled from websites of different institutes is given below:

Finance
Marketing
Human Resources
Information Technology
Operations/Logistics
Rural
Agri-business Pharmaceutical
Travel & Tourism
Financial Technology
Family Business
Banking
Insurance
Risk
International Business
Development
Materials
Cooperative
Healthcare
Hospital
Data Analytics
Business Analytics
Construction

The first four are most common specializations.

Courses like Masters in Financial Management/Marketing Management / Human Resource Management etc. are also available. Technically there is hardly any difference between MBA (HR) and Masters in Human Resource Management.

It is important to note that not all specializations are available at all the institutes. Due care should be taken in choosing a specialization. It shouldn't be a random choice. For example if you're not much comfortable with charts, graphs and calculations, better to choose another specializations than finance. Many students try to find out the specialization with maximum job opportunities and choose specialization accordingly which is not a healthy practice. More important is to keep your aptitude and interest in mind. www.Jobriya.com

Even for BBA, a few institutes have come up with narrow specialization like Banking, insurance etc.

Entrance tests for management courses: Common Aptitude Test, CAT for short, is the flagship test, conducted mainly for postgraduate courses at various IIMs. However most of the other management institutes also consider CAT score of candidates. Those willing to MBA from other institute will also pursue appear in CAT even if IIM is not on their list. Needless to add that only top scorers in CAT are admitted to IIMs.

All India Management Institute (AIMA), New Delhi conducts a Management Aptitude Test (MAT) which is accepted by a number of institutes in the country. Similarly Association of Indian Management Schools (AIMS) has been conducting ATMA for past many years.

Some state governments (Maharashtra, Telangana, Karnataka, Himachal Pradesh, Odisha, Tamilnadu etc.) conduct a Common Entrance Examination (CET) for admission to identified institutes in their state. A number of colleges/universities have their own written examination.

Management entrance examination may consist of Quantitative Technique/ Ability/Aptitude; Analytical/Logical Reasoning, English Language Comprehension, General/Business Scenario Awareness, Data Interpretation etc.

Based on the score in the above candidates are asked for group discussion and personal interview by the institute which has shortlisted them for admission.

Places to study: IIMs are the most sought after places to study management. IIMs are located at places like Ahmedabad, Bengaluru, Kolkata, Kojhikode, Indore, Lucknow, Ranchi, Kashipur, Amritsar, Rohtak, Visakhapatnam, Jammu, Shillong, Sirmaur.

Some of the IITs in addition to engineering, also teach management but with lesser intake. IIT, Mumbai and IIT, Kharagpur are well known for this. You may also check with different centres of Indian Institute of Information Technology some of which have MBA in Data Science/Business Analytics etc.

Most of the universities in the country, old and new, have a department for management studies.

Private management colleges have mushroomed all over the country, but not all of them are fully equipped to provide quality education. So you've to be a bit cautious in your selection. Maximum concentration of such colleges is at Bengaluru, Noida, Pune, Delhi and Hyderabad.

Cost factor: There is wide variation in the fee charged for a management degree across institutions. In some cases it's indeed exorbitant and difficult to afford by middle and low income group families. Though banks are willing to provide you education loan, it needs to be remembered that payment of loan instalments has to begin immediately after your taking up a job or 6 months after completing the course; whichever is earlier. At older universities, the course can be done at a much less fee and it is a good idea to get into places like Faculty of Management Studies, University of Delhi/Banaras Hindu University etc.

Specialized Institutes: Given below is an indicative list of some management institutes which are known for their management degree with particular specializations.

Institute of Rural Management, Anand
Entrepreneurship Development Institute of India, Ahmedabad

Indian Institute of Foreign Trade, New Delhi, Kolkata

Tata Institute of Social Sciences, Mumbai/Tulajapur

National Institute of Securities Market, Navi Mumbai

National Institute of Bank Management, Pune

National Institute of Agricultural Extension Management, Hyderabad

(List Indicative)

Fellow/Research Programme in Management: IIMs and other institutes like Xavier Labour Relations Institute, Jamshedpur have a fellow programme in management which can be pursued after a postgraduate degree in management on various other subjects, provided the candidate fulfills other requirements. It is a full time programme, good for those who are academically inclined. Mostly it is a programme with stipend which covers living expenses, cost of books etc. Similarly research opportunities are also available at IIMs, universities etc. leading to a Ph.D. qualification. IIM, Ahmedabad offers Ph.D. in Business policy, Economics, Finance, Information systems, Education, Organizational behavior, Public system etc.

How a Management qualification helps: As is commonly known management has mainly four functions-planning, organizing, directing and controlling. Management courses are designed to teach business theories, models of management, strategic thinking, resource utilization and optimization, funds management, corporate social responsibility, business laws and ethics, corporate governance, managerial styles, delegation, sustainability and creating shareholder value among others. As per current trends more emphasis is being given on developing soft skills in the students and grooming them with leadership training.

Accreditation /Recognition: Universities Grants Commission (UGC) is the regulating authority for universities in India. Many deemed and private universities have been established under state laws or statutes. University affiliated colleges have to strictly follow the MBA curriculum prescribed by the parent university.

All India Council for Technical Education (AICTE) has been established by the government to ensure quality of technical courses being offered in the country and regulate them. A management course is considered to be a technical course. A postgraduate programme in Management has to be recognized by AICTE to be considered a valid degree for official purposes. Even UGC recognized MBA programmes should ideally have AICTE approval. AICTE has prescribed norms with regard to physical infrastructure, faculty, curriculum etc. which are taken into consideration before recognition is offered. All aspiring management students will do well to check their official website to find out valuable information about management education in the country.

Reality check: There are various misconceptions about a management degree and career opportunities after that. It is to be noted that only having a management degree is not a guarantee to a high flying career. Even if you have a degree, you'll be required to prove your worth to the employing organization. The rosy picture of placements by private institutes may be misleading. The promise of '100 percent placement' by an institute does not necessarily mean that all its students get decent, well-paying jobs. Since there are less jobs than the number of applicants, many companies try to exploit management graduates with low pay and tough working conditions. Many of the management graduates are working in government banks and insurance companies where entry with a simple graduation is also possible.

On the other hand, a management degree may prepare you for a global career. Even for those who decide to start their own venture, undergoing a management course may prove to be handy. As you might have seen, most of the startups have management graduates as their promoters.

If you join a management course make best use of the learning opportunities and build your personality with values and confidence to face the corporate world or work on your own.
